Legal settlement sought first

Builders delay plans to seek annexation

A Miller Builders Inc. official said the firm is "holding off for the time being" efforts to annex a site to Buffalo Grove for a controversial 415-unit housing development.

Jerry DeGrazia, land planning director for the Skoklo firm, said Miller has delayed plans to have the property west of the village annexed due partly to current "economic conditions."

He said, however, that the developer has no current plans to discard efforts to seek approval for annexation and begin the Buffalo Grove development.

RICHARD WEXLER, a Miller attorney, said dropping the plan is among the alternatives being considered if the current legal battle with the Village of Long Grove continues.

The two sides are arguing a lawsuit in Lake County Circuit Court concerning a 100-foot strip of land that Long Grove is trying to annex.

The property is necessary if Miller is to annex to Buffalo Grove while Long Grove officials, trying to head off the development, are also seeking the property. The strip connects the development property with Buffalo Grove.

DeGrazia said, however, the firm was only "trying to regroup and assess the situation," denying speculation the plan might be dropped.

THE LEGAL entanglement goes back to last November when Miller filed in Lake County court for permission to annex the strip to Buffalo Grove.

Long Grove attorneys countered the move a few weeks later by filing a petition of their own.

A court decision on the matter is still pending, however, waiting a decision on whose petition takes precedence. The Long Grove request was filed while Miller had temporarily withdrawn its petition to correct some discrepancies in legal descriptions.

Long Grove officials have also said the project, calling for 308 homes and 107 townhouses, conflicts with their master plan.

tion to correct some discrepancies in legal descriptions.

THE PROPOSED Miller site lies east of Old Hicks Road between Old Checker and the Lake-Cook county line. Part of the site borders Long Grove, whose officials have raised a number of objections to the development, including predictions that sewage and traffic problems would result.

Long Grove officials have also said the project, calling for 308 homes and 107 townhouses, conflicts with their master plan.

Stavros drops charge of unfair treatment

by JOE FRANZ

Attorneys for convicted Wheeling political boss James Stavros have withdrawn a motion in federal court that charged Stavros was unjustly placed on a restricted-prisoner status, by the Justice Department.

The action was taken after U.S. District Court Judge Hubert L. Will said Friday he saw no evidence that Stavros was in any restricted class and would deny the motion unless shown otherwise.

Stavros' attorneys, Joel Murray and Robert J. Butler, charged in the motion that Stavros has been denied furloughs from prison and probably will not receive an early parole because of the restricted status.

The motion also charged that Stavros is not receiving proper treatment for medical problems and has been denied information on his medical condition.

Will suggested Butler withdraw the motion after Asst. U.S. Atty. Howard Stone said Stavros has not been designated as a "special offender" and has not been placed in any other restricted status. The judge Wednesday ordered the

Two will seek election to school board

Lillian Stiller and Susan Rose have announced they will seek to retain their seats on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education in the April election.

Mrs. Stiller will be running for her fourth term on the board.

"I think it will be an extremely challenging year with the new Illinois Board of Education and an appointed (state) superintendent," she said. "This will affect all of us."

She said she would like to improve Dist. 21's relations with other taxing bodies and continue the formation of citizens' committees for curriculum development.

"This is the first year the district is in the black," she said. "We're not worried about passing a referendum or paying the light bills." With the district's current funding, she said there are many education areas the district can move into.

Mrs. Rose was appointed to the board in August, filling the vacancy caused by Mary Jo Reid's resignation. Mrs. Reid resigned to take a full-time paid position with the district.

Mrs. Rose was not available for comment.

THESE TWO students were among 10 Hersey High School students who think they leapt into the Guinness Book of World Records Saturday. It took 11 hours and 55 minutes for the group to go around the school gym 1,120 times or a distance of 56 miles. The former record is believed to have been 50 miles.

Artemenko to seek new high school board term

Eugene Artemenko, a member of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education since 1971, said he will seek reelection in the April election.

Artemenko, 431 Millers Rd., Des Plaines, was appointed to the board in 1971. The following year he was elected to a three-year term which expires this April.

"I'd like to serve another term," Artemenko said.

"My years on the board have been rewarding and personally satisfying to me."

Artemenko, 46, served for five years on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education before moving over to the Dist. 214 board.

TWO OTHER PERSONS are considering running for two vacant seats on the board.

Arthur Aronson, 2818 N. Schoenbeck

Rd., Arlington Heights, said earlier he did not know whether he would have enough time to serve a fifth term on the Dist. 214 board.

A member since 1962 and a school board veteran of more than 20 years, Aronson is the senior member of the Dist. 214 board.

Another possible candidate for the board is Al Domanico, 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village.

Domanico has been a member of the Dist. 59 Board of Education for 4½ years. He said he plans to retire from that board when his current term expires in April, but has not made a decision yet on whether he will run for the Dist. 214 board.

The first day for candidates to file for the April 12 school board election is Feb. 26.

by JILL BETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Pancoe does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's super-heroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Pancoe said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Pancoe from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Pancoe contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCOE TRIED TO show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days while a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Pancoe filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Pancoe agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Pancoe is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned movie-goers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or patently offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or PGs. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Plitt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em (the public). Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuella," a film currently popular in New York.

Hayes resigns as editor of Herald

The resignation of Charles E. Hayes as editor in chief of The Herald was announced Monday by Stuart R. Paddock Jr., president.

In announcing Hayes' resignation, Paddock expressed "profound regret and at the same time our deepest gratitude for the long and distinguished service he has performed in guiding and influencing our editorial growth and development."

Hayes joined Paddock Publications, publishers of The Herald, in 1934 while completing work on his master's degree in journalism at Northwestern University. He advanced from reporter to news editor in 1935, managing editor in 1937, and executive editor in 1960.

His elevation to editor in chief in 1968 marked the first time in company history that the top editorial post was held by someone other than a member of the Paddock family.

In recent years Hayes also had served with the titles of vice president and publisher.

"Under his editorial leadership our newspapers have achieved national stature and recognition as pioneers of the new suburban press and are regarded today as leaders in the suburban daily field," Paddock said. "We extend to him our best wishes for what we know will be continued success in his future endeavors."

HAYES HAS RECEIVED more than 50 awards and honors for journalistic excellence. In presenting him with his Distinguished Service Award, Alpha Phi Gamma national journalism honorary said: "Charles Hayes has helped to elevate suburban journalism from its early role as a 'throwaway' to its modern role as a responsible, efficient and comprehensive medium which serves its community in the best journalistic tradition."

He is a past president of the Chicago Headline Club and member of American Society of Newspaper Editors, Chicago Press Club, Chicago Press Veterans Assn. and Society of Professional Journalists-Sigma Delta Chi.

Hayes has been active in the fields of social welfare and adult education. Since 1954 he has been involved in numerous community and public service activities and in 1962 received the Arlington Heights Jaycees' distinguished service award.

He is past chairman of the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center advisory board, past president of the Opportunity Council, and member of Harper College Community Leadership Training Center board, Wheeling Township Central Service Center advisory board and Northwest Surgicare consumer advisory board.

Gov. Daniel Walker appointed Hayes to the Illinois Health Facilities Authority in 1973 and reappointed him to a seven-year term in 1974.

He lives at 1 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights.

Palatine woman killed in accident

A 22-year-old Palatine woman was killed and a Wisconsin man injured Saturday in a two-car head-on crash on Dundee Road, about a mile west of Quentin Road in Palatine Township. Kathy Davenport, 1201 Long Valley Dr., the driver of one car, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Treated and released was the driver of the other car, Ernest Andres, 33, of Twin Lakes, Wis. Police said the Davenport vehicle strayed into the opposite lane and collided with Andres' car.

Trustee race heats up

Michael H. Minton, defeated 1973 mayoral candidate in Mount Prospect, is reactivating his old campaign organization in preparation for making a run for a village trustee post in April. Minton and Mayor Robert D. Teichert waged a bitter campaign two years ago and Minton's reemergence could prompt a more active role in this year's election by Teichert, whose term does not expire until 1977.

Condominium owners unite

Members of an alliance of condominium and townhouse owners' associations now forming in the Northwest suburbs believe they represent sufficient strength to influence state and local laws governing condominium ownership. At a meeting Saturday in Schaumburg, representatives of 10 condominium and townhouse complexes, including developments in Buffalo Grove and Bloomingdale, endorsed forming an "association of associations" to work on common problems.

Suspect linked to 5 murders

An Indianapolis man suspected in the Nov. 18 slaying of a Prospect Heights real estate salesman is now under investigation in a total of five Chicago-area murders. Gary Duane Rardon, 31, who has been held in Louisville, Ky., since his capture Thursday by FBI agents, is a suspect in the slaying of a South Suburban Posen gun store owner and a store employee during a Dec. 18 robbery. Police said Rardon has admitted to the Prospect Heights slaying and to other killings in Franklin Park and Calumet City.

Griffin picked over Clarbour

The Arlington Heights Caucus elected Trustee David Griffin Sunday as the party's candidate for village president in the April 1 village election. Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour, who had sought the nomination, said he would consider running independent campaign against the Caucus, which has dominated village politics in most recent elections. Griffin's nomination, won on a motion from the floor, prompted immediate unofficial charges that the Caucus gathering had been stacked in his favor by the Wheeling Township Democratic organization.

Julian Bond

Bond's ready - and able - to run for President

Baby-faced Georgia State Sen. Julian Bond was the latest in a stream of non-Presidential candidates to swing through the Chicago area this weekend, but he clearly showed he marches to the beat of a different drummer.

You remember Julian Bond — the kid politician who received national attention at the 1968 Democratic convention.

He led a successful insurgent delegation against the supporters of then Gov. Lester Maddox and managed to oust half of them because of their anti-black rules.

A few days later, he became the first black man ever to have his name placed in nomination for the office of President, though he was too young to accept.

TODAY, HE'S OF age - 35 - and ready and willing to run if he can raise enough money.

"I've had that ambition for many years," he told reporters at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel before speaking at Saturday night's third annual dinner honoring the life and times of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. "I want to be President. I don't believe in chasing rainbows. I want to win. I like to win."

BOND DESCRIBED himself as a "big central government man" who would be a "friend of the working man and people at the bottom" if he became President. And he thinks because of campaign reforms, 1976 is the best time in American history for a black man to become President.

He has set a June deadline for filling his coffers. He said if he fails to come up with enough money or if it is certain other candidates would have a better chance, he would then take an active role in choosing one of the front runners as his party's standard bearer. And that at present probably would exclude Gov. Daniel Walker.

THE BLACK LEADER and legislator said today's attitude of white America toward black America has improved outwardly, but there is still formidable opposition keeping blacks out of white suburbs. "There are no signs in the suburbs saying 'black people stay away,'" Bond said. The movement is much more subtle. The enemy is much more obscure.

The protest marches and sit-ins aimed at bringing reform in the past is being replaced by political and economic pressures but he didn't rule out the use of the former tactics if needed to bring about new social reforms.

Arab guns blaze at Orly; 3 held captive

PARIS (UPI) — Two Arab gunmen fired at an Israeli jetliner from the crowded observation deck at Orly airport Sunday. They missed the plane but exchanged gunfire with police and hurled hand grenades as they seized three hostages.

While screaming bystanders ducked for cover, the gunmen grabbed a couple and four-year-old daughter as hostages.

Rifle shots fired at U.N. Soviet building

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three rifle shots were fired into the Soviet Mission to the United Nations early Sunday, police said. No injuries were reported.

Police said the shots were fired at about 3 a.m. and went through two windows into two rooms at the mission, located in midtown Manhattan.

Three shells and a .22 caliber rifle were recovered, police said. No arrests have been made.

then barricaded themselves in an airport restroom and demanded a plane to the Middle East.

Police said 20 persons were wounded, eight of them badly enough to require medical attention. A riot policeman was shot in the stomach.

About 2 a.m. Monday, two shots were heard from the direction of the restroom. A government spokesman said, "I don't think the shots were fired at the hostages."

The guerrillas paid 50 cents for tickets to the observation deck, where they suddenly produced submachine guns and hand grenades. They opened fire on the El Al 747 jet as it was taxiing for takeoff.

The plane, Flight 418 to Tel Aviv, took off, its pilot apparently unaware his aircraft was under fire. First reports said the jet was not hit.

A riot policeman especially assigned to the airport after the earlier attack last Monday uncocked his submachine gun and opened fire on the gunmen.

As bullets ricocheted, screaming bystanders tripped and fell over each other as they dropped to the floor or huddled behind pillars or stuffed chairs.

"I heard gunfire and people fell down on the floor," Celine Klorza said. "They weren't aiming at anyone but just spraying bullets in all directions."

Mrs. Klorza said two women seized as hostages wriggled free and ducked into a women's lavatory.

The guerrillas, dropping grenades to cover their retreat, dragged their other hostages with them down a stairway and into a men's lavatory.

They made the usual demand for a jetliner with crew, Jean Vaudeville, prefect for the Val de Marne department, said.

Police closed the air terminal and sent in hundreds of reinforcements including riot police, a tear-gas squad and sharpshooters with bulletproof vests.

When police tried to rig a periscope to watch the restroom corridor the Arabs shot it to bits, witnesses said.

Andre Mousset, spokesman for the interior ministry, told reporters shortly after midnight on Monday morning that negotiations had started in earnest a few moments before through an interpreter. He did not specify the language.

"Apparently they are Palestinians, but Arabs in any case," Vaudeville said.

According to reports from Beirut, the Palestine Liberation Organization, which seeks improved relations with the French government, disclaimed any responsibility for the Sunday attack or the one last Monday.

Mousset confirmed the gunmen were holding at least two hostages, a woman and child, and said one or two men might also have been taken hostage.

AMBULANCES AND police rushed to Orly Airport in Paris Sunday after Arab commandos fired at, and missed, a departing Israeli El Al airliner. Several people were injured when the gunmen sprayed a crowded observation deck with submachinegun fire and grenades. The gunmen then retreated to a restroom with three hostages. The Palestinian Liberation Organization has disclaimed responsibility for the attack.

Tay Ninh under heavy fire

Communist forces mounted a heavy bombardment on the provincial capital of Tay Ninh, 50 miles from Saigon, over the weekend. Saigon spokesmen said at least 121 rounds of rocket, mortar and artillery fire hit Tay Ninh itself and defense posts within four miles of the city on Saturday and early Sunday. In neighboring Cambodia, Communist rebels fired seven Chinese-built 107mm rockets into Phnom Penh's Pochenton International airport, killing four civilians and wounding 27. The rockets, fired at midday, also set an Air Cambodia DC3 plane on fire.

King Faisal of Saudi Arabia and President Anwar Sadat met in Aswan, Egypt, a Nile river winter resort Sunday for talks which Arab diplomatic sources said would focus on latest American peace moves in the Middle East. The sources said the two leaders would examine in particular the American role in getting negotiations under way for a second stage Sinai disengagement agreement.

With hopes of a quick settlement crumbling and talks stalled, the National Guard brought in replacement troops Sunday to man checkpoints around the Alexian Brothers abbey in Gresham, Wis., which has been occupied by armed Indians since Jan. 1. ### Agencies hit on charter air fare issue

A Senate staff study Sunday charged three government agencies — the Department of Transportation, the Civil Aeronautics Board and State Department — with seeking to increase charter air fares without "legitimate justification." The report said the CAB issued guidelines on minimum charter rates which would prevent the carriers from charging less; the Transportation Department put pressure on charter airlines to agree to minimum rates; and the State Department threatened to open negotiations with foreign nations that would lead to higher rates being forced on the carriers unless they agreed to the minimums.

Zarb views higher cost of gasoline

From Herald news services

Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb said Sunday President Ford's new energy proposals may ultimately drive the price of gasoline up higher than the extra 10-cents a gallon previously discussed by administration officials.

The energy chief said the 10-cent figure represents only the average impact cost on all types of petroleum products expected to result from the $3 a barrel tariff increase Ford plans to impose on all imported crude oil.

Although Zarb would not say how much the average price of a gallon of gasoline will rise, he made it clear the 10-cent per gallon price could be exceeded.

It was another body blow to the idea of a nationalized oil industry and followed other events worldwide which only added to the worrisome oil situation:

• In Denver, Sunday, refinery workers set up picket lines at Continental Oil Co. facilities hours after a 24-hour deadline for reaching agreement on a new contract expired. The pickets spread out to locations in five states and new deadlines for contracts with other oil companies were set. A deadline for contract settlement was set for 1 p.m. Chicago time between members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union and Cities Service, Inc. and Phillips Petroleum. The 60,000 member union reached tentative agreement Saturday with the Ashland Oil Corp. covering workers in Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Gulf Oil earlier set the pattern for negotiations with a settlement which will give union members an increase in wages and benefits of 26.8 per cent over two years.

• The Arab newspaper Al-Wattani reported Sunday that the Persian Gulf state of Kuwait may announce complete nationalization of its oil fields next month, despite official disclaimers that the move is still far in the future. Quoting "reliable sources" the newspaper said a formal plan for nationalization may be submitted to the country's highest offices for a quick decision. Presently, Kuwait owns 60 per cent of its oil fields with British Petroleum and Gulf Oil owners of the rest.

Simon sees 8% jobless rate crest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon, the administration's No. 1 economic spokesman, predicted Sunday the nation's unemployment rate will crest at near 8 per cent, and the inflation rate will dip to about 7 per cent by the end of this year.

Simon also said he will continue to serve in the Cabinet and will fight on Capitol Hill for approval of President Ford's economic and energy package.

One day after he met privately with Ford and received the President's reaffirmation of his status as top economic spokesman, Simon said he stands fully behind the President and his program.

House speaker fight resumes today

by BOB LAHEY

The Illinois House of Representatives returns to the marathon chore of selecting a speaker today, with ironic reversals among factions of both major parties.

Two of the controlling factors in the 88-ballot deadlock which has yet to produce a speaker have been "The Rule of 89," engineered by Democrats with the aid of Republicans and the Republican decision to abstain from interfering with election of a speaker from the ranks of the Democratic majority.

The Rule of 89 was formed by Democrats determined to prevent the elevation to speaker of their former party leader, Rep. Clyde L. Chouteau of Anna. Passed in the initial vote of the 79th General Assembly, it requires that a majority of all elected representatives — rather than just those present for the voting — is required to elect a speaker.

The rule was passed to forestall expectations that GOP members would cooperate in electing Chouteau by absenting themselves from the House in order to reduce the number of Democratic votes needed to elect Chouteau.

Almost simultaneously, Republicans, who feared the election of Chouteau through cooperation of some of their members succeeded in passing a "binding" resolution in GOP caucus that no Republican would vote for a Democratic speaker.

Once the combined forces succeeded in stopping Chouteau, however, efforts to elect the "reform" alternate, Rep. William A. Redmond, D-Bensenville, fell short of success. After prolonged balloting, Democrats who helped pass the Rule of 89, began making noises about rescinding it in the hopes of obtaining the Republican aid which had been denied to Chouteau.

Similarly, anti-Chouteau Republicans began agitating for reversal of the caucus rule so they could cross over the aisle to help elect Redmond, as they had feared others might do for Chouteau.

Through 51 ballots in which they have been unable to elect Redmond, his supporters have shied away from an attempt to throw out the Rule of 89, probably because none is willing to publicly propose the move and most are reluctant to go on record as opposing now what they held to be a necessary reform two weeks ago.

Similar pressures held the Republicans firm behind their leader, Rep. James (Bud) Washburn, Morris, until a freshman from Redmond's DuPage County district indicated last Thursday that he would bolt the caucus and vote for Redmond.

Some Democrats backing Redmond reported after the uproar over the defection by the GOP freshman, Rep. Lee Daniels, Elmhurst, that he was firm in his intention to vote for Redmond again today.

Experienced Republicans, however, predicted that Daniels would be subjected to intense pressures by party leaders and will be firmly back in the Republican fold today.

Gunfire hits London hotels

LONDON (UPI) — Gunmen shooting from cruising automobiles fired machineguns into two fashionable London hotels Sunday night and Scotland Yard said seven persons were injured.

Scotland Yard detectives said they were investigating whether the attacks came from the Irish Republican Army which formally terminated a 25-day cease-fire Friday. The IRA was blamed for a similar hotel attack last month.

In the first shooting, the gunmen ridged the ground floor Captain's Cabin restaurant of the Portman Hotel on Portman Square. Four women and a man were hospitalized but only the man was wounded. None of the injured was in serious condition, Scotland Yard said.

In the second attack on the Carlton Towers hotel in Belgrave 1.5 miles away, two persons were wounded in the establishment's Rib Room restaurant.

There was no immediate information of the identities or nationalities of the injured.

He also took a hard swipe at the South, stating "I'm not crazy about playing in the South. There's too much hate and bigotry. I feel uneasy."

MUSCLES STRAIN as Fremd High School students work tests. Marine Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne and two other out on the U. S. Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness Marine sergeants conducted the tests last week.

Almost isn't good enough in Marine fitness tests

by DOROTHY OLIVER

He sucked in his breath, tightened his muscles and started the painful ascent of the chinning bar for the 13th time. He struggled, pulled up his legs, gasped and dropped to the mat after coming inches from his goal.

"Pretty good," said the unsmiling Marine in the navy blue sweatshirt as he marked the boy's score sheet and turned his eyes to another red-faced kid straining at the bar.

"Most of the high school kids we work with out here do pretty well," Marine Sgt. William Thompson said as he surveyed the scene and the lines of Fremd High School students waiting their turns.

Thompson, a recruiter from the Marine Corps Palatine office, Sgt. Dennis Roby and Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne of the Chicago recruitment office, have been putting high school students through their paces for weeks, scoring their achievement in U.S. Marine Corp. Youth Physical Fitness tests.

THE TESTS ARE tough and the Marines know it — they must prove their physical fitness four times a year in similar drills.

To achieve a perfect score a high school boy would have to do 30 pullups, 100 situps in two minutes, 60 pushups without resting, 41 squat thrusts in one minute, and jump 9 feet 10 inches in the stankling long jump.

To achieve a certificate of excellence he would have to do 80 situps, 45 pushups, 23 pullups, 34 squat thrusts and jump 8 feet 7 inches, Thompson said.

Scott Lewis won first prize, Tom Tumbarello, second, and Dean Lewis, third.

School may close soon

Gregory site to be sought for program for disturbed

The Northwest Education Cooperative will seek to lease Gregory School in Mount Prospect for the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children if Mount Prospect Dist. 57 decides to close the building.

The NEC governing board agreed Saturday to begin negotiations with Dist. 57 for a three year lease on Gregory School. The school would house the children from the Dwyer elementary program which is now in Dwyer School in Arlington Heights and also the Dwyer junior high school program which is in Hoffman Estates High School.

Dist. 57 has been studying the possibility of closing the building because of declining enrollments and plans a public hearing on the question Tuesday at Gregory School. A citizen's committee has recommended closing the school and has estimated that renting the building would bring in about $861,000 in revenue to the district in the next five years.

NEC OFFICIALS did not disclose how much they plan to offer Dist. 57 for the use of Gregory. Several other agencies, including the Mount Prospect Park District, have expressed an interest in renting the building.

The Dwyer program has about 120 students. NEC officials say the elementary school program has outgrown the eight-classroom Dwyer School building and High School Dist. 211 has said the junior high school program will not be able to use Hoffman Estates High School next year.

In other action Saturday, the NEC board approved a policy on giving parents access to student records held by the cooperative on 24-hour notice. The policy states that the student's official records will be kept in the district which sends the child to NEC and that NEC student records will be identical to the records held by the local district.

NEC Executive Director Gloria Kinney said that if parents want to challenge anything in their child's records under terms of a new federal law they will go through the procedures set up by their local districts, not directly through NEC.

"It's going to be our responsibility and the responsibility of the member districts to make sure parents know there are two sets of records on their children," she said. "I hope we can make it as easy as possible for parents to have access to their child's records."

Stavros drops charge of unfair treatment

U.S. Attorney's office to investigate the matter.

STAVROS, WHO PLEADED guilty last April to extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers and filing a false income-tax return, is serving a four-year sentence in the federal prison in Lexington, Ky. In exchange for the guilty plea, the government dropped eight additional charges against Stavros, including alleged extortions totalling $121,250.

Elizabeth Stavros, the prisoner's wife, told the judge her husband was denied a furlough over the Christmas holidays because the prison put a restriction on him after talking to his probation officer.

THE JUDGE SAID there is an indication the Federal Bureau of Investigation may have attempted to prevent Stavros from going home. He said, however, that prison officials have informed him that the Christmas leave was denied because Stavros did not meet the criteria.

"I have been told that he has been denied a furlough because he has not been in the Lexington prison for six months," Will said.

Mrs. Stavros said, however, that her husband is being discriminated against because other prisoners, who have been in the prison for less than six months, have been given furloughs.

The judge then said, "There may have been exceptions made for some prisoners, but I can't look into every case. All I know is that he was not eligible under normal prison policy."

"I will accept what Mr. Stone said that he is not classified as a 'special offender' and we'll wait and see what happens," the judge continued. "When the time comes that he is eligible for a furlough we'll see if there are any problems."

Will then offered this advice to Mrs. Stavros. "I would say you could hurt his chance for furlough by being overzealous in your efforts to get him special consideration. I am not interested in giving him privileged treatment. I'm only interested in seeing to it he is treated fairly."

IN REFERENCE TO the possible FBI involvement in the case, Will said the agency "has its ax out" for Stavros and may have relayed its opposition to the furlough to the prison through Stavros' probation officer.

"If that is true, I'll put a stop to it," the judge said. "The probation officer is an arm of this court, not a messenger for the FBI."

Vincent Inserra, supervisor of the organized crime squad of the Chicago office of the FBI, said his office aided the U.S. Attorney's office and the Internal Revenue Service in preparing the government's case against Stavros, but denied the FBI is attempting to keep the prisoner from getting a furlough.

"We have nothing to do with that kind of thing," he said. "The matter of furloughs is up to the judge, the court and the U.S. Attorney's office."

MURRAY HAS SAID Stavros' medical condition is deteriorating and that a furlough would allow his client to see his personal physician. Will said however, that Stavros' attorneys showed no evidence that their client is not receiving proper medical care.

"I find it hard to believe that Lexington, which is supposed to have a first class medical facility, would not give him proper medical care or not keep him informed on his medical condition," the judge said.

Will said he does not think matters pertaining to the quality of medical care or other operations at the Lexington prison fall under his jurisdiction. He said further motions pertaining to the operation of the prison should be filed with the federal court in that area.

Stavros, who has been in prison since June, was transferred to Lexington in November from the federal prison in Sandstone, Minn. Officials said he would receive better medical care at Lexington.

Movers strike over wages, weekly pay

Wages, benefits and guaranteed weekly pay are among the issues involved in a contract dispute that led to a strike by 1,500 area moving van drivers early Friday morning.

Although no immediate bargaining sessions were slated between Teamsters Local 705 and the Movers Assn. of Greater Chicago, association representatives expressed hope that talks would resume early this week.

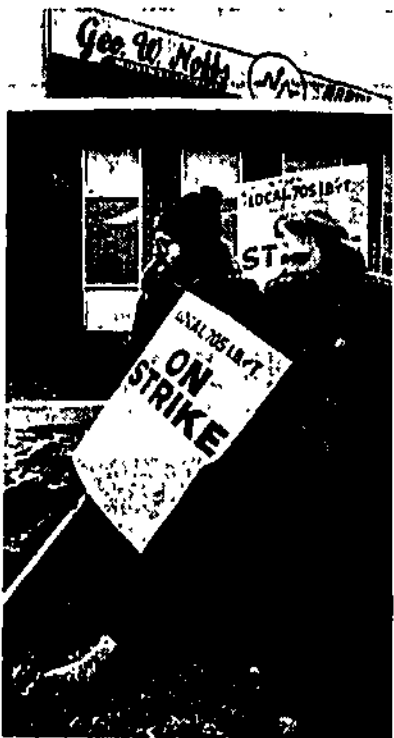

Meanwhile, picket lines were set up on a 24-hour-a-day basis at moving company "barns" throughout Cook County and in portions of DuPage County. Long-distance and local moving operations of 115 companies in the movers' association were shut down by the strike.

Northwest suburban picketing sites included Morgan Storage & Van Co. Inc., 1215 Rand Rd., Des Plaines; Nelson-Westerberg Moving & Storage Co., 1201 Arthur Ave., Elk Grove Village, and George W. Noffs Moving & Storage, Inc., 1735 Davis St., Arlington Heights.

SEVERAL STRIKING TEAMSTERS posted at the George W. Noffs firm Friday afternoon said the major issues involved in the dispute were wages, guaranteed weekly pay, a proposed cost of living wage escalator and fringe benefits. "We'll be out here 24 hours a day," one of the Teamsters said. "Hopefully, Tuesday will be our last day out front." The pickets, who played football in an effort to keep warm, said six-hour shifts were set up at the Noffs site.

The shutdown followed a Tuesday vote by Local 705 members, said a union spokesman Friday. The Teamsters membership voted to extend the strike deadline 48 hours beyond the midnight Feb. 14 contract expiration date.

The union sought a guaranteed 40-hour weekly wage for 80 per cent of the permanent workers employed at each moving company, and wage boosts amounting to 75 cents, 60 cents and 60 cents an hour during a three-year period. The union also asked for cost-of-living increase in wage provisions. Base pay for affected workers is $9.14 an hour plus benefits.

John Westerberg, president of Nelson-Westerberg, said the movers' association countered with an offer of 60 cents, 50 cents and 50 cents an hour boost in wages during a three-year period. Added pension and welfare benefits, eye and dental care and a proposal for a 40-hour work week or equivalent in pay for a percentage of workers also were offered, he said.

Fashion
by KarenPants have their place in a woman's wardrobe

Top fashion designers, for the past year or so, have been heralding the "season of the skirt" with each collection. The return of the skirt seems to be catching on little by little, but pants are by no means becoming extinct.

If you think about it, the skirt never really vanished from the fashion scene. And neither will pants.

The American Designers' Group, which has been previewing collections for the nation's fashion reporters, puts it this way. "Though pants were given a broad bypass in Europe from the French and Italian designers, American designers acknowledge pants' claim to a share of the modern woman's wardrobe, including travel and sports costumes with pants, tops and coats or jackets in most collections."

Designer Pauline Trigere said, "Pants are not passe. I don't believe you can have a complete wardrobe without them."

In fact, you could count on your fingers the number of designers at the shows who skipped pants for spring.

Halston almost bypassed pants. He thinks that every woman "has enough of them in her wardrobe. I think dresses are what it's all about now." It appeared that he was in the minority as other top designers — Bill Blass, Geoffrey Beene, Kasper and Mollie Parnes among others — all included slacks in their collections. Perhaps Halston was just too enamored by his new innovation, the Skimp.

For the lucky people who will be traveling to the sun, sand and sea of Florida, J. C. Penney and Co. may be able to help you out. Or, even if you're not planning a trip to warmer climates, the wardrobes of bright, classic fashions made and designed in Florida may cure your winter doldrums.

"Florida Sun Festival," now taking place at Penney's, includes myriad separates for both men and women, all interchangeable and made to uplift your spirits.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission is moving into women's sleepwear with their flammability drive. Children's sleepwear, already under the federal flammability regulations, was the first step.

Working woman

She's making it as a store management trainee

by BILLIE BACHUBER

"Where there is a will, there is a way" goes an old adage. For spunky Rosemary Eling, divorced mother of five, motivation and hard work bring in the pay check... and promotions.

Rosemary, a private secretary before marriage, is working in a management training program sponsored by Jewel Foods.

"Jewel really has opened the doors to women in management," Mrs. Eling touted the supermarket chain's policy of promoting rights for minority groups in management. "Women are a minority group in management, you know," she added.

Rosemary started out as a part-timer in Jewel's Chef's Kitchen where she worked three years to supplement the family income. Following a divorce about five years ago, she sought permanent employment, briefly considering a return to secretarial work. However, she remained in the grocery store and eventually was promoted to "deli" manager.

"THE PAY AND insurance benefits were good, but I wanted more money and more challenge," she recalled.

Querying her market supervisor about chances for advancement, Rosemary was referred to the grocery supervisor who offered her that kind of opportunity in Jewel's management training program.

Because the program would involve long, late hours away from her children, Rosemary first called a family conference, her usual procedure to deal with family affairs. "This will be no bed of roses," she cautioned the kids. But they responded favorably, eager to assume their share of responsibility at home.

"There was no way I could do it without their help — and the help of Tom and Mary De Bruyne, my next door neighbors who have six children of their own!" said Rosemary.

FIRST STEP in her training — scaled to Rosemary's individual needs — was to leave the Roselle market where she had worked for three years. Commuting to Arlington Heights, she learned to order dairy and frozen food products, and managed those two departments for four months.

From Arlington Heights she went to an Elk Grove Village location where she learned to recognize and to order fresh produce.

Two months later Rosemary moved to Buffalo Grove and there learned how to run the service department, also checking out groceries on computer registers, people-contact jobs she especially liked.

Next Mrs. Eling returned to Roselle for two and a half months to process loads as they came in on trucks. Products were cut, stamped and brought into the store to be put on shelves for sale. "I did it all!" she exclaimed, explaining that this training phase was hard, physical work.

ROSEMARY'S SUBSEQUENT training

NOW THAT JEWEL Foods is encouraging women and other minorities to enter store management training, Rosemary Eling is taking advantage of the opportunity to move ahead. She's already gone through several phases of learning how to run a store and hopes soon to have her own Jewel to manage.

included filling in for a vacationing assistant grocery manager in Morton Grove where she stayed two weeks. From there she was promoted to that same position for three months at Cumberland Jewel Family Center in Des Plaines. Here she keyed-in orders on a MSI computer for the entire store.

"The orders go on tape and at a given time are transmitted by telephone and then processed," she explained.

In December, while continuing on that same job, Mrs. Eling went to another market in Des Plaines to learn security measures and additional office procedures and grocery processing. Following this training she will work at becoming a grocery manager, and finally she will manage her own store.

Up to this point, Rosemary figures the training will total two years. Her ultimate goal in management is to become an operating supervisor in charge of several stores.

JEWEL FOODS is encouraging women to advance in management jobs, said Mrs. Eling. "If you do your job, you are recognized and they back you up," she said.

Rosemary is the kind who "does her job" and then some. She is not working to prove she can do a "man's job."

"I have a family to raise and a house to pay for," she pointed out. On the job she applies the same credo she uses to rear her children: "working together, pulling together."

Son Randy, 19, works at a service station, and Robbie, 17, at a garage. Renee, 16, and Ronald 12, both are active in sports and with Allison, 9, keep busy at school and share home chores. They all look out for one another.

At the market, Rosemary finds no resentment from either female or male co-workers. "I never say, 'You do this' to anyone. Rather, 'This is what we have to get done. Let's do it!'"

Day of information for CCW Thursday

The governing board of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women is sponsoring a "day of information" for district presidents and priest moderators, vicariate officers and priest moderators Thursday, in the Windsor Room of the Pick-Congress Hotel, 520 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the meeting of learning, listening, congeniality and conversation will start at 10 a.m. A luncheon will follow to honor all ACCW district presidents. John Cardinal Cody will address the women.

Representing the vicariate will be Mrs. Robert Rebmam, president, and Mrs. Robert O'Reilly, first vice president, of Elk Grove Village; Mrs. John Trunda, second vice president, Wheeling; Mrs. Chris Tompson, secretary-treasurer, Grayslake; and Rev. James Doherty, moderator, Arlington Heights. Attending from District 3 will be Mrs. Paul Hoppe Jr., president, Arlington Heights and the Rev. Donald Duffy, moderator, Buffalo Grove; and from District 4 Mrs. Walter Lucas, president, Schaumburg, and the Rev. Jerome Rodan, moderator, Hanover Park.

Oakton offering
in spring term

A workshop in improvisational theater conducted by Michael Gellman, an actor with Chicago's Second City Troupe, is the first in a series of three five-week workshops in the arts sponsored by Oakton Community College and MONACEP for the spring semester.

During the five-week module beginning today (Jan. 20), Gellman will explain improvisational theater and lead participants in the experience of spontaneously acting out ideas and situations suitable for dramatic expression.

Norman Siegel will conduct the second module, beginning Feb. 24, on the history and appreciation of folk music.

Painter and sculptor Morcia Kaplan will lead the third workshop, introducing students to the concepts of art for communication and self-discovery. She will come to Oakton April 7.

While the entire 'Artists' Workshop' is available as a course for college credit (IUM 101-44), participation in the individual modules is possible through registration with MONACEP at the cost of $10 per module.

The workshop will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. on the Oakton campus, Oakton and Nagle, Morton Grove. Richard Storing, 967-5120, ext. 344, may be called for more information.

A case of flu

If you've got it, you've got it. You can tell by the fever, chills, nausea and aching muscles. And if you want to put a name to it, call it the flu.

This year's flu is the Port Chalmers strain, so called because it was first isolated in the New Zealand city of that name. When I first read that with my non-stop watering eyes, I began to feel better. At least it didn't sound as bad as the Hong Kong flu types A or B of years back. Then it occurred to me what the implications of the label could be, and I realized that a flu by any other name would still tell the elite.

When one lies around waiting for symptoms to go away, one has a chance to think of strange things (my husband calls this delirium). In this state I wondered how the citizens of Port Chalmers feel about having the currently popular strain of flu named after their presumably fair city.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that no flu viruses in recent history have had American names. Flu conveniently originates somewhere else. Preferably in some mysterious or out of the way place where people are not likely to go to check it out or where the population is too busy merely surviving to complain about a downturn in their city's reputation.

Probably for these reasons one never hears of — or contracts — the Mount Prospect flu (type A or B, depending on which side of the tracks it was first identified). No one has been known to fall ill from a Pasadena strain or a Hartford variety either. I suspect that a lot of credit for this must go to local chambers of commerce and other organizations promoting business and tourism.

But that premise can work two ways. I remember when people first began coming down with the Hong Kong flu. The country was so forewarned that many of us watched anxiously for symptoms. When a person did catch it early in the epidemic, he did not suffer unappreciated. Acquaintances wondered if he had indeed actually been to Hong Kong and possibly brought it home with him — lucky guy.

FOR THE BENEFIT of those who sweat spasmodically and ache all day, it's nice to have a flu bearing the name of some romantic-sounding far-off place. However, I wish they hadn't looked for it in Port Chalmers. New Zealand is all right, but the city itself sounds as if it could be somewhere near Milwaukee.

Maybe next year when I get flu, it will be the Goa, Mbarara, Pamplona or Vladivostok flu. I'll feel better knowing it sounds much worse.

A word about photosynthesis

Dear Dorothy: I agree that it's time we all found out about photosynthesis. Plants do not give off carbon dioxide, in the light or the dark. The complete reaction uses water and carbon dioxide and has two end products — oxygen and sugar. During the light, oxygen is the product. During the dark, sugar (stored in the plant) is the product. However, cut flowers do use a small amount of oxygen as they decompose, but certainly not enough to be significant. Hope this sets things straight.

—Diane Shields

This started many weeks ago when a reader asked if plants in a bedroom might give off enough carbon dioxide to be dangerous. Later, word came that hospitals used to remove green plants from rooms at night, but no longer do since they don't give off enough carbon dioxide or use enough oxygen to be concerned about.

Diane has provided one of the best concise summations one could ask for. What might be added for all who may have forgotten textbooks is that photosynthesis is the most vital process in the life cycle.

Herald opinion

Quality of life can be enhanced

Time now for a little good news, a little breath of hope, a little celebration, a little applause. Time to think about one very bright man and his bright idea.

The man is Peter C. Goldmark, a visionary who is already responsible for color television and the long playing phonograph record. This time, however, the inventor-physicist is turning his attention away from gadgetry to the most fundamental of problems — how we now live and how we will live together at the end of the century.

The answer, according to Goldmark, is the creation of a New Rural Society which is neither suburban nor urban. Instead, the idea is to create a new way of life based on the nation's network of small rural towns just outside the sprawl of the present suburbs.

Goldmark correctly concludes these semi-rural communities will be the next to be swallowed by suburban developers. Why not, he suggests, allow these quiet places to remain as they are and use them for the underpinnings of a new way for people in this country to live.

Government statistics bear out Goldmark's idea. There is something called a "small town revival" going on in the country. Fewer job opportunities in the city, growth in farm income and the decline of single family homesteads in the suburbs all contribute to it. But more than that, people seem to want to go home to the small towns of the country. The suburbs are getting big and their individuality is being pulled under.

Now Dr. Goldmark comes in. In an area in northeastern Connecticut known as the Windham region, Goldmark would like to link 10 rural communities into a communications and medical network which would leave them separate but with a common base of business and technology.

New communities built from scratch are nothing new. Several towns of the Northwest suburbs could qualify for that title as well as the more ambitious projects near Washington, D.C. and elsewhere.

The enchanting thing about Goldmark's idea is that he is not building something entirely new. He is taking what is old and maybe a little worn and blending it with the most modern communications and business practices.

If Windham works — and right now it is too early to say — there are immediate applications for this area which come to mind. The towns now spread northwest of these suburbs are perched on the edge of inevitable union with metropolitan growth. Woodstock, Cary, Fox River Grove, Algonquin are typical of the region.

If what is best about them can be saved, it will be worth the try.

Come here, you beautiful dream!

Playing second fiddle

Will Rocky be satisfied?

by RICHARD H. GROWLAND
UPI Senior Editor

In the Old Executive Office Building next to the White House, an aide to Nelson A. Rockefeller leans forward in a tan leather chair and presses his fingers together, straining to recall the vice president's words.

The aide shuts his eyes and quotes Gerald R. Ford's vice president as saying, "Ten years ago I couldn't have done it. I had that burning ambition to be president. Now I just want to do a good job for Jerry."

This is one reason senior aides and friends say relations between Ford and Rockefeller are as good as they seem to be.

A Rockefeller aide says his chief would be happy to be Ford's running mate in the 1976 presidential election.

"If Ford wants him as his vice presidential candidate in '76, if things have gone OK, Rockefeller would go and take it," the aide said.

WILL ROCKEFELLER be forever content to let Ford play first fiddle? "Nelson has made it clear that if he disagrees strongly enough, he will come out publicly and say so," the aide said.

"Look, Nelson tried three times for the presidency. He got booted by his own party convention. He's also 66 years old," said the senior adviser to Rockefeller.

In the White House a senior adviser to the President makes a face when a visitor cites recent newspaper columns saying Donald Rumsfeld, Ford's chief of staff, has formed a guard around the Oval Office to protect the President from Rockefeller's ambitions.

"No. Not true," says the Ford adviser. "You know what Don said the other day? He said, 'If I was a betting man, I would bet these two men — Ford and Rockefeller — will make it work.'"

Donald M. Rumsfeld

Nelson A. Rockefeller

"It" is a unique relationship perhaps. FORD PUBLICLY refers to Rockefeller as his "partner." He ordered that his vice president be the one person who needs no appointment to enter the Oval Office. The president ordered that Rockefeller be in every "major meeting" in the White House.

"You know," a Rockefeller aide said with pride and perhaps a little awe, "Ford ordered his staff to treat us as part of them. The barriers are down."

"Ford is an unusual man. He has no hangups, no vanities about the Rockefeller juggernaut coming down here from New York," the vice presidential assistant said.

"Like during the time before Nelson was confirmed, Senate Republican Minority Leader Hugh Scott advised Nelson to say nothing on political issues until he was confirmed. It would perhaps embarrass the President as well as his confirmation chances."

"Well, Rockefeller tried. But he's been in public life a long time and he spoke out a couple of times. Did he hear from Ford? No, he did not."

"In fact, it was Nelson who phoned Ford and said he hoped he hadn't done wrong. And the President said not to worry about it."

ACCORDING TO friends, the two men enjoy an easy relationship.

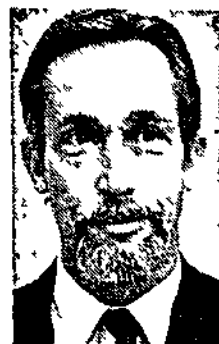

This closeness contrasts with much of recent vice presidential history.

John Nance Garner, after serving eight years as Franklin D. Roosevelt's vice president, judged the office "not worth a bucket of warm spit." Harry S. Truman said later that, as FDR's vice president, he was kept in ignorance of public affairs by his chief.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, asked as President to name a policy contribution by his vice president, Richard M. Nixon, said he could not think of one. Nixon, as president, privately cited having Spiro Agnew as vice president as a reason people should have been pleased to have him remain as chief executive.

Unannounced to the public, Ford and his wife have broken presidential protocol which dictates a chief executive does not go to dine with others but that they come to him and driven out to the Rockefeller house in Washington's Foxhall Road for a private dinner, according to a vice presidential aide.

It is perhaps more a testament to the honeymoon state of their political marriage than to any personal bond.

The lighter side

U.S. insolvency deserves tribute

by DICK WEST

How often, really, do you think about the National Debt? Once a week? Twice daily? Biennially? Never on Sunday?

Even if you checked all of the above, the fact remains that the National Debt occupies only a dim place in the public consciousness.

Congress, for instance, only thinks about it when it comes time each year to raise the debt ceiling another few billion. Yet this common obligation is truly the great bulwark of the American economy.

THOUGHTS ALONG that line were engendered this week by President Ford's State of the Union message in which he reported the National Debt soon would exceed $500 billion.

It is only in times of trouble, such as now, that we realize how much we owe to our capacity for insolvency. I mean apart from the $500 billion.

Think of this — without the National Debt, deficit spending would be impossible. And deficit spending, as everyone knows, is the classic remedy for recession.

Had the government been able to spend only as much as it took in, this country would have gone down the drain long ago.

To counter the current recession, Ford is projecting an annual deficit rate of $30 to $50 billion for a fiscal period that will coincide with America's bicentennial celebration.

MEANWHILE, bicentennial planners are hard on the lookout for ways of commemorating America's attainments. One appropriate project surely would be some sort of tribute to the National Debt, which is among the most impressive attainments of any sovereign state since the world began.

No other people united in nationhood have come close to running themselves into the financial hole of that magnitude.

If only the debt were visible to the naked eye, it would quickly become an object of far renown — the Pyramids, Taj Mahal, Rock City, Tenn., all pale by comparison.

Obviously, it would be impractical to dig an actual hole that deep. But for the bicentennial, the Treasury Department could give the debt form and substance by erecting upon its roof a huge replica of an electronic calculator.

From any point in the capital, visitors could see the plus and minus keys dancing up and down as the digit keys recorded federal revenues and disbursements.

AND IN THE read-out window, flashing numerals would keep a running total of the rise of the public indebtedness.

You've got to believe an exhibit like that would rank with the world's premier tourist attractions. And what an inspiration to the poor, undeveloped nations still struggling to achieve fiscal imbalance!

I thank you so very much for the fine job Monica Perin did on the article about Theos. She certainly was able to grasp the goals and concepts of Theos and used her talents to communicate it to many people.

We have had numerous responses from people and are now beginning a new chapter in Des Plaines.

True sportsmanship

Mortal enemies? Consider Wheeling and John Hersey high schools located a few miles apart from each other in the Northwest suburbs. On the football field, the basketball court or in band competition, they are fierce rivals and vicious competitors.

But last week the two schools showed an understanding that such fierce competitions, at times, must be overshadowed by unselfish brotherhood.

After a Friday night basketball game, last year's Hersey senior class donated $100 towards the restoration of Wheeling High School's library, destroyed by a fire last

The money was left over in the class treasury, so the class members decided to help their neighboring school. It drew the following reaction from Wheeling's principal, Thomas Shirley:

"It's gifts like this which will help make our library better than it was before. It will be nice to include on the library appreciation plaque the Hersey High School class of 1974."

In times of crisis, it's good to know you can count on a friend, even if that friend is an "enemy" on the playing fields of interscholastic competition.

Wise Cabinet choices

The fact that William T. Coleman Jr. is black may have been a factor in his nomination as U.S. Secretary of Transportation, but what's far more important are his excellent qualifications for the post.

Coleman, a Philadelphia lawyer with a long record of public service, has worked as a legal counsel in helping Philadelphia and Cincinnati buy local transit systems and in transportation labor matters. Those qualifications should aid him in the Transportation department.

As well as serving as a member of the board of directors of Pan Am — a post he says he'll resign if confirmed as Transportation secretary — Coleman is president of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and helped write the NAACP's Supreme Court brief in the historic 1954 school desegregation case.

Coleman's nomination coincides with that of Edward Levi, president of the University of Chicago, as U.S. Attorney General. We've already expressed our satisfaction with Levi's qualifications; both men should be speedily confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

Letters to the fence post

Reader report on postal problems asked

If this letter makes it to The Herald office in 1975, maybe we, the public in Arlington Heights, can spark a real investigation of our local post office — not just to discover the problems and inefficiencies, but to help with solutions for better service. Several months ago I called The Herald to suggest such an investigation after having many letters and packages addressed to my home returned to the sender. One friend now writes on each letter she mails to me, "Postmaster, this address is correct. Please deliver."

I called The Herald office today, Jan. 15 with the same story; however, the letter and check I am waiting for was mailed from Arlington Heights on Jan. 7. When the sender of my check inquired a few days later about lack of delivery, he discovered someone else was also concerned about his check which had been sent from New York — and had been returned four times!

Therefore, if you, too, are wondering how much mail is being sent to you that you will never know about or have experienced any postal problems, call The Herald. This is one time I would fully like to exercise the public's right to know what is going on.

Is it true that we have only an acting postmaster? Is it true that on the regular postmen's day off that the post office falls apart? Is it true that the turnover in employment is big? Is your mail being delivered to a neighbor's address and her mail being delivered to you? This is especially interesting when two different mail carriers are involved on two different routes. Please . . . tell us how the post office works, their problems and how we can help.

Ford speech 'unenlightening'

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 13, President Ford made several sweeping statements. His address was enlightening because it was so unenlightening. He advised conservation again. But the impression was that it would not affect the monopolies of this country. Mr. Ford made statements in regard to foreign and domestic allocations and conditions, but of no way or plan to achieve this. He encouraged capital spending, which would increase a capital deficit, but no new or concrete system or plan for the national economy.

His speech sounded good and was rhetorical, but each statement meant little and had no solution to any of our problems. The gist of it was that we will have a further deficit in the government. The only good note was his promise of no new federal spending. How could our government, under the present circumstances, do otherwise? He promised no tax burden on low income people. Well, of course not, they couldn't pay it in the past. So, as usual, the burden of taxation will fall on the, by now, very worn shoulders of the middle-income group. Would that for once, the leader of our nation, could devise a way the billionaires to share the greater part!

President Ford's address was blurred, difficult to pinpoint. Although we are 200 years in the future from the formation of the United States of America, and are classed as a young country in the history of civilized nations, the conditions that made us a power in the world: independence, democracy and truth, remain the same.

Can the leaders of our country no longer speak to us in precise words we can take to heart and follow? As Patrick Henry said in 1774, freely and without reserve, "to know the whole truth; and to know the worst and provide for it." Americans have always been able to accept the truth — and now we need it more than ever.

The almanac

Today is Monday, Jan. 20, the 20th day of 1975 with 345 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Polish-American pianist Joseph Hoffman was born Jan. 20, 1876. American actress Patricia Neal was born 49 years ago today.

On this day in history:

• In 1892, the first officially recognized basketball game was played at a YMCA training school in Springfield, Mass. The game was invented by Dr. James Naismith.

• In 1936, King George V of Britain died.

• In 1969, Richard Milhous Nixon was inaugurated as the 37th president of the United States. He was inaugurated for a second term on this date in 1973.

• In 1972, an airplane hijacker was captured, with Air Force aid, after collecting $50,000 ransom and parachuting out of the plane over Colorado.

A thought for the day: British poet Phillip Bailey said, "It matters not how long we live, but how."

Third try's the charm for first balloon crossing of Lake Michigan; two-man team also set a record for flight over open water—and costs

by JOE SWICKARD

The thin light of dawn was bleak on the frozen fields of Palwaukee Airport. The crew was hustling to make last minute connections and adjustments of the equipment that would fill the balloon to its full 63-foot height.

With a rushing blast, the burners were ignited and the curious jumped back involuntarily. The groundcrew took advantage of the momentary start of the on-lookers to gain more room to work.

Paul Woessner and Stephen Neulander made the same last-minute statements they had given by telephone and at the two previous abortive launches. Yes, they were going. They were experienced and they would make it. They were not the Evei Kneivels of the balloon world.

And thanks to the support and faith of Louis Zahn and his drugstore chain, they were on their way.

MOVING STIFFLY in their wetsuits and snowmobile jumpers ("We're just like Charlie Brown. If you fall down, you have a hell of a time getting back up again."), Neulander, 41, and Woessner, 22, clambered into the aluminum gondola.

The gondola is small to begin with—perhaps four-feet by four-feet—and even that space is further limited by the radio and navigational gear they were carrying. The aeronauts would stand all the way across Lake Michigan.

Newsman and camera crews, all bundled against the subfreezing temperatures in parkas and convoy coats, crowded out the merely curious at the launch site. Parents, with youngsters still sleepy-eyed, parked along the highway awaiting the ascension. Fathers, glancing at wristwatches, were going to be late for the office.

Friday morning was really go for the Magnificent Ratfour, the star-banded orange and gold hot-air balloon that would attempt the first crossing of Lake Michigan. Already, the flight had been scrubbed twice because of improper wind conditions.

Neulander, the flight spokesman, sought to reassure. "We are really going to go. We mean to do it. We don't like the delays any better than you. I promise you—we are going to go."

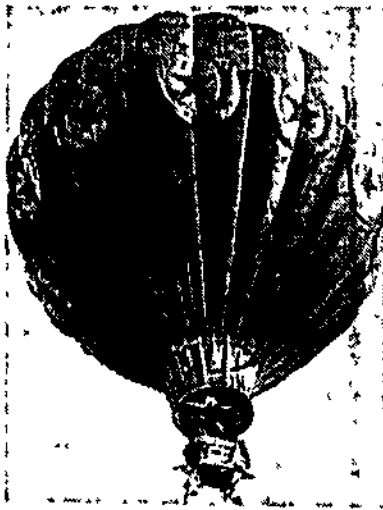

"We are not Bobby Sparks. We live

Seminars to explain disclosure laws

The Illinois Board of Elections has announced plans for three seminars later this month to explain new campaign disclosure laws to candidates in the spring municipal elections.

The meetings will be held at the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle Jan. 27; Oak Lawn High School Jan. 28, and New Trier High School Sat. Jan. 29.

All three sessions will begin at 8:30 p.m. The meetings are open to the public as well as to city officials and candidates.

THE MAGNIFICENT Ratfour rises above Palwaukee Airport Friday morning on its record-setting way to South Haven, Mich. Stephen Neulander and Paul Woessner were the first men to cross the lake by balloon. They also set, with the 80-mile flight, a record for travel over open water by balloon.

right here. We aren't going back to Pennsylvania," he said.

SPARKS, THE recreation and social director of a Pennsylvania resort, spent a week in 1972 giving interviews and reassurances in an Evanston park. Under the shadow of Mt. Trashmore (a landfill heap converted to a toboggan run), Sparks, in a double-knit jumpsuit decorated with balloon figures, promised he would sail across the lake.

Damning the winds, Sparks left the state after a week waiting.

Friday was the third morning at Palwaukee for Woessner and Neulander and this time they were going to go. Louis and Mel Zahn, their sponsors ("We agreed not to talk about the cost. Just say it's in the upper four figures"), clapped their hands together in enthusiasm and for warmth. It was going to come off OK.

Microphones and cameras were thrust at the pilots. The farewell words were lost in the noise of the propane burners. A child was pushed into the basket and photographers scrambled to get the adventurer kissing his baby goodbye.

UNEXPECTEDLY, the balloon began lifting. It was 7:35 a.m., a full 25 minutes before the scheduled launch. Maybe it was just a short lift to test the burners.

No. It kept rising. People, looking like Dorothy when the balloon left Oz, watched its slow sideways rise to the northeast.

Cameras clicked and whirled. Spectators shielded their eyes against the unfil-tered morning light. No one cheered.

The balloon, looking even larger, moved steadily to the northeast. About 7:57 a.m., it was reported to have crossed the lakeshore near Highland Park and turned easterly.

Pushed along at 20 knots at 9,000 feet, Neulander and Woessner were over Michigan 3 hours and 19 minutes later. They were right on target near South Haven, Mich., 80 miles from Palwaukee, and sooner than expected.

They had done it. A newspaper marketing executive and an insurance salesman were the first to cross the lake by balloon and set a record for flight over open water.

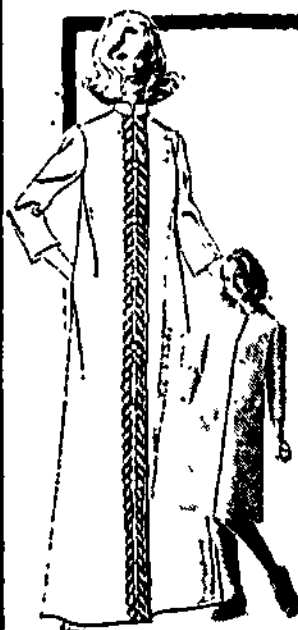

They gulped champagne from the bottle and kissed their wives, who had followed them in a chase plane. It was over. Soon they would leave the Michigan farm field and go back home.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Bones soften with age

I would appreciate anything you can tell me about osteoporosis of the spine. I was told I have it and that I can never work again. Also not to bend forward.

Then I read in a paper that exercises of some form should be done. I am taking calcium pills, but the healing process is very slow.

Could you also tell me how long it takes to get over it and if the hot sun has anything to do with it? I am in pain most of the time. I am in my late 60s.

Osteoporosis is softening of the bones. The vertebra may collapse or break as bone is lost. The mild form is the woman with the dowager hump. It starts after the menopause in many women and about 20 years later in men. It is five times as common in women who are on a calcium-deficient diet. That is the big reason I always suggest that women get the equivalent of one quart of milk a day in their diet.

The pain is caused from the pressure on nerves associated with degeneration of the vertebra or actual collapse of one or more vertebra. Incidentally, the hot sun has nothing to do with it.

There are many difference opinions about how to treat this problem. That usually means none of the measures recommended is too successful.

One reader wrote to me about his mother who had severe pain and did not respond to diet and increased calcium. He said she improved dramatically when calcium was given by vein (If your doctor is interested in the reference, it is American Journal of Medicine, July 1969, page 7, by Dr. Frederic C. Bartter).

DOCTORS JENIFER JOUSEY and Lawrence Riggs at the Mayo Clinic contend on the basis of their research that a combination of fluoride (the same substance as the dentists recommend for teeth), calcium and vitamin D is the only treatment method that offers a chance of completely stopping or curing the condition. (Postgraduate Medicine, October 1982)

Meanwhile, two British physicians, Doctors Gallagher and Nordin, contend that giving the female hormone estrogen at the time of menopause or when the ovaries are removed surgically prevents the problem. Jousey and Riggs say that female hormones at best only arrest and usually only slow the bone loss.

Still another report is from Dr. Roy Beauchene and co-workers at the University of Tennessee. Their studies showed that fluoride alone improved the bone and helped to restore bone calcium better than treatment with calcium, phosphorus, vitamin D and supplemental vitamins alone or in combination with fluoride.

Exercises sometimes do help if they are the proper ones designed to strengthen the muscles between the shoulder blades and along the back. The idea is to keep the spine that supports your chest cage from collapsing.

I think you can see from these problems that it is important to have a doctor evaluate your individual case and help you in a program to prevent any further progression of your disease. This usually involves diet, medicine and a proper type of exercise program for appropriate cases.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Clubs need an expert's touch

Jim: "South knew enough about dummy play to see that there was no time to develop any diamond tricks. The opponents would get their spades in first. He also had some idea about how to play the club suit. He won the spade in his hand; led a club to dummy's ace and a club back to his ten. East showed out. West had two club stoppers and South came up two tricks short of his contract."

Oswald: "A little expert knowledge would have helped declarer. In fact it would have made the difference between down two and game and rubber."

Jim: "One sees easily that the contract is going to make any time the East-West clubs divide 3-2. South's problem is to try to guard against a 4-1 split. If South had enough entries to dummy, he could lead to the ace and bring the contract home any time West held the singleton queen or jack. But that won't be any good here. The only 4-1 combinations he can guard against are those that find East with a singleton nine or eight. South should lead the ten of clubs and let it ride if West ducks. If West covers, South wins; leads low back to his seven to leave West with jack five and then takes the proven finesse against him."

American Airlines gets OK for day-coach fare cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hoping to lure more passengers back to the air, the Civil Aeronautics Board Friday approved an American Airlines proposal offering day-coach excursion flights longer than 1,500 miles.

At the same time, however, the board turned down similar day-coach discounts proposed by United Airlines, Trans World Airlines and Northwest Airlines and a night coach excursion discount proposed by American.

A CAB statement said the discount proposals by the other airlines were rejected because they failed to include "blackout periods" during which the reductions would not be in effect. It said American had not proved the need for a night excursion discount.

The new American day coach excursion fare will be in effect from Feb. 1 through Jan. 31, 1976.

UNDER TERMS approved by the CAB, American will offer a 20 per cent reduction on regular day-coach fares during the peak season, June 15 to Sept. 15, for passengers purchasing excursion tickets on flights of at least 1,500 miles. For the off-peak season, the discount will go up to 25 per cent.

"Since air traffic has historically reflected the ups and downs of the general economy . . . some credence can be given in the present situation to carrier forecasts of little if any traffic growth in 1976," the CAB said.

"In those circumstances," it said, discount fares might help to offset the declining passenger levels.

The board also emphasized its American rate decision did not indicate any belief that excursion discounts should be limited to very long flights.

IT CALLED DISCOUNTS "significantly less" effective in short-haul markets, but said "it is quite possible that such fares could be productively generative in the medium-haul markets . . . in the 1,000 and 750 mileage range."

In turning down the American night-coach excursion fare proposal, the board said the airline had not shown its new day-coach excursion rate would draw passengers away from night flights.

Night-coach fares already are lower than day fares, the board said, and added a night-coach excursion rate would be "in effect a discount on a discount."

Stops Wheeling, 56-51

Cards 6-0 in North after victory

by KEITH REINHARD

Aesthetically, Arlington and Wheeling have done better in previous confrontations.

Both teams earned A-pluses in a couple of other categories Friday night though . . . like tenacity and relentlessness. Give the hosting Cardinals an extra plus since they won the game 56-51.

It was the sixth straight in conference for coach George Zigman and his raiding, pillaging team of handits, allowing them a comfortable two-game margin over the Wildcats, now 4-2. The victory came neither easily nor smoothly however since Ted Ecker's outfit brandishes their own brand of handitry.

"For a team as big and physical as they are, Wheeling is surprisingly quick," Zigman suggested. "Outside of LaGrange (a team that has beaten both the Cards and 'Cats this season), they're the best ballclub we've faced all year."

The key then, to the game, was the ferocious defense thrown up by both squads. It was to the credit of the visitors that they prompted 27 Redbird turnovers — as many as Zigman is used to seeing his charges commit in two or three games combined — but it was to the credit of Arlington conversely that despite their benevolence afield and an equally frustrating night at the line, they were still able to win.

A couple of moves by Arlington — one a downright gamble — probably made the difference. One was the permanent insertion of 6-11 Jim Grandt into the lineup late in the first half.

The other was the decision to let Jerry DeSimone ride it out after getting tabbed with three quick personals.

"Leaving Jerry in was a tough choice to make," Zigman recalled. "It could have easily backfired. As it turned out though, the choice was a good one. He was overly aggressive in the early going and the fouls forced him to play a little more conservatively."

Grandt, on the other hand, came on like a time bomb and never did unwind. He was a demon on the boards, tied up Wheeling's 6-10 center Steve Criss on three occasions and bettered him on the jump, and contributed eight valuable second half points.

Criss got in some jabs too though. In the first quarter he sparked a Wheeling offensive that hiked his team into a stunning 19-9 command. Arlington was only able to convert a couple times from the floor during that first eight-minute segment and found itself trailing by eight at quarter's end.

The momentum transferred just as dramatically away from the guests in the second stanza. A cooler DeSimone hit two long distance jumpers and John Yeazel and Dennis Gaare were also bombing away while the Cards were outscoring Wheeling 15-7 to forge a 26-26 midgame standoff.

In the second half Wildcat Ed Kruk moved into high gear and the visitors pulled out in front again 33-32. Arlington rallied however before the third quarter ended on a couple of inside buckets by Terry Donahue, shaving Wheeling's lead to two.

Yeazel plunked in a pair from the line to open the final period, knotting the game at 42-all and Grandt's 10 footer put the Cards on top. Criss connected on a nifty ten-foot turnaround jumper from the baseline moments later but it was the last time the guests were to pull even.

With 5:24 left on the clock Gaare connected in a crowd underneath, was fouled, and pitched in the gratis throw. The gap was never less than three after that.

Prospect shows strength in impressive 75-54 win

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Prospect and Elk Grove played both ends against the middle Friday night as the Knights started to step away from the rest of the folks in the MSL South Division with a 75-54 victory.

The Grens outscored Prospect by three over the second and third periods but the Knights ripped Elk Grove badly in the first and fourth for their sixth straight conference win. Elk Grove, tied for second with Forest View going into the game, slid to 4-2 and, coupled with the Falcons' win over Rolling Meadows, third place.

"I'll tell you this much," said Prospect coach Bill Slayton, "both of those teams out there tonight played themselves to exhaustion. I know we didn't have anything left in us when we came off the floor and I don't think Elk Grove did either."

"Elk Grove showed just super hustle. I think we just had a little more material than they did."

The imbalance in talent showed up early when Elk Grove tried to run their offense inside. Joe Parmentier and Greg Kelley led the Grens in scoring with 14 apiece but in the first quarter, when the Knights took a 21-8 lead, the closest shots they could get were from 15 feet.

And when Parmentier and Kelley did make some penetration by driving the lane the Knight forest of Doug Bonthron, Paul Withey and Al Black slapped the ball away.

Bonthron had a shaky start and let several passes go through his hands underneath the basket. He settled down, though, and hammered Elk Grove inside for 26. Withey added 21.

Elk Grove's best eight minutes of basketball came in the third period when they topped Prospect, 19-16. Elk Grove had Parmentier on the bench at the start with four fouls and Prospect's Mike Quade was in similar straits.

The remaining Grens on the floor scrapped at the Knights where they could, fronting the big men, making steals and getting some layups off the break. But the closest they could come to the lead was eight points.

"We let down a little there in the third quarter," Slayton said, "and stopped moving the ball. But except for that period I think we moved it well, although we're capable of doing better."

The movement of the ball inside, particularly, worked especially well and afforded Bonthron and Withey numerous layups. In the fourth quarter, when Prospect topped the Grens 21-10, Bonthron leapt over the dwarfed Grove front line for 11 of his points and compounded the frustration the Grens were having on the boards.

Steve Carson, Jeff Smith and Dave Hornacek teamed up for 25 rebounds but Prospect grabbed 50 and kept the Grens from collecting a single offensive rebound in the final period.

"Elk Grove gave us a ballgame tonight," Slayton said. "I know when they play us again it will be closer than this."

Buffalo Grove handles Hersey in two overtimes

by ART MUGALIAN

If Buffalo Grove basketball coach Paul Grady notices a few gray hairs this morning when he looks in the mirror, well, that's all right. He's in a profession where quick aging is the rule.

And Grady will gladly accept those perils because his Bison cagers are also aging — only in their case the process is called maturation.

Buffalo Grove's 67-62 double-overtime victory over Hersey Friday not only delighted a wildly excited bunch of Bison backers — it also represented a high-water mark for Grady's boys. It proved to the coach that his team is for real.

"This game was a fantastic learning experience," Grady said after his squad had improved its Mid-Suburban League record to 3-3. "We're playing with kids, and they didn't lose their composure out there. Our shot selection was superb in the second overtime."

Trailing 62-61 on a three-point play by Hersey's Tom Frye, the Bison made their move. Brian Allsmiller located Fred Heesch under the basket with a perfect pass and Heesch put the ball up and in. A moment later, Allsmiller hit a 12-footer from the corner and Buffalo Grove led by three. The Bison got the ball back and killed nearly a minute and a half before Tom Stonerook put in a final clincher.

The star of the game for Buffalo Grove was, as usual, the 6-7 sophomore Allsmiller. With 30 points, 11 rebounds, and a double of blocked shots, the rangy forward drew unrestrained praise from his coach. Allsmiller played the last 13 minutes with four personal fouls.

"I thought Brian played a super game," said Grady. "I'm just out of adjectives to describe the job he does for us. When he got his fourth foul, my assistant coach asked if I wanted to take him out. I said no, he's got to be in there — and he played very intelligent ball."

But Allsmiller wasn't the whole show and Grady knows it. Junior George Bastable put on a remarkable defensive display by limiting Hersey's Clyde Glass to six points. The 6-5 Huskie junior came into the game with a 20-point average, but Bastable held him to just two shots in the first half. Heesch contributed four big buckets in the second half and soph guard Mike Ledna had 11 points. Scott Groot added eight.

"Our bench did a terrific job tonight," Grady said. "The whole bench picked us up."

The loss dropped Hersey into last place in the North division of the MSL at 1-5. Coach Roger Steingraber watched his club erase an early 11-point deficit and take a 39-35 lead with two minutes to play in the third period. Then Allsmiller went back to work, hitting consistently from 10 to 15 feet.

The Huskies got good performances from Juniors Tom Burzak (16 points), Steve Spacearelli (nine), Mark Knuttel (nine), and Scott Topczewski (seven). Frye, just a soph, added 13.

Two steals by Knuttel and a pair of last-second free throws by Glass sent the game into overtime.

For Grady, the season is just starting to get interesting. "If somebody had told me we'd be 8-6 at this point, I'd have jumped at it," he said.

Falcons run past Mustangs

by JIM COOK

It took Forest View the better part of three quarters to get traction against Rolling Meadows' slippery defense, but once the roadrunner Falcons found room, it was "Beep! Beep!" and a smashing 76-46 triumph.

In keeping one step behind undefeated Prospect, Forest View (5-1) exploded from a 46-40 edge late in the third quarter by outscoring the Mustangs, 30-6 over the final nine and one-half minutes.

Prospect swimmers romp

The Prospect Knights totalled winners in seven events Thursday during their 114-51 non-conference varsity swimming triumph over Adlai Stevenson. Tom Cole was a double winner in 200 individual medley, 2:28.0, and 100 freestyle, 56.1.

Remaining individual winning efforts were from diver John Kriescher, 154.65 points, Dwight Squires in 100 butterfly,

"We started running," Falcon head coach Ted Wissen stated simply. "Our kids know that for us to win, we have to run. It keeps us loose and moving."

At the hub of the Forest View movement was 6-4 senior Tony Donle whose game-high 23 points and 12 rebounds keyed the Falcon surge. His rebound conversion of a missed free throw — the third such time he outmuscled the Mustangs on the offensive boards — lifted Forest View out of danger in the tail end of the third period.

"That was his best game of the season for us," Wissen praised. "Mark (Russo) wasn't getting his shots and we usually look to him for scoring, but Tony really picked up the slack. He did it at both ends tonight."

The Falcons put everything together down the stretch, including 13 consecutive points that widened a 58-44 lead into a 71-44 romp.

"We're still trying to find three kids who will give us 100 per cent," Rolling Meadows head coach Ken Arneson disclosed after giving all 13 players on his roster a lengthy workout.

"John Hogan and Steve Breitbell seem to be our whole team and nobody wants to give them any help. We're looking for players who don't think they're beat before they take the court."

Hogan, one of the league's premier outside shooters, hit for 21 points and Breitbell (11) contributed a fine floor game against Forest View's full-court press.

But neither could singlehandedly rectify the Mustangs' jackluster 28 per cent accuracy from the floor nor their 33-27 deficit on the boards.

1:12.8, Mark Halverson in 500 freestyle, 5:57.4, and Tim Ward in 100 backstroke, 1:08.7.

Chris Prinslow, Gary Eichhorst, Ward and Ken Behrens won the 400 freestyle relay in 3:40.3.

Prospect trounced Adlai Stevenson, 124-28, in frosh-soph competition.

Fremd 'rebounds' to top Palatine in 211 feature

by PAUL LOGAN

Big, little and in the middle — all who wore the green and gold also wore smiles Friday night.

Why? Ask any Fremd player and he'll tell you there's nothing like a win after losing five straight games. And making it all the more pleasurable for the Vikings was the fact that arch-rival Palatine was the victim.

"They were the better ball club tonight," said Pirate coach Ron Findrock after the Vikings had rolled to a convincing 79-66 victory at Fremd.

"They had the smaller ball club but they beat the hell out of us on the defensive boards."

Although enjoying a height advantage at almost every position, the Pirates lost the battle of the boards 51-29. Leading the Vikings in that department were Jim Recher (14) and Paul Gillette (11).

Gillette proved to be "Mr. Big" in this first round of the "village championship" because he played both ends of the court. The 6-foot-4½ junior center was making his first start after two games on the sidelines.

"This is the best ball game he's had," said a very happy Leon Kasuboske. Fremd's coach also added, "It looks like he's got his job back now."

"He's got a cold, too, but he was tough," said guard Ken Hanks of his muscular teammate. "That's what we need out of him."

Hanks, Fremd's smallest starter at 5-8½, shared co-starting honors with Gillette with his excellent over-all play. Besides matching big Paul in scoring with 18, the quick senior playmaker registered seven assists, five steals and an added bonus of six rebounds.

With Hanks hitting three of his first four shots, Fremd took a 18-13 first-quarter lead as Palatine could only hit on six of 21 field goals.

Both teams hit nearly half their attempts in the second quarter, but Fremd had a flurry midway in the period to break the fifth and last tie score and go up 32-22. Reserves Paul Stanczak and Kevin Lavin led this assault as Kasuboske continually went to his bench in order to keep his starters in top shape.

A rare five-point play gave Fremd a 42-37 halftime lead. Rick Kolze hit one from 18 feet and was fouled. He sank the first-half of a one-and-one with Gillette rebounding the missed second try.

Both teams continued in their same defensive tactics through the third quarter — Fremd in a man-to-man and Palatine in a 1-2-2 zone. During that period the Vikings doubled their lead despite the fine shooting of Mark Mara.

Mara enjoyed a 17-point second half and led both teams with 26, but Fremd maintained its margin. Helping offset Palatine's big gun over the final 16 minutes was Recher, who tossed in 11 of his 13.

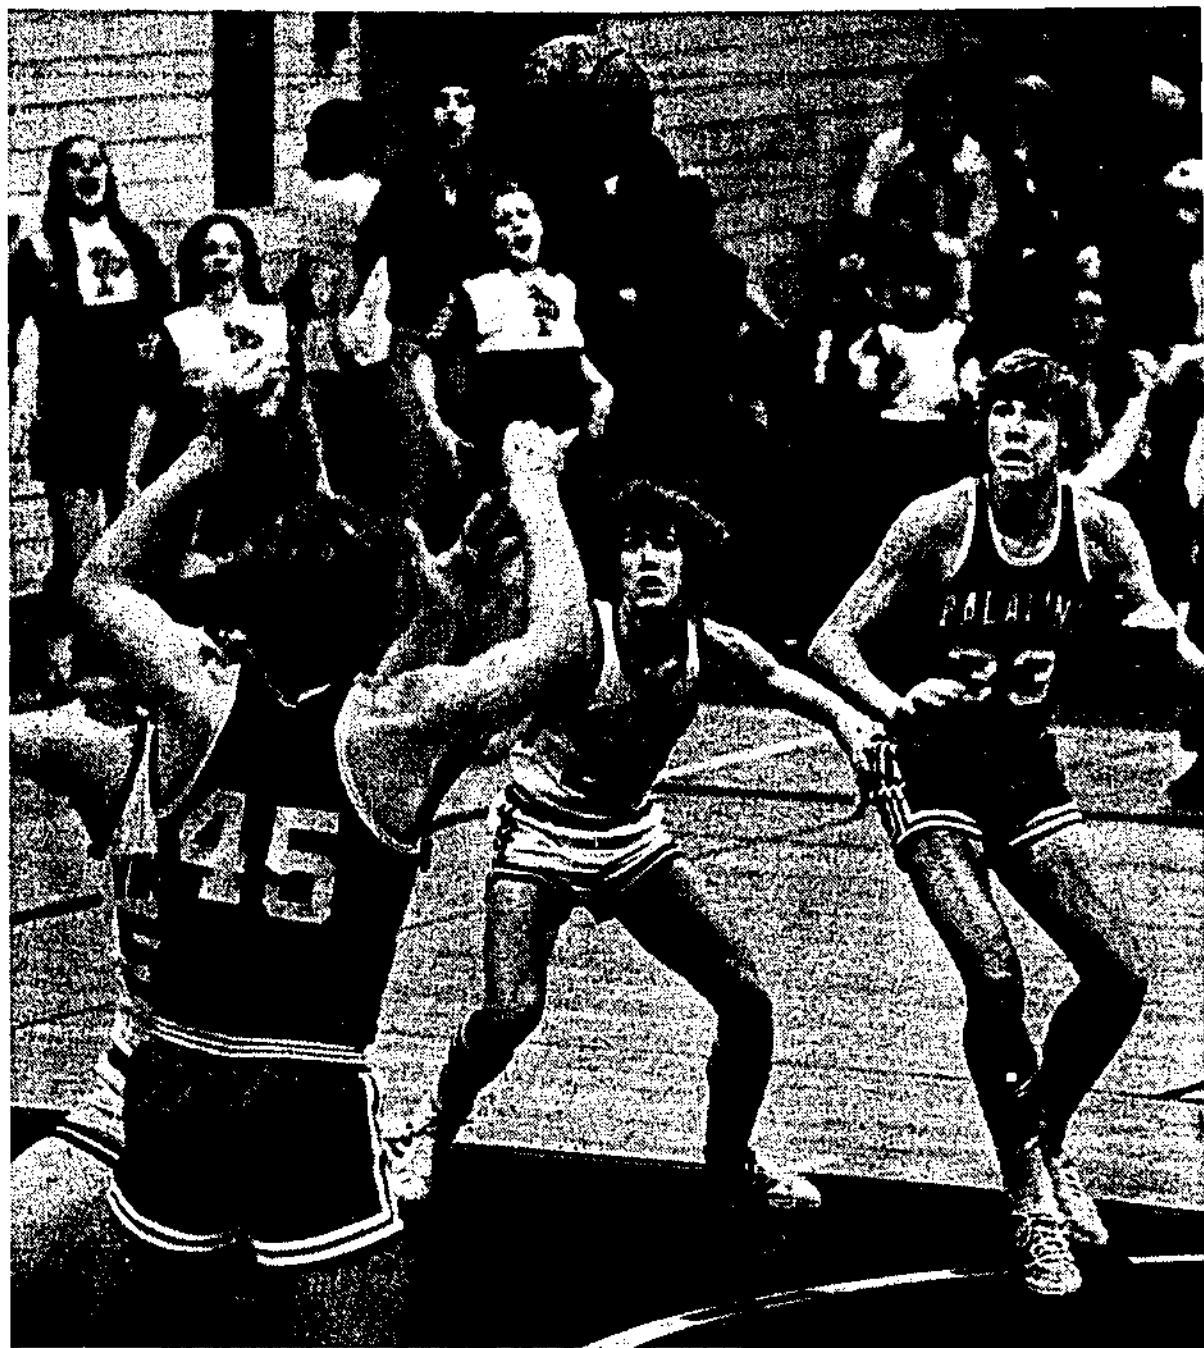

Five Fremd players hit in double figures. Joining Hanks (who was 6 of 10), Gillette (7 of 12) and Recher were Tim Gross and Lavin with 12 and 10, respectively. Kolze was just one basket short with eight points.

Behind Mara were two double figures men — Kevin McKenna with 19 and Jim Maycan with 11.

"We needed that ball game. Everybody played really hard," said Kasuboske, who added that Lavin's defensive play really pleased him.

It was Fremd's second win in the Mid-Suburban League against four losses. Palatine's conference mark is 3-3.

The second "Battle of Palatine" will take place Feb. 4. The Pirates have already marked their calendars. They like to smile, too, after games.

Huskies stop Bison, 24-20, in wrestling

— Details on mat page

by BOB GALLAS

Cold shooting and a technical foul on the part of the Schaumburg Saxons helped Conant gain its first Mid-Suburban League win of the year, 43-40.

The host Saxons, who managed only two baskets and six points the final period, were nevertheless holding on to a 36-34 lead over the equally cold Cougars with four minutes left in the game.

But then Schaumburg was whistled for an offensive foul and things turned around for the Cougars as the Saxons were hit.

Mark Pellegrino hit one of two foul shots and the technical to tie the game.

Getting the ball in bounds because of the technical, the Cougars passed into Ron Sulaski underneath for two more to take the lead for good at 38-36.

Conant's Pete Scalfidi added two baskets to a Mike Frisch free throw to tie the game for Conant, which kept its victory string over the Saxons intact.

The Cougars have beaten the Saxons eight times in eight tries since Schaumburg opened four years ago.

A 2-3 zone defense by the Cougars held Schaumburg's scoring ace Jon McIlraith to his lowest point total ever, which was a key to the Conant victory.

McIlraith, who's averaging close to 20 points per game, was held to only seven points, mainly due to the fine defensive work of the Cougars' big man, Sulaski.

Sulaski, out of practice all week and a doubtful starter because of an ankle injury, opened fire in the first half with 13 points while helping hold McIlraith to five in the first half.

"We didn't think Ron (Sulaski) would play until right before gametime," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger. "We had the ankle on ice during the preliminary game and just before we went out he said it was OK," Redlinger said.

"Maybe I'll hold him out of practice next week too," Redlinger smiled.

The Mid-Suburban League jinx for the Saxons continued to the dismay of Schaumburg coach Joe Breault, whose team sports a 9-1 record in non-conference games, but is 0-6 in the MSL.

Cougars top cold-shooting Saxons

"We peaked against Austin High School in the Christmas tournament and ever since then we'll have a problem on either offense or defense. We can't put them both together," said Breault.

Also in a slump is the Saxons' leading scorer McIlraith, who hasn't been shooting well for the past three games, said Breault.

Breault couldn't help daydreaming a little about what things would be like with his team, with the addition of Cougar starters, Frisch and Pete Scalfidi, who as freshmen played for Schaumburg's 17-1 freshman team.

The two went to Conant as part of a boundary change when Hoffman Estates High School opened.

Junior Ed Chmielek picked up the scoring slack for the Saxons, hitting for 18.

The win pulled the Cougars out of a tie for last in the MSL South with the Saxons. Conant is now 1-5 in MSL play, 5-7 over-all.

Forest View bowls over another league opponent

It was billed as the matchup between last year's state championship team against the third-place team or Forest View versus Schaumburg in bowling.

However, the Falcons appear to be just as loaded or more so this time around as they posted a 9-0 victory over the Saxons at Hoffman Lanes in the Mid-Suburban Conference Thursday.

The victory, paced by the high game of Dale Smart, left the front-running Falcons with a 36-6 record and 55 points. The Saxons are 11-31 and have 16 points. Carri-Lynn Cihak was high for the losers with a 175.

Two teams just missed sweeps as second-place Conant stopped Hoffman Estates 8-1 and third-place Arlington stopped Rolling Meadows 8-1. Mary Chamberlain was tops for the Cougars with 171. Liz Grassl paced Hoffman with a 181.

Fifth-place Prospect, led by the 190 of Annette Krug, beat Elk Grove 6-3. Sandy Boryczak was tops for the Grenadiers with a 184.

Palatine got by Fremd, 5-4, as Paula Mergosian turned in a 181 and Jinny Fomer had a 187.

Smart led all bowlers both in high game and series. This state tourney veteran had a 215 and a 516. Fremd's Fomer had the only other 500-plus series with a 513.

Meeting Tuesday at 4 p.m. at Rolling Meadows Bowl will be these teams — Palatine and Hoffman Estates, Prospect and Fremd, Elk Grove and Schaumburg, Arlington and Conant and Rolling Meadows and Forest View.

Rough weekend for St. Viator five

by MIKE KLEIN

The red streaks in his eyes that almost turn into tears indicate whether Steve Antrim cares when his St. Viator Lions lose a basketball game.

He cares. Anyone can see that. And perhaps Antrim cares more than some other coaches might.

That's because his Lions were not figured to win many games this season. They've already got six. And when Viator came close to a seventh Saturday night, but lost, Antrim was quiet and shaken.

Blown away by 24 points Friday at Marist, 59-35, the Lions held Notre Dame to nine or fewer points during three-of-four regulation periods in the Dons' gymnasium.

But they couldn't match Notre Dame in overtime, losing 39-37 when senior center Pete Calabrese rebounded and scored with Rich Ferina's missed shot as four seconds remained. The frustrated Lions, now 6-9 overall, never got a final play underway.

The Lions did almost everything correctly Saturday night except win. They outscored Notre Dame in field goals, 17-15, and had only the usual problems breaking the Dons' full-court press which was shown throughout the contest.

Antrim even made an art of using three at 0:04, fourth period. That's when Viator led, 35-34 but Paul Kastner had been whistled for fouling Ferina.

Three times, Ferina went to the line. And each occasion, the Lions wouldn't let him shoot, stopping the game. When he finally did fire the ball, Antrim's little play had worked.

Ferina missed his first shot as Lion fans roared and those dressed in green groaned. But he converted the second shot as the game became 35-35 with just those four precious seconds to play.

Viator moved the ball upcourt but Bill Foreman's long jumper from the right-side baseline never got near the bucket.

Viator center Glenn Girard controlled the overtime tip and with the exception of a brief turnover that was stolen back, the Lions had possession for almost two minutes.

Then at 1:14, Kastner was called for pushing Ferina and Notre Dame finally got to dribble the ball. But they bothered for just 10 seconds as Calabrese handed to Kevin Perion who scored his only field goal for a 37-35 lead at 1:04, overtime.

With Kastner and Ralph Casciaro mainly handling the ball, Viator worked the clock down to one-half minute, then used the one timeout allowed during overtime.

They chopped off another 15 seconds before Girard went toward the basket but was fouled by Calabrese. In the bonus, Girard missed his first shot, as the Lions did in all three one-and-ones they were given.

But when Foreman rebounded, Calabrese hacked him on the shot attempt. Foreman sank one shot, then his second without hesitation and at 0:13, it was 37-37. The Dons called time.

It was obvious that Notre Dame would move toward Ferina or Calabrese, their best shooters and rebounders, for the final offensive thrust. And that's exactly what happened.

Ferina took the sideline in-bounds pass, drove downcourt and tried a fade-away jumper from the right side, about 12 feet. When it didn't drop, Calabrese snuck underneath, swept the ball up and sank a bunny in one quick move.

And that was the ballgame.

It had been grit and guts from the outset as Notre Dame, before its usual screaming mob of teenagers, set about to revenge the 64-46 loss it had sustained earlier in Arlington Heights.

Head coach Ralph Hinger had his Dons pressing at the start but it was Viator which led, 9-6, after one period. And that despite no tallies from Kastner whose 14 points on seven long field goals ultimately kept them within range of victory.

Kastner broke the first of six ties, 13-13 at 2:36, second period, with a long jumper from beyond the key. But Notre Dame rushed off seven quick points for a 20-15 halftime lead.

The splurge began with a free throw by Perion at 2:20. But Calabrese keyed the late surge with a strong tip-in at 1:27. He scored two more field goals to close the half his second shot dropping at 0:01.

Viator shrank the gap to one point, 26-25, after three quarters as Kastner hit three long shots. Girard one and Casciaro one. Ferina, Notre Dame's high scorer with 16 points, had two of the Dons' three field goals.

The lead switched five times during the last quarter, Viator assuming a 35-33 margin at 2:38 when Girard hit a field goal but missed on his chance for a three-point play. It was the Lions last field goal.

Ferina brought the Dons within one at 0:46, sinking his first shot but missing the second after Kastner fouled.

John Gillen might have locked the game for Viator with 10 seconds remaining but missed his first charity shot in the bonus. Notre Dame rebounded, then got Ferina's free throw six seconds later that sent the game into overtime.

The Lions dropped to 3-6 in East Suburban Catholic games. Notre Dame, its only other ESCC win against once favored St. Patrick, is 2-7.

But who's heard of Richard Van Dyke?

What's in a nickname? Just ask Richard Chamberlain

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Chamberlain, former Dr. Kildare, Shakespearean actor, movie star and all around good fellow, is seldom called "Dick."

But then neither Richard Widmark nor Richard Burton is called by the more familiar nickname.

And it was Richard The Lion Hearted, certainly not Dick The Lion Hearted. For that matter it is Richard Crenna, Richard Basehart and in the history books it will go down as Richard Nixon.

But it is Dick Van Dyke, Rick Nelson and Dick York.

Chamberlain was invariably referred to as Dick when he began the "Dr. Kildare" series 15 years ago. But as his prestige grew so did the length of his name.

He did, in fact play "Richard II" on stage in England in 1971. "Richard is a better name than Dick," Chamberlain said recently. "That's not to say I'm opposed to 'Dick.' I like that, too."

"There is a definite formality to Richard which I like. In the book of names, you know, Richard means 'king.'"

THERE IS A certain formality to Richard Chamberlain himself. He is neither back-slapper nor confidant. His manners are flawless, his savoir faire impressive.

He recently starred on television in "The Count of Monte Cristo" and can be seen on the big screen in "The Towering Inferno" and "The Four Musketeers." He moves comfortably from stage to movies to television.

"I like to keep moving around from one to the other," Richard said. "The three mediums feed each other in different ways. The thrill of the stage is unbeatable, but there is great excitement when you get something cooking in the mechanical medium that is a triumph of humanity over technology."

No guy named Dick would make a statement like that.

He proved his Richard-ness by adding "My fantasy of the ultimate actor is a man who can thrill your soul in a film one night and walk by you the next without being recognized."

"I call that creative anonymity. But only people like Sir Laurence Olivier can get away with that. The rest of us need box office appeal."

CHAMBERLAIN, it would be noted, found it needless to draw attention to the fact that it is Sir Laurence, not Sir Larry.

"I had the opportunity to see Robert, not Bob, Donat's performance in 'The Count of Monte Cristo' before I did the television movie version," Richard said. "But I was afraid I might mimic him so I turned it down."

"As for 'Towering Inferno,' I wanted to be in a big flashy Hollywood commercial movie and that was it."

He costarred with Steve not Stephen McQueen.

No 'restricted-prisoner' status

Stavros drops charge of unfair treatment

by JOE FRANZ

Attorneys for convicted Wheeling politician James Stavros have withdrawn a motion in federal court that charged Stavros was unjustly placed on a restricted-prisoner status, by the Justice Department.

The action was taken after U.S. District Court Judge Hubert L. Will said Friday he saw no evidence that Stavros was in any restricted class and would deny the motion unless shown otherwise.

Stavros' attorneys, Joel Murray and Robert J. Butler, charged in the motion that Stavros has been denied furloughs from prison and probably will not receive an early parole because of the restricted status.

The motion also charged that Stavros is not receiving proper treatment for medical problems and has been denied information on his medical condition.

Will suggested Butler withdraw the motion after Asst. U.S. Atty. Howard Stone said Stavros has not been designated as a "special offender" and has not been placed in any other restricted status. The judge Wednesday ordered the U.S. Attorney's office to investigate the matter.

STAVROS, WHO PLEADED guilty last April to extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers and filing a false income-tax return, is serving a four-year sentence in the federal prison in Lexington, Ky. In exchange for the guilty plea, the government dropped eight additional charges against Stavros, including alleged extortions totaling $121,250.

Elizabeth Stavros, the prisoner's wife, told the judge her husband was denied a furlough over the Christmas holidays because the prison put a restriction on him after talking to his probation officer.

THE JUDGE SAID there is an indication the Federal Bureau of Investigation may have attempted to prevent Stavros from going home. He said, however, that prison officials have informed him that the Christmas leave was denied because Stavros did not meet the criteria.

"I have been told that he has been denied a furlough because he has not been in the Lexington prison for six months," Will said.

Mrs. Stavros said, however, that her husband is being discriminated against because other prisoners, who have been in the prison for less than six months, have been given furloughs.

The judge then said, "There may have been exceptions made for some prisoners, but I can't look into every case. All I know is that he was not eligible under normal prison policy.

"I will accept what Mr. Stone said that he is not classified as a 'special offender' and we'll wait and see what happens," the judge continued. "When the time comes that he is eligible for a furlough we'll see if there are any problems."

Will then offered this advice to Mrs. Stavros. "I would say you could hurt his chance for furlough by being overzealous in your efforts to get him special consideration. I am not interested in giving him privileged treatment. I'm only interested in seeing to it he is treated fairly."

IN REFERENCE TO the possible FBI involvement in the case, Will said the agency "has its ax out" for Stavros and may have relayed its opposition to the furlough to the prison through Stavros' probation officer.

"If that is true, I'll put a stop to it," the judge said. "The probation officer is an arm of this court, not a messenger for the FBI."

Vincent Inserra, supervisor of the organized crime squad of the Chicago office of the FBI, said his office aided the U.S. Attorney's office and the Internal Revenue Service in preparing the government's case against Stavros, but denied the FBI is attempting to keep the prisoner from getting a furlough.

"We have nothing to do with that kind of thing," he said. "The matter of furloughs is up to the judge, the court and the U.S. Attorney's office."

MURRAY HAS SAID Stavros' medical condition is deteriorating and that a furlough would allow his client to see his personal physician. Will said however, that Stavros' attorneys showed no evidence that their client is not receiving proper medical care.

"I find it hard to believe that Lexington, which is supposed to have a first class medical facility, would not give him proper medical care or not keep him informed on his medical condition," the judge said.

Will said he does not think matters pertaining to the quality of medical care or other operations at the Lexington prison fall under his jurisdiction. He said further motions pertaining to the operation of the prison should be filed with the federal court in that area.

Stavros, who has been in prison since June, was transferred to Lexington in November from the federal prison in Sandstone, Minn. Officials said he would receive better medical care at Lexington.

Two will seek election to school board

Lillian Stiller and Susan Rose have announced they will seek to retain their seats on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education in the April election.

Mrs. Stiller will be running for her fourth term on the board.

"I think it will be an extremely challenging year with the new Illinois Board of Education and an appointed (state) superintendent," she said. "This will affect all of us."

She said she would like to improve Dist. 21's relations with other taxing bodies and continue the formation of citizens' committees for curriculum development.

"This is the first year the district is in the black," she said. "We're not worried about passing a referendum or paying the light bills." With the district's current funding, she said there are many education areas the district can move into.

Mrs. Rose was appointed to the board in August, filling the vacancy caused by Mary Jo Reid's resignation. Mrs. Reid resigned to take a full-time paid position with the district.

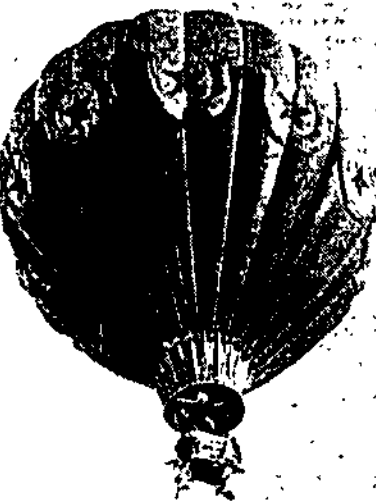

Mrs. Rose was not available for comment.

THESE TWO students were among 10 Hershey High School students who think they leaptfrogged into the Guinness Book of World Records Saturday. It took 11 hours and 55 minutes for the group to go around the school gym 1,120 times or a distance of 56 miles. The former record is believed to have been 50 miles.

Panel seeks to update village master plan

The Wheeling Plan Commission has recommended the hiring of a private firm at a cost of $6,250 to update the village master plan.

The plan commission suggested the village hire Harland Bartholomew and Associates of Northbrook to revise the plan, which has been in effect since 1965.

The revision will pertain to the village land-use map and the future development of the village. The firm will work closely with village officials in preparing the new plan.

The firm will consider commercial, industrial and residential development, as well as streets, public building, schools, parks, semi-public and open-space land in updating the master plan.

The village has no money appropriated for updating of the master plan, but members of the plan commission have asked the village to consider making funds available in the 1975-76 fiscal year budget.

Thomas Markus, village administrative assistant, said the village may be able to get the federal government to pay two-thirds of the cost.

Elk Grove vs. 'Flesh Gordon'—to show or not to show?

by JILL BETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Pancoe does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's super-heroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Pancoe said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Pancoe from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Pancoe contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCOE TRIED TO show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days while a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Pancoe filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Pancoe agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Pancoe is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned movie-goers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or patently offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or PGs. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Platt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

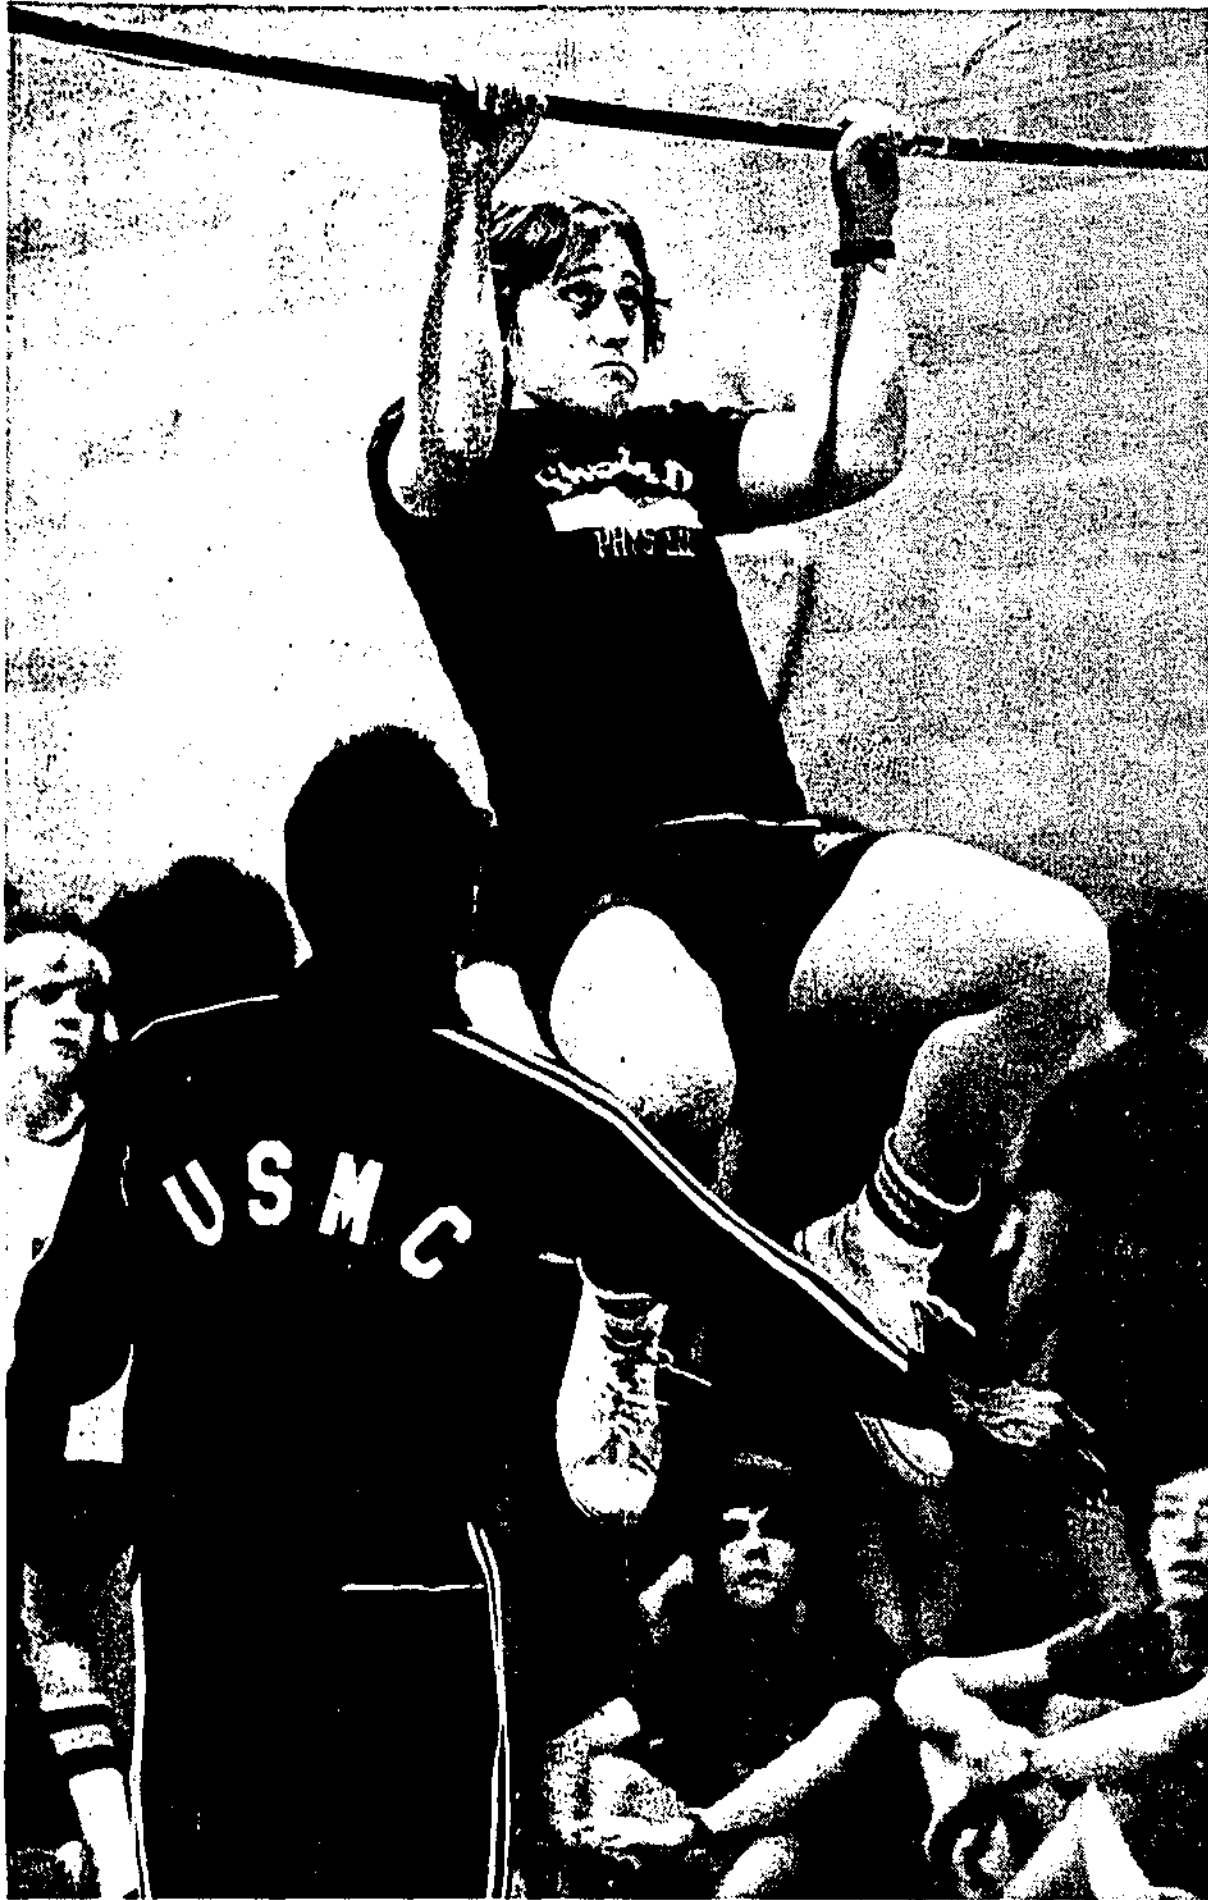

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em (the public). Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Platt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Platt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuelle," a film currently popular in New York.

MUSCLES STRAIN as Fremd High School students work tests. Marine Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne and two other out on the U. S. Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness Marine sergeants conducted the tests last week.

Almost isn't good enough in Marine fitness tests

by DOROTHY OLIVER

He sucked in his breath, tightened his muscles and started the painful ascent of the chinning bar for the 13th time. He struggled, pulled up his legs, gasped and dropped to the mat after coming inches from his goal.

"Pretty good," said the unsmiling Marine in the navy blue sweatshirt as he marked the boy's score sheet and turned his eyes to another red-faced kid straining at the bar.

"Most of the high school kids we work with out here do pretty well," Marine Sgt. William Thompson said as he surveyed the scene and the lines of Fremd High School students waiting their turns.

Thompson, a recruiter from the Marine Corps Palatine office, Sgt. Dennis Roby and Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne of the Chicago recruitment office, have been putting high school students through their paces for weeks, scoring their achievement in U.S. Marine Corp. Youth Physical Fitness tests.

THE TESTS ARE tough and the Marines know it — they must prove their physical fitness four times a year in similar drills.

To achieve a perfect score a high school boy would have to do 30 pullups, 100 situps in two minutes, 60 pushups without resting, 41 squat thrusts in one minute, and jump 9 feet 10 inches in the standing long jump.

To achieve a certificate of excellence he would have to do 80 situps, 45 pushups, 23 pullups, 34 squat thrusts and jump 8 feet 7 inches, Thompson said.

About 55 to 60 per cent of the students around here are getting certificates," said Thompson, who has scored tests at Hersey and Palatine High Schools and will be at Wheeling High School this week.

The Marine testing is in its third year, the sergeant said. "Two years ago we gave it to about 65 schools in the Chicago area. Last year about 400 schools competed and this year we're hitting about every school in the state."

THE TEST RESULTS are compiled by the Marines and returned to the school. School officials choose the top six seniors to represent them in a Chicago-area competition. Winners of the Chicago tournament are entered in a national competition in Washington, D.C. where they vie for scholarships and school sports equipment.

The Marines also provide a test for high school girls but so far in this area only Hersey High School has had girls in competition.

"The Hersey girls did so well we had to rewrite the test," Thompson said.

The purpose of the testing goes beyond promoting physical fitness or the Marine Corps. Thompson said schools use the results to evaluate their programs and students.

As fresh classes of students enter the gym and head for the lines waiting to be tested, there are the typical salutes and the whistled strains of the Marine theme song.

Thompson takes it with a smile. "We hear that everywhere we go. These kids are no different," he said. "They're all really enthusiastic and they put out a lot of effort. By the third day of testing they're counting on their fingers and toes to see how many points they need to get their certificate."

Suspect, 31, now linked to 5 Chicago-area murders

An Indianapolis man suspected in the Nov. 18 slaying of a Prospect Heights real estate salesman is now under investigation in five Chicago-area murders.

Gary Duane Rardon, 31, who has been held in Louisville, Ky., since his capture Thursday by FBI agents, is a suspect in the slaying of a South Suburban Posen gun store owner and a store employee during a robbery Dec. 16, Sheriff's police said.

Matt Counts, 52, owner of Suburban Arms Gun Shop, 2753 W. 147th St., and one of his part-time clerks, Mitchell Kosobucki, 19, of Posen, were found shot to death behind a counter in the store.

At least two shotguns and several pistols were stolen by the killer, police said. Police said Rardon has made an "initial confession" to the Nov. 15 shotgun slaying of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights, at the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

Police said Thursday that Rardon also had confessed to the Nov. 18 slaying of Asher Gruenberg, 50, of Skokie, in Franklin Park, and the Nov. 17 murder of Herbert J. Noakes, 31, of Hammond, Ind. Noakes was killed in his taxi cab in Calumet City.

Franklin Park police, who issued the first warrant for Rardon's arrest, said they were able to trace Rardon because he was using the credit cards stolen from Gruenberg. The State's Attorney's office plans to extradite Rardon this week.

Artemenko to seek new high school board term

Eugene Artemenko, a member of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education since 1971, said he will seek reelection in the April election.

Artemenko, 431 Millers Rd., Des Plaines, was appointed to the board in 1971. The following year he was elected to a three-year term which expires this April.

"I'd like to serve another term," Artemenko said. "My years on the board have been rewarding and personally satisfying to me."

Artemenko, 46, served for five years on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education before moving over to the Dist. 214 board.

TWO OTHER PERSONS are considering running for two vacant seats on the board.

Arthur Aronson, 2818 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Arlington Heights, said earlier he did not know whether he would have enough time to serve a fifth term on the Dist. 214 board.

A member since 1962 and a school board veteran of more than 20 years, Aronson is the senior member of the Dist. 214 board.

Eugene Artemenko

Another possible candidate for the board is Al Domanico, 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village.

Domanico has been a member of the Dist. 59 Board of Education for 4½ years. He said he plans to retire from that board when his current term expires in April, but has not made a decision yet on whether he will run for the Dist. 214 board.

The first day for candidates to file for the April 12 school board election is Feb. 26.

Building sought for Dwyer program

The Northwest Education Cooperative will seek to lease Gregory School in Mount Prospect for the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children if Mount Prospect Dist. 57 decides to close the building.

The NEC governing board agreed Saturday to begin negotiations with Dist. 57 for a three year lease on Gregory School. The school would house the children from the Dwyer elementary program which is now in Dwyer School in Arlington Heights and also the Dwyer junior high school program which is in Hoffman Estates High School.

Dist. 57 has been studying the possibility of closing the building because of declining enrollments and plans a public hearing on the question Tuesday at Gregory School. A citizen's committee has recommended closing the school and has estimated that renting the building would bring in about $861,000 in revenue to the district in the next five years.

NEC OFFICIALS did not disclose how much they plan to offer Dist. 57 for the use of Gregory. Several other agencies, including the Mount Prospect Park District, have expressed an interest in renting the building.

The Dwyer program has about 120 students. NEC officials say the elementary school program has outgrown the eight-classroom Dwyer School building and High School Dist. 211 has said the junior high school program will not be able to use Hoffman Estates High School next year.

In other action Saturday, the NEC board approved a policy on giving parents access to student records held by the cooperative on 24-hour notice. The policy states that the student's official records will be kept in the district which sends the child to NEC and that NEC student records will be identical to the records held by the local district.

NEC Executive Director Gloria Kinney said that if parents want to challenge anything in their child's records under terms of a new federal law they will go through the procedures set up by their local districts, not directly through NEC.

"It's going to be our responsibility and the responsibility of the member districts to make sure parents know there are two sets of records on their children," she said. "I hope we can make it as easy as possible for parents to have access to their child's records."

Center may be dropped from funds-use list

Preliminary plans to develop a community center using funds from the U. S. Housing and Community Development Act may have to be dropped.

Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning, said that the high cost of renting a facility could force the Des Plaines Community Development Task Force to drop the proposed program from its list of recommendations for using the $2.5 million the city stands to receive under the federal program during the next six years.

The task force probably will make a decision Thursday about the proposal.

The panel was considering one of two vacant grocery stores in the downtown area as the site for the center, but learned that rent on the buildings would range between $3,000 and $4,000 a month.

THE TASK FORCE'S preliminary report indicated that about $30,000 of the $139,000 the city would receive during the first year of the program would be used for the center.

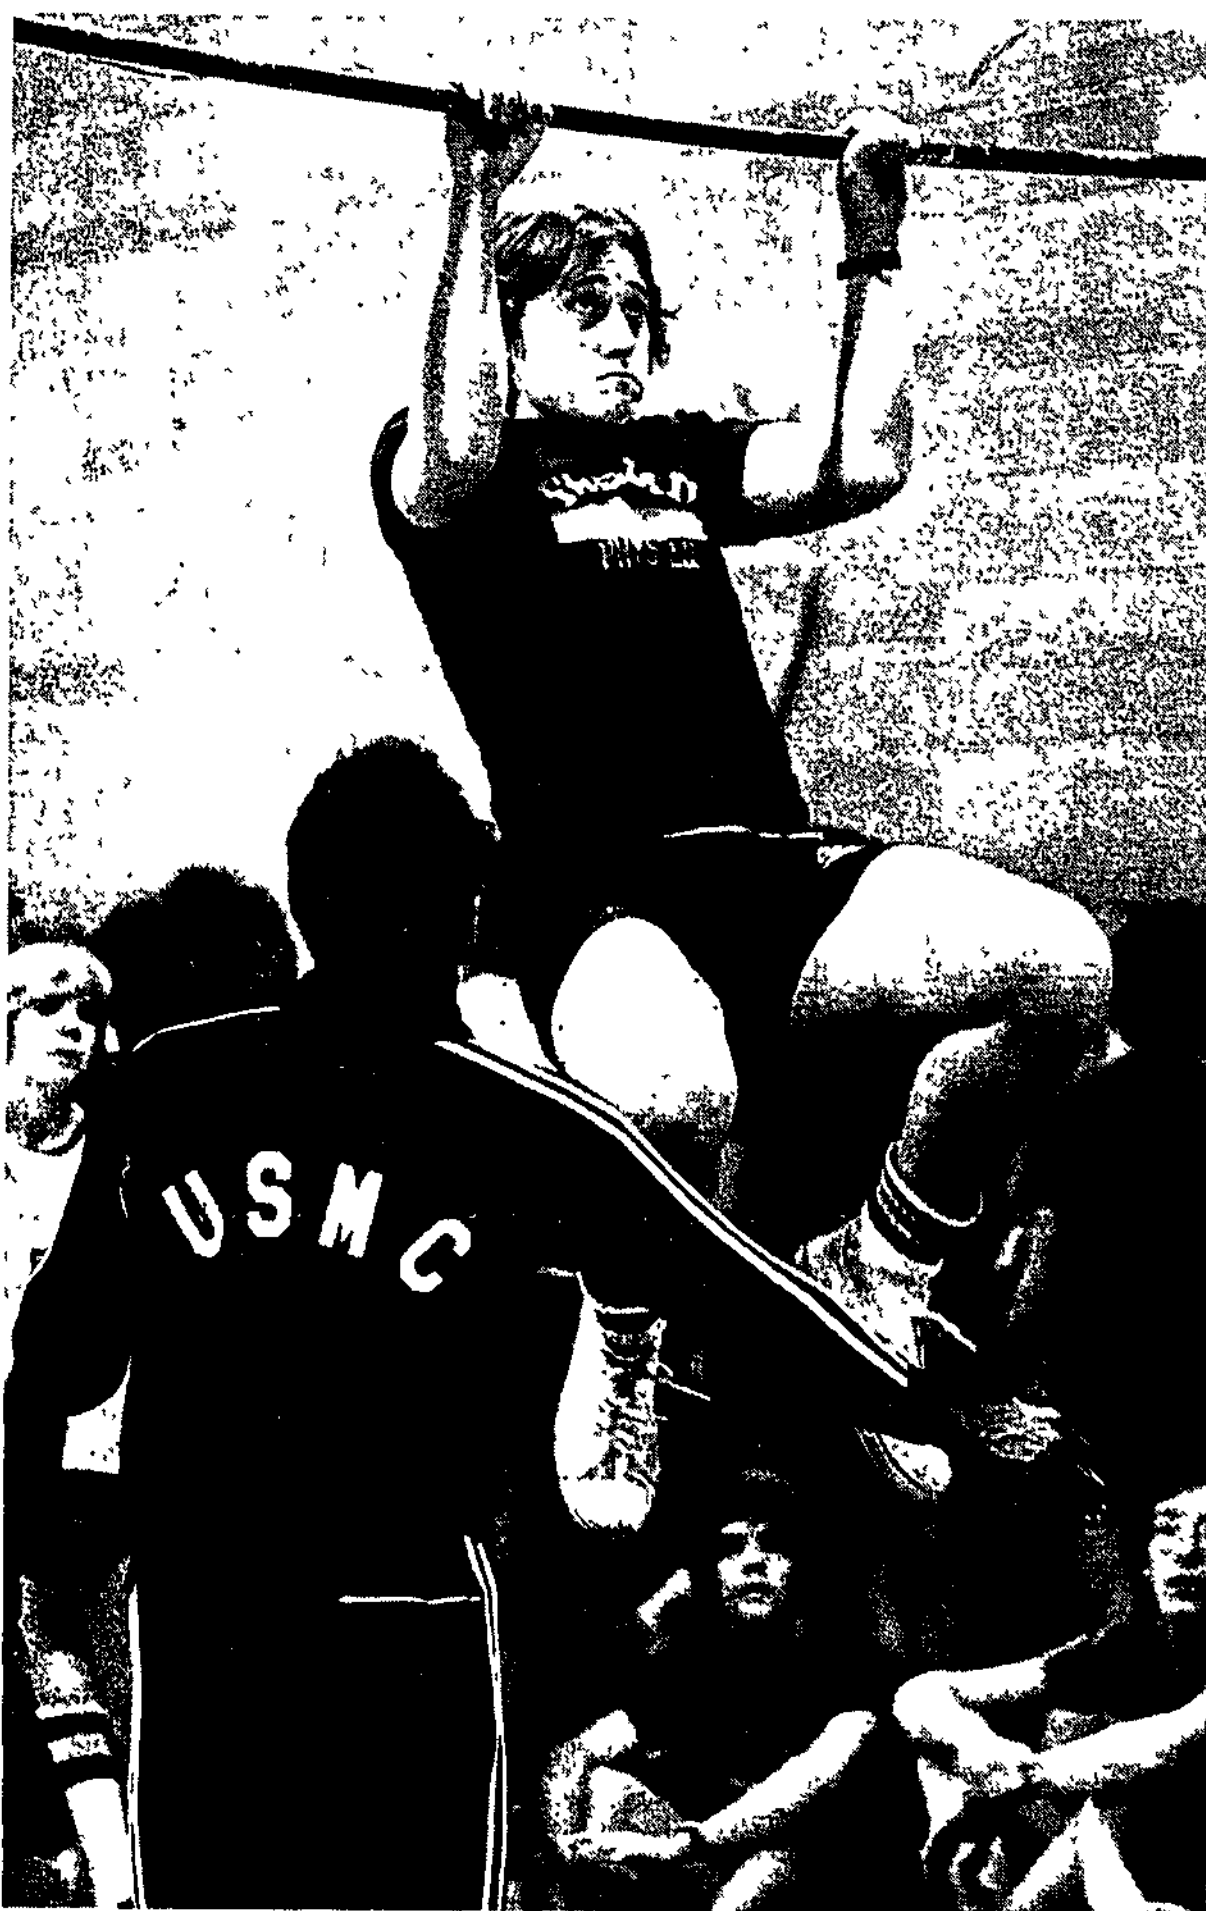

The facility would have been used by all ages, according to the original plans.

Richardson noted that the $30,000 would have been only enough to pay for the rental of the facility and that there would not have been enough money to furnish the center or cover operating costs.

"I wouldn't be surprised if the task force decides to back off from the community center plan all together or comes up with a smaller-scale plan," he added.

While the plans for the community center may be dropped, the task force probably will recommend five other projects for which the funds can be used.

Preliminary reports indicate that the panel will recommend the city spend about $30,000 on updating its comprehensive plan, $25,000 for a stepped-up code-enforcement program, $20,000 for beautification projects and $34,000 for a "vest-pocket" park adjacent to the senior-citizen apartment complex at Lee Street and Ashland Avenue.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em (the public). Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuella," a film currently popular in New York.

Firms may move rather than pay for licenses

Managers of local office buildings are expecting to lose some tenants as a result of a new business-license ordinance in Des Plaines.

expecting to lose some tenants as a result of a new business-license ordinance in Des Plaines.

A spokesman for Arthur J. Rogers Enterprises, which operates the massive O'Hare-Lake Office Plaza, 2200 E. Devon Ave., indicated the firm is expecting to lose tenants because of the license law, which is a move by the city to spread the cost of operating the business-inspection program across all segments of the community.

While a major exodus is not expected, the spokesman said several tenants have said they were unhappy with the idea of buying a business license.

"They are questioning what the city will be doing for the fee the businessman will be paying," the spokesman added.

CITY OFFICIALS indicated they have received dozens of phone calls since a letter was mailed to more than 3,000 local businesses advising them they had to obtain a license.

Robert Ladendorf, the city's licensing ordinance officer, said many of the callers have been questioning the licensing procedure and seeking information on how much they might have to pay.

He indicated that a number of doctors and lawyers who now must seek licenses for their offices have raised complaints about the new systems.

The new fee system varies, depending on the type of business and size of the establishment. The fees range from $35 for a small service establishment to $675 for an industrial complex of more than 200,000 square feet.

LADENDORF ADDED the city met with representatives of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce and Industry several times to discuss the proposed changes.

"They were more concerned about constant increases in the license fees in the future rather than the initiation of the program," he said.

City officials have estimated that the city will receive about $250,000 from new license fees. Under Illinois law, the funds must be used to finance inspections of businesses to ensure compliance with health and building codes.

Ladendorf said the city already is inspecting many businesses that are not obtaining business licenses. The new system will help the city defer the costs of the inspections, he added.

Mikva offers internships

Openings are available in U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva's D-10th, college intern program. Unlike most congressional intern programs, Mikva's is open to college undergraduates and involves work in the 10th District.

Although there is no financial compensation, many colleges offer academic credit for this kind of field study and a student is able to get experience and insight into how government works.

College students interested in applying for the intern program should contact Mikva's office, 4016 Church, Skokie, 676-1330.

Artemenko to seek new high school board term

Eugene Artemenko, a member of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education since 1971, said he will seek reelection in the April election.

Artemenko, 431 Millers Rd., Des Plaines, was appointed to the board in 1971. The following year he was elected to a three-year term which expires this April.

"I'd like to serve another term," Artemenko said. "My years on the board have been rewarding and personally satisfying to me."

Artemenko, 46, served for five years on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education before moving over to the Dist. 214 board.

TWO OTHER PERSONS are considering running for two vacant seats on the board.

Arthur Aronson, 2818 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Arlington Heights, said earlier he did not know whether he would have enough time to serve a fifth term on the Dist. 214 board.

A member since 1962 and a school board veteran of more than 20 years, Aronson is the senior member of the Dist. 214 board.

Another possible candidate for the board is Al Domanico, 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village.

Domanico has been a member of the Dist. 59 Board of Education for 4½ years. He said he plans to retire from that board when his current term expires in April, but has not made a decision yet on whether he will run for the Dist. 214 board.

Vandalism up in Elk Grove schools

An innocent snowball fight is hastily ended when an errant snowball smashes through a school window and the frightened participants rush home.

An hour later, other youths wander by and, invited by the open window, saunter in for a look around. When they leave, behind them is hundreds of dollars in damage done for "fun."

Vandalism is becoming more and more of a problem in suburban school districts including Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Prompted by concerned parents and board members, the Dist. 59 administration has just finished compiling a report outlining vandalism costs over the last four years.

The report shows five incidents and $920 damage by vandals in 1971; two incidents and $175 damage in 1972; 10 incidents costing $1,855 in 1973; and 13 incidents with $21,010 damage in 1974.

TOTALS LOOK low when compared to neighboring school district vandalism estimates, but the report "is imperfect at best," said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent.

"This report has to be taken in its proper context," he said. "We have listed only 'reported vandalism' — incidents reported to my office by principals when they are positive the damage has been caused by vandals."

Perry said Dist. 59 spends about $25,000 a year just for glass replacement. Yet, reported vandalism to glass is far below that figure.

"ONE OF OUR problems is that we are unable to get a good handle on what is accident or what is vandalism. We have substantial glass breakage but so often a custodian will walk in the school in the morning, find a broken window and have no idea whether it was an accident or vandalism," Perry said.

The purpose of the report, which will be presented to the board of education tonight, at its 8 p.m. meeting is to initiate a better reporting system, Perry said.

"We know there is the possibility that a principal did not write a memo to my office on vandalism that occurred. That incident wouldn't even be included in this report," he said.

THE DISTRICT carries an insurance policy with a $1,000 deductible clause, but virtually all damage incidents are less than $1,000.

Insurance covered the district's most serious case of vandalism last year when someone punctured the roof of Clearmont School to the tune of $20,397.

Damage figures may rise substantially in future years when stricter reports are kept, Perry said. And in the meantime, officials will continue to seek answers on how to curb the problem — although a lot of solutions have been tried and failed.

Parent patrols, added lighting and increased police checks have not had much of an effect on vandalism.

School bond sale decision tonight?

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education tonight is expected to consider a committee recommendation which calls for the sale of $5-million bonds to eliminate short-term borrowing and urge no tax-rate hike this year.

The committee estimates the sale of the long-term bonds would save the district $250,000 in interest costs on tax-anticipation warrants, which represent borrowing against next year's tax receipts.

Al Domanico, chairman of the board's long-range financial planning committee, said the sale of the bonds would not increase the district's tax rate of $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation.

and 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation."

Such a hike would cost the taxpayer with a house assessed at $10,000 an extra $9 to $47 more per year in property taxes.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the district administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

In other action, the board is expected to officially name Jean Cashman to fill the vacant seat on the board, created by the resignation last month of Charles Knaup.

Board Pres. Gerald Smiley also is expected to name a committee, made up of board members and district residents, to draw up a list of district goals.

From the library

The Des Plaines Public Library's programs for January include storytime for preschool age children Tuesday and Wednesday from 11-11:30 a.m. Saturday morning storytime for children in kindergarten through third grade is from 9-10 a.m. Storytime sessions for fourth-through sixth-grade children is from 10:30-11 a.m. Saturdays.

Glad About Books, the junior high school book group, will meet Thursday, Jan. 30, from 4-5 p.m.

Films and discussion groups for adults meet Wednesday evening at the library.

The Adult Book Discussion Group will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. "I Heard the Owl Call My Name," by Margaret Craven, is to be discussed.

A former airline stewardess will be the guest speaker Wednesday. Her talk will be on travel and she will give a demonstration on how to pack a suitcase.

"U.S.A. — Here, There, and Everywhere," is the first of a series of four travelogues and will be presented Jan. 29 at 7:30 p.m. by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Passow, members of the Des Plaines Camera Club.

FISH meeting Tuesday

The Des Plaines chapter of FISH will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Blue Room of Des Plaines Public Library, Thacker and Graceland.

The general meeting is open to all current and past FISH volunteers, and to anyone in the area who would like to know more about the operations and services provided by this neighbor-helping-neighbor organization.

Speaker for the evening will be Frank Jacobs, of the Social Security Administration.

FISH is an international program of ecumenical groups of Christian folks who want to be good neighbors. Emergency assistance from FISH is available to Des Plaines residents without obligation, charge or religious affiliation by calling the 24-hour FISH number, 296-5677.

Donations of time and/or money to keep the FISH program operating around-the-clock are always welcome, according to Dorothy Tunes, chairman. Offers from volunteers may be directed to any member of the FISH Steering Committee by calling Peggy or Kurt Krebs, 824-0415.

River Trails caucus seeking candidates

The River Trails Dist. 26 caucus is seeking candidates to run for vacancies on the school board in the April election.

Candidate interviews are scheduled for successive Monday nights beginning Jan. 27 and will continue until completed. Candidates will be vying for three three-year terms on the Dist. 26 school board.

The Dist. 26 caucus is composed of two delegates for each PTA and civic association in the district. For further information, contact Ben Baldwin, 250-4409, chairman; Joy Daskal, 296-1716, vice chairman; or John Wilcox, 250-3375, secretary treasurer.

Elk Grove vs. 'Flesh Gordon'—to show or not to show?

by JILL BETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Pancoe does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's superheroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Pancoe said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Pancoe from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Pancoe contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCOE TRIED TO show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days while a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Pancoe filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Pancoe agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Pancoe is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned moviegoers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or patently offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or GPs. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Plitt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em (the public). Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuella," a film currently popular in New York.

CTA cancels meeting on shuttlebus plan

Chicago Transit Authority officials canceled a Friday meeting with Elk Grove Village officials to discuss bus service between Chicago and the Elk Grove Village Industrial Park.

Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said the CTA representatives told her an emergency commitment forced them to cancel the meeting and another will be scheduled in the near future.

Trustee Vanderweel said the CTA was expected to review a proposed program for morning and evening shuttle-bus service from Jefferson Park, which is the last stop on the Kennedy rapid transit line, to the industrial park.

The Assn. of Industry and Commerce has attempted to convince the CTA that bus service between Chicago and the industrial park is needed.

A recent survey showed about a third of the park's 32,000 work force travels to and from Chicago to work in Elk Grove Village.

MUSCLES STRAIN as Fremd High School students work tests. Marine Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne and two other out on the U. S. Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness Marine sergeants conducted the tests last week.

Almost isn't good enough in Marine fitness tests

by DOROTHY OLIVER

He sucked in his breath, tightened his muscles and started the painful ascent of the chinning bar for the 12th time. He struggled, pulled up his legs, gasped and dropped to the mat after coming inches from his goal.

"Pretty good," said the unsmiling Marine in the navy blue sweatshirt as he marked the boy's score sheet and turned his eyes to another red-faced kid straining at the bar.

"Most of the high school kids we work with out here do pretty well," Marine Sgt. William Thompson said as he surveyed the scene and the lines of Fremd High School students waiting their turns.

Thompson, a recruiter from the Marine Corps Palatine office, Sgt. Dennis Roby and Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne of the Chicago recruitment office, have been putting high school students through their paces for weeks, scoring their achievement in U.S. Marine Corp. Youth Physical Fitness tests.

THE TESTS ARE tough and the Marines know it — they must prove their physical fitness four times a year in similar drills.

To achieve a perfect score a high school boy would have to do 30 pullups, 100 situps in two minutes, 60 pushups without resting, 41 squat thrusts in one minute, and jump 9 feet 10 inches in the standing long jump.

To achieve a certificate of excellence he would have to do 80 situps, 45 pushups, 23 pullups, 34 squat thrusts and jump 8 feet 7 inches, Thompson said.

About 55 to 60 per cent of the students

Custodial care not covered

My mother is 84 years old. She's not really sick, but she's going into a nursing home because she has trouble getting around and taking care of herself. Will Medicare help pay for her care?

No. Care such as help in walking, dressing, bathing, and eating is called custodial care and is not covered under Medicare. Only continuing skilled nursing or rehabilitation services furnished in a skilled nursing facility can be covered by Medicare.

around here are getting certificates," said Thompson, who has scored tests at Hersey and Palatine High Schools and will be at Wheeling High School this week.

The Marine testing is in its third year, the sergeant said. "Two years ago we gave it in about 65 schools in the Chicago area. Last year about 400 schools competed and this year we're hitting about every school in the state."

THE TEST RESULTS are compiled by the Marines and returned to the school. School officials choose the top six seniors to represent them in a Chicago-area competition. Winners of the Chicago tournament are entered in a national competition in Washington, D.C. where they vie for scholarships and school sports equipment.

The Marines also provide a test for high school girls but so far in this area only Hersey High School has had girls in competition.

"The Hersey girls did so well we had to rewrite the test," Thompson said.

The purpose of the testing goes beyond promoting physical fitness or the Marine Corps. Thompson said schools use the results to evaluate their programs and students.

As fresh classes of students enter the gym and head for the lines waiting to be tested, there are the typical salutes and the whistled strains of the Marine theme song.

Thompson takes it with a smile. "We hear that everywhere we go. These kids are no different," he said. "They're all really enthusiastic and they put out a lot of effort. By the third day of testing they're counting on their fingers and toes to see how many points they need to get their certificate."

Gregory site to be sought for program for disturbed

The Northwest Education Cooperative will seek to lease Gregory School in Mount Prospect for the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children if Mount Prospect Dist. 57 decides to close the building.

The NEC governing board agreed Saturday to begin negotiations with Dist. 57 for a three year lease on Gregory School. The school would house the children from the Dwyer elementary program which is now in Dwyer School in Arlington Heights and also the Dwyer junior high school program which is in Hoffman Estates High School.

Dist. 57 has been studying the possibility of closing the building because of declining enrollments and plans a public hearing on the question Tuesday at Gregory School. A citizen's committee has recommended closing the school and has estimated that renting the building would bring in about $861,000 in revenue to the district in the next five years.

NEC OFFICIALS did not disclose how much they plan to offer Dist. 57 for the use of Gregory. Several other agencies, including the Mount Prospect Park District, have expressed an interest in renting the building.

The Dwyer program has about 120 students. NEC officials say the elementary school program has outgrown the eight-classroom Dwyer School building and High School Dist. 211 has said the junior high school program will not be able to use Hoffman Estates High School next year.

In other action Saturday, the NEC board approved a policy on giving parents access to student records held by the cooperative on 24-hour notice. The policy states that the student's official records will be kept in the district which sends the child to NEC and that NEC student records will be identical to the records held by the local district.

NEC Executive Director Gloria Kinney said that if parents want to challenge anything in their child's records under terms of a new federal law they will go through the procedures set up by their local districts, not directly through NEC.

"It's going to be our responsibility and the responsibility of the member districts to make sure parents know there are two sets of records on their children," she said. "I hope we can make it as easy as possible for parents to have access to their child's records."

Murder suspect linked to 5 Chicago-area cases

An Indianapolis man suspected in the Nov. 18 slaying of a Prospect Heights real estate salesman is now under investigation in five Chicago-area murders.

Gary Duane Rardon, 31, who has been held in Louisville, Ky., since his capture Thursday by FBI agents, is a suspect in the slaying of a South Suburban Posen gun store owner and a store employee during a robbery Dec. 16, Sheriff's police said.

Matt Counts, 52, owner of Suburban Arms Gun Shop, 2753 W. 147th St., and one of his part-time clerks, Mitchell Kosobucki, 19, of Posen, were found shot to death behind a counter in the store.

At least two shotguns and several pistols were stolen by the killer, police said. Police said Rardon has made an "inital confession" to the Nov. 15 shotgun slaying of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights, at the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elm-burst Rd., Prospect Heights.

Police said Thursday that Rardon also had confessed to the Nov. 18 slaying of Asher Gruenberg, 50, of Skokie, in Franklin Park, and the Nov. 17 murder of Herbert J. Noakes, 31, of Hammond, Ind. Noakes was killed in his taxi cab in Calumet City.

Franklin Park police, who issued the first warrant for Rardon's arrest, said they were able to trace Rardon because he was using the credit cards stolen from Gruenberg. The State's Attorneys office plans to extradite Rardon this week.

'Association of associations' urged

Condominium owners see growing 'clout'

by PAT GERLACH

Members of an alliance of condominium and townhouse owner's associations now taking root in the Northwest suburbs believe they represent sufficient strength to influence state and local laws governing condominium ownership.

At a meeting in Schaumburg Saturday, representatives of 10 condominium and townhouse complexes, including developments in Buffalo Grove and Bloomingdale, endorsed forming an "association of associations." They believe the coalition can work to solve mutual problems and strengthen the Illinois Condominium Act to include townhouses in developments where common areas are owned and maintained by a residents' associations.

Signups taken for defensive driving program

Registration is under way for a Hoffman Estates Police Dept. defensive-driving program that will teach residents how to "look out for the other guy."

The program, which is sanctioned by the National Safety Council, is to begin Feb. 19 in the training room in the basement of the municipal building, 1200 Gannon Dr. It will be conducted from 7 to 9 p.m. each Wednesday for four weeks. If more than 25 persons are interested in the course, a second four-week program will be conducted beginning Feb. 20.

Patrolmen Raymond Cox and Robert Boynton, members of the traffic division, taught the course to village employees. "We teach the principles of defensive driving," Cox said. "Drivers' education teaches how to drive. This course teaches responsibility to avoid accidents even if others may cause them."

Films are shown, homework assignments given and statistics and charts supplied, but the emphasis is on driver courtesy and alertness. The two patrolmen have reached instructor status after having taken intensive training from the National Safety Council.

Each class will be limited to 25 persons, and only village residents can register. The fee is $3 per person. This includes the costs of materials and the program. Interested citizens may sign up at the village clerk's office during normal business hours.

A poll of the size of developments represented at Saturday's meeting indicated the alliance would immediately involve about 5,000 residents with a potential of doubling that number when these complexes are completed.

THE MEETING was called by Dennis Conley of Schaumburg's Sheffield Manor at the suggestion of Schaumburg Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher.

Speaking briefly to the group, Atcher said two members of Schaumburg's zoning board are studying rules of condominium associations.

Atcher told of a "drastic" drop in single-family house building in Schaumburg last year and predicted the economy will cause many changes in future multiple-housing programs.

Atcher also said developers may be forced to "pull back" on public-use land donations and build recreational facilities which might be turned over to the park district to maintain and operate.

GORDON LINE of Hoffman Estates stressed the importance of homeowners' groups within their own communities. "You do have clout and villages and school boards have to listen to you," said Line, president of Barrington Square Improvement Assn.

Line said a member of his homeowners' board, Shirley Gibbons, is a Hoffman Estates park commissioner and member of the village plan commission. He emphasized the need for persons living in condominium and townhouse areas to become involved in local government.

Conley, named temporary chairman of the group, said he originally intended to limit membership to Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Hanover Park, hoping to further build membership after the alliance is functioning.

Line will lead a committee responsible for obtaining bylaws and other documents of each homeowners' association involved. He proposed voting membership in the combined association be limited to members of each group's board of directors.

HOWEVER IT was agreed to permit professional managers of complexes to serve as nonvoting associate members.

Associate membership would also be open to persons such as a representative of Cambridge on the Lake in Buffalo Grove, where the owners' association will be controlled by the builder for another 18 months.

The next meeting of the combined association will be at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 20 at the Sheffield Towne Club, 1000 S. Walnut Ln., Schaumburg.

THESE TWO students were among 10 Hersey High School students who think they leapfrogged into the Guinness Book of World Records Saturday. It took 11 hours and 55 minutes for the group to go around the school gym 1,120 times or a distance of 56 miles. The former record is believed to have been 50 miles.

Employee scares off masked holdup men

Two masked robbers, one of them armed with a pistol, were scared off early Sunday when an employee walked into the front section of Dunkin' Donuts, 451 S. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, police said.

The pair entered the store at about 5 a.m., handing a note to a woman cashier. One of the bandits had a blue-steel pistol at his side. When the woman spoke to him, the robber with the gun immediately demanded the store's money, police were told.

A second employee then entered the front section, and the pair fled on foot from the store, police said.

The suspects were described as about 17, white, each about 5 feet 10 inches tall and thin, police said. They wore navy blue pea coats and pants.

'Openness' heads party's list of goals

by STIRLING MORITA

Planning and government openness, topped the Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress village election platform presented Sunday to 230 residents.

Consumer advocacy was among the issues listed in an eight-plank platform at SCOPP's organizational convention at the Big Banjo in the Town Square shopping center. By late Sunday afternoon, SCOPP had recruited about 90 members, raising its membership to about 120.

"Oh, yeah," said David Johnson, party chairman, "we expected to pack the place."

THE PARTY'S six candidates for April's village election gave short speeches. Sally O'Brien, candidate for village president, heads the slate, which includes Carolyn Sue Jordan, village clerk candidate; James Origer, Lawrence Thielon and Martin Ryan, candidates for four-year trustee terms, and Dominic Levita, candidate for two-year trustee term.

Before giving her speech on government accessibility, Mrs. O'Brien told reporters there would be no question-and-answer period because "we want time to meet the people." She added that the candidates would be willing at a later date to explain in detail the various platform planks.

Listed under planned progress were appointing an expert planner, basing growth on professional studies, making stringent development guidelines, requiring environmental impact statements from developers and referendums for municipal bonds sold for private developments.

The platform said an ordinance should be adopted for village officials to make an oath that they have no conflicts of interest and that a board of ethics would be established.

A DEPARTMENT of consumer advocacy would be created, and all consumer complaints received would be investigated. A special ordinance requiring that rental-security deposits be available in cases of flooding or other safety hazards in apartments.

Motor fuel taxes, building-permit revenue and sales taxes would not be considered stable village income, and there would be full disclosure of income and expenditures. Priorities would be established to ease serious traffic problems and use accessibility as a prime consideration in judging future development.

Also recognized in the platform is intergovernmental cooperation including liaison with the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission and citizen participation in government, including appointments by qualification rather than participation in a political party.

Johnson said a door-to-door membership drive would be conducted. Memberships cost at least $1, and higher donations will be accepted.

Elk Grove vs. 'Flesh Gordon'—to show or not to show?

by JILL BETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Pancoe does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's super-heroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Pancoe said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Pancoe from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Pancoe contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCOE TRIED to show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days before a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Pancoe filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Pancoe agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Pancoe is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned movie-goers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or patently offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of, excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or PGs. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Plitt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em [the public]. Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuella," a film currently popular in New York.

MUSCLES STRAIN as Fremd High School students work out on the U. S. Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness tests. Marine Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne and two other Marine sergeants conducted the tests last week.

Almost isn't good enough in Marine fitness tests

by DOROTHY OLIVER

He sucked in his breath, tightened his muscles and started the painful ascent of the chinning bar for the 13th time. He struggled, pulled up his legs, gasped and dropped to the mat after coming inches from his goal.

"Pretty good," said the unsmiling Marine in the navy blue sweatshirt as he marked the boy's score sheet and turned his eyes to another red-faced kid straining at the bar.

"Most of the high school kids we work with out here do pretty well," Marine Sgt. William Thompson said as he surveyed the scene and the lines of Fremd High School students waiting their turns.

Thompson, a recruiter from the Marine Corps Palatine office, Sgt. Dennis Roby and Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne of the Chicago recruitment office, have been putting high school students through their paces for weeks, scoring their achievement in U.S. Marine Corp. Youth Physical Fitness tests.

THE TESTS ARE tough and the Marines know it — they must prove their physical fitness four times a year in similar drills.

To achieve a perfect score a high school boy would have to do 30 pullups, 100 situps in two minutes, 60 pushups without resting, 41 squat thrusts in one minute, and jump 8 feet 10 inches in the standing long jump.

To achieve a certificate of excellence he would have to do 80 situps, 45 pushups, 23 pullups, 34 squat thrusts and jump 8 feet 7 inches, Thompson said.

About 55 to 60 per cent of the students around here are getting certificates," said Thompson, who has scored tests at Hersey and Palatine High Schools and will be at Wheeling High School this week.

The Marine testing is in its third year, the sergeant said. "Two years ago we gave it in about 65 schools in the Chicago area. Last year about 400 schools competed and this year we're hitting about every school in the state."

THE TEST RESULTS are compiled by the Marines and returned to the school. School officials choose the top six seniors to represent them in a Chicago-area competition. Winners of the Chicago tournament are entered in a national competition in Washington, D.C. where they vie for scholarships and school sports equipment.

The Marines also provide a test for high school girls but so far in this area only Hersey High School has had girls in competition.

"The Hersey girls did so well we had to rewrite the test," Thompson said.

The purpose of the testing goes beyond promoting physical fitness or the Marine Corps. Thompson said schools use the results to evaluate their programs and students.

As fresh classes of students enter the gym and head for the lines waiting to be tested, there are the typical salutes and the whistled strains of the Marine theme song.

Thompson takes it with a smile. "We hear that everywhere we go. These kids are no different," he said. "They're all really enthusiastic and they put out a lot of effort. By the third day of testing they're counting on their fingers and toes to see how many points they need to get their certificate."

2 teens arrested in coin box theft

Schaumburg police arrested two Hoffman Estates youths Wednesday after the pair allegedly stole $100 in change from washing machines at the Village-In-the-Park apartments.

The two youths, aged 15 and 16, were arrested after a citizen reported two youths were prying open coin boxes on the machines in the basement of a building at 1427 N. Valley Lake Dr.

Both youths were released to the custody of their parents.

Camp Fire get-together

A Camp Fire Girls Wing Ding will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Sandburg School, 2600 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows, to introduce girls aged 6, 7 and 8 to the Camp Fire Girls program.

Camp Fire Girls participate in a variety of activities including music, games, hand arts and trips to the community. Mothers and daughters are welcome to the get-together.

Nature club shows film

"Say Goodbye," a film on man's destruction of wildlife and a songfest led by Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher and his wife, Marguerite, will highlight Thursday's 8 p.m. meeting of Spring Valley Nature Center Club.

The club will also elect officers for the coming year, a spokesman said. The public is invited.

The club will meet at Melneko Community Center, 220 E. Weatherford Way.

Controls lights, temperatures

'Big Brother' computer saves schools $500 a week

by BOB GALLAS

Shades of "1984" There is a "Big Brother" silently watching over several schools in High School Dist. 211 24 hours a day. The super spy, a computer operated from a control room 20 miles away, does not peer over the shoulders of the students, however.

Instead, it is content to turn lights on and off, control room temperatures, monitor ventilation, sound the alarm on malfunctioning equipment — and save the district more than $500 a week in energy costs.

The system, which controls heating and air conditioning along with some outside lighting, was installed in 1973 at Schaumburg High School.

THIS YEAR, similar systems have been installed in Conant and Hoffman Estates high schools. Cost-benefit studies will determine if the system will be expanded to the rest of the district's schools.

Remote control of building mechanical systems in schools is a new concept, said James Slater, Dist. 211 business manager.

The system cost about $14,000 its first year at Schaumburg plus a one-time installation fee for sensors and equipment tie-in of about $12,000.

The system was projected to pay for itself in three years, but in power and maintenance savings combined with longer equipment life because of less running time, the system saved the district about $20,000 its first year, Slater said.

"We thought it would take three years for us to break even," said Slater. "Instead it took 1½."

FIGURES FOR Hoffman and Conant high schools are not available yet, but gas usage at Schaumburg went down almost 65 per cent the first year the system was in operation, Slater said. Electricity use was down almost 1 million kilowatts, or 8 per cent.

Sensors pass information on heat and equipment functions by telephone line to a computer in Lincolnwood. The computer keeps an eye on about 100 checkpoints.

If a heating unit fails to kick on, the temperature in a room gets too hot or too cold or a parking lot light fails to go on, the computer sounds an alarm and an operator notifies the school.

Changes in the schedule are also handled by the operator who can, by the touch of a button, ventilate a gym for a basketball game or heat the cafeteria for an evening play.

In addition to substantially reduced energy usage and lower utility bills, Slater said the system also has other advantages.

SINCE IT was installed at Schaumburg, equipment running time has been cut from 19 to eight hours a day, meaning two to three times longer operating life for machinery.

Manpower also is cut. Slater estimated the remote controls eliminates the need for the equivalent of 1½ employees per building, a savings of $15,000 per building annually.

In addition to notifying school officials of trouble or breakdowns, the computer also prints out a log, listing the problems, so maintenance personnel can spot trends early, sometimes before a major breakdown occurs.

The computer has also done away with complaints that a room is too hot or too cold, as was the case in the past, Slater said.

"The computer knows when it's getting too hot or cold in a classroom before those in the classroom know it."

Schools' handling of land plea criticized

A Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education member has criticized fellow school officials on their handling of a request made to the Hoffman Estates Park District for the return of some former Dist. 54 property for additions to two schools.

The park district is expected to act on the land transfer when it meets Tuesday night. School Board member Edward Bedard Thursday criticized school officials, saying they treated the park district in a "high-handed fashion."

The land adjacent to Twinbrook and Fairview schools was turned over to the park district five years ago. At that time Dist. 54 did not plan additions to the two buildings. Since then the district has decided to add to Twinbrook and Fairview and bids for the project are scheduled to be opened Feb. 11.

THROUGH AN oversight, the architect's plans for the additions were drawn so that the buildings will encroach on park district property. Dist. 54 is now asking the park district to give back part of its land.

"I think we acted in a very poor manner here. What we did seriously messed up work they were doing," said Bedard. The park district should have been contacted before the plans were drawn, he added.

The mistake was "probably an oversight," said Al Binder, director of parks and recreation for the Hoffman Estates Park District. "I certainly do not feel it will cause a friction in the relationship between the two government bodies." Both school and park district officials are agreeable to the transfer, he said.

THE TRANSFER will mean the park district will have to move a baseball diamond farther west on the site at Twinbrook, said Binder, and the football and soccer field at the Fairview site will become smaller making it unsuitable for organized play.

Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 assistant superintendent for finance, said he takes the blame for the oversight because he did not check the location of the park district property before the architect drew up plans for the addition.

The park district land is favored for the additions to the schools for two reasons, said Lapicola. Soil tests show the property is the most suitable for building, he said, and the plans for the additions were drawn so classrooms, offices and libraries are in good locations in the buildings to ensure ease of traffic flow inside the school.

Both additions are scheduled to open in Sept. 1976. The addition at Twinbrook School will contain offices, a library and two classrooms and the one at Fairview will contain five classrooms and a library.

Parks planning marina, miniature golf course

Plans are under way for a miniature golf course and marina for residents in the Schaumburg Park District.

The park district's staff was requested Thursday to come back to the park board before March 1 with a proposal for a portable, miniature golf course that would be set up during the summer on the hockey rink at Timbercrest Park. Fencing would also be needed around the hockey rink.

Paul Derda, park district director, noted that such an operation could possibly net the district about $12,000 in revenue the first year.

Derda also explained that there are tentative plans for a portable marina at Campanelli Lake when the park district gets the deed to the retention pond and about five acres near the new police station site east of Schaumburg High School. The park board also discussed the possibility of portable sheds that could serve as concession stands and maintenance storage sheds at Timbercrest and Sharon Lane sites.

Derda said the projects could be financed through interest earned off the investment of $2.5 million in bonds — approved for park improvement projects and land acquisition.

In other business, the board authorized Derda to sign an agreement with Levitt Residential Communities Inc. for acceptance of about 35 acres of field, trailways and marshland on the Gray Farm development, between Schaumburg and Bodo roads and east of Barrington Road.

Ron Dudley, superintendent of parks, told the board that Plote Inc., an excavating company, has donated a five-ton truck, valued at $6,500.

Fremd tops Palatine; Gillette, Hanks star

by PAUL LOGAN

Big, little and in the middle — all who wore the green and gold also wore smiles Friday night.

Why? Ask any Fremd player and he'll tell you there's nothing like a win after losing five straight games. And making it all the more pleasurable for the Vikings was the fact that arch-rival Palatine was the victim.

"They were the better ball club tonight," said Pirate coach Ron Finfrock after the Vikings had rolled to a convincing 79-66 victory at Fremd.

"They had the smaller ball club but they beat the hell out of us on the defensive boards."

Although enjoying a height advantage at almost every position, the Pirates lost the battle of the boards 51-28. Leading the Vikes in that department were Jim Recher (14) and Paul Gillette (11).

Gillette proved to be "Mr. Big" in this first round of the "village championship" because he played both ends of the court. The 6-foot-4½ junior center was making his first start after two games on the sidelines.

"This is the best ball game he's had," said a very happy Leon Kasuboske.

Dist. 211 sports

Fremd's coach also added, "It looks like he's got his job back now."

"He's got a cold, too, but he was tough," said guard Ken Hanks of his muscular teammate. "That's what we need out of him."

Hanks, Fremd's smallest starter at 5-8½, shared co-starring honors with Gillette with his excellent over-all play. Besides matching big Paul in scoring with 16, the quick senior playmaker registered seven assists, five steals and an added bonus of six rebounds.

With Hanks hitting three of his first four shots, Fremd took a 16-13 first-quarter lead as Palatine could only hit on six of 21 field goals.

Both teams hit nearly half their attempts in the second quarter, but Fremd had a flurry midway in the period to break the fifth and last tie score and go up 32-22. Reserves Paul Stanczak and Kevin Lavin led this assault as Kasuboske continually went to his bench in order to keep his starters in top shape.

A rare five-point play gave Fremd a 42-37 halftime lead. Rick Kolze hit one from 18 feet and was fouled. He sank the first-half of a one-and-one with Gillette rebounding the missed second try.

Both teams continued in their same defensive tactics through the third quarter — Fremd in a man-to-man and Palatine in a 1-2-2 zone. During that period the Vikings doubled their lead despite the fine shooting of Mark Mara.

Mara, enjoyed a 17-point second half and led both teams with 26, but Fremd maintained its margin. Helping offset Palatine's big gun over the final 16 minutes was Recher, who tossed in 11 of his 13.

Five Fremd players hit in double figures. Joining Hanks (who was 6 of 10), Gillette (7 of 12) and Recker were Tim Gross and Lavin with 12 and 10, respectively. Kolze was just one basket short with eight points.

Behind Mara were two double figures men — Kevin McKenna with 19 and Jim Maycan with 11.

"We needed that ball game. Everybody played really hard," said Kasuboske, who added that Lavin's defensive play really pleased him.

It was Fremd's second win in the Mid-Suburban League against four losses. Palatine's conference mark is 3-3.

The second "Battle of Palatine" will take place Feb. 4. The Pirates have already marked their calendars. They like to smile, too, after games.

Saxons still winless in MSL

Conant gets by Schaumburg, 43-40

by BOB GALLAS

Cold shooting and a technical foul on the part of the Schaumburg Saxons helped Conant gain its first Mid-Suburban League win of the year, 43-40.

The host Saxons, who managed only two baskets and six points the final period, were nevertheless holding on to a 36-34 lead over the equally cold Cougars with four minutes left in the game.

But then Schaumburg was whistled for an offensive foul and things turned around for the Cougars as the Saxons were hit.

Mark Pellegrino hit one of two foul shots and the technical to tie the game.

Getting the ball in bounds because of the technical, the Cougars passed into Ron Sulaski underneath for two more to take the lead for good at 38-38.

Conant's Pete Scatfield added two baskets to a Mike Frisch free throw to ice the game for Conant, which kept its victory string over the Saxons intact.

The Cougars have beaten the Saxons eight times in eight tries since Schaumburg opened four years ago.

A 2-3 zone defense by the Cougars held Schaumburg's scoring ace Jon McIlraith to his lowest point total ever, which was a key to the Conant victory.

McIlraith, who's averaging close to 20 points per game, was held to only seven points, mainly due to the fine defensive work of the Cougars' big man, Sulaski.

Sulaski, out of practice all week and a doubtful starter because of an ankle injury, opened fire in the first half with 13 points while helping hold McIlraith to five in the first half.

"We didn't think Ron (Sulaski) would play until right before gametime," said

Ron Sulaski

Conant coach Dick Redlinger. "We had the ankle on ice during the preliminary game and just before we went out he said it was OK," Redlinger said.

"Maybe I'll hold him out of practice next week too," Redlinger smiled.

The Mid-Suburban League jinx for the Saxons continued to the dismay of Schaumburg coach Joe Breault, whose team sports a 9-1 record in non-conference games, but is 0-6 in the MSL.

"We peaked against Austin High School in the Christmas tournament and ever since then we'll have a problem on either offense or defense. We can't put them both together," said Breault.

Also in a slump is the Saxons' leading scorer McIlraith, who hasn't been shooting well for the past three games, said Breault.

Breault couldn't help daydreaming a little about what things would be like with his team, with the addition of Cougar starters, Frisch and Pete Scatfield, who as freshmen played for Schaumburg's 17-1 freshman team.

The two went to Conant as part of a boundary change when Hoffman Estates High School opened.

Junior Ed Chmiel picked up the scoring slack for the Saxons, hitting for 18.

The win pulled the Cougars out of a tie for last in the MSL South with the Saxons. Conant is now 1-5 in MSL play, 5-7 over-all.

Hawks post 57-50 win

The second quarter proved an important one for Hoffman Estates.

Playing at Buffalo Grove Friday night, the Hawks' press started working and allowed them to outscore the Bison 18-7. Keying the tough defensive playing that period were Joe Gajewski, Jim Villiers, John Staback, Jim Moore and Paul Harshbarger — the latter two being reserves.

The Hawks of Coach Jerry Segebrecht rode that big quarter to victory, holding off the Bison for a 57-50 decision. It was the first loss for the Bison in the Mid-Suburban League after five straight wins. Hoffman improved its junior varsity league mark to 4-3.

"Gajewski had a real excellent night," said Segebrecht. The versatile 5-foot-10 junior played forward the first half and guard the second, finishing with 23 points and 10 rebounds. Scoring behind him were Geno Foster and Villiers with eight

Cards 6-0 in North after victory

by KEITH REINHARD

Aesthetically, Arlington and Wheeling have done better in previous confrontations.

Both teams earned A-plususes in a couple of other categories Friday night though... like tenacity and relentlessness. Give the hosting Cardinals an extra plus since they won the game 56-51.

It was the sixth straight in conference for coach George Zigman and his raiding, pillaging team of bandits, allowing them a comfortable two-game margin over the Wildcats, now 4-2. The victory came neither easily nor smoothly however since Ted Eckert's outfit brandishes their own brand of banditry.

"For a team as big and physical as they are, Wheeling is surprisingly quick," Zigman suggested. "Outside of LaGrange (a team that has beaten both the Cards and 'Cats this season), they're the best ballclub we've faced all year."

The key then, to the game, was the ferocious defense thrown up by both squads. It was to the credit of the visitors that they prompted 27 Redbird turnovers — as many as Zigman is used to seeing his charges commit in two or three games combined — but it was to the credit of Arlington conversely that despite their benevolence afield and an equally frustrating night at the line, they were still able to win.

A couple of moves by Arlington — one a downright gamble — probably made the difference. One was the permanent insertion of 6-1 Jim Grandt into the lineup late in the first half.

The other was the decision to let Jerry DeSimone ride it out after getting tabbed with three quick personals.

"Leaving Jerry in was a tough choice to make," Zigman recalled. "It could have easily backfired. As it turned out though, the choice was a good one. He was overly aggressive in the early going and the fouls forced him to play a little more conservatively."

Grandt, on the other hand, came on like a time bomb and never did unwind. He was a demon on the boards, tied up Wheeling's 6-10 center Steve Criss on three occasions and bettered him on the jump, and contributed eight valuable second half points.

Criss got in some jabs too though. In the first quarter he sparked a Wheeling offensive that hiked his team into a stunning 19-9 command. Arlington was only able to convert a couple times from the floor during that first eight-minute segment and found itself trailing by eight at quarter's end.

The momentum transferred just as dramatically away from the guests in the second stanza. A cooler DeSimone hit two long distance jumpers and John Yeazel and Dennis Gaare were also bombing away while the Cards were outscoring Wheeling 15-7 to forge a 26-26 midgame standoff.

In the second half Wildcat Ed Kruk moved into high gear and the visitors pulled out in front again 33-32. Arlington rallied however before the third quarter ended on a couple of inside buckets by Terry Donahue, shaving Wheeling's lead to two.

Yeazel plunked in a pair from the line to open the final period, knotting the game at 42-all and Grandt's 10 footer put the Cards on top. Criss connected on a nifty ten-foot turnaround jumper from the baseline moments later but it was the last time the guests were to pull even.

With 5:24 left on the clock Gaare connected in a crowd underneath, was fouled, and pitched in the gratis throw. The gap was never less than three after that.

Elk Grove vs. 'Flesh Gordon'—to show or not to show?

by JILL BETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Panceo does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's superheroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Panceo said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Panceo from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Panceo contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCEO TRIED TO show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days while a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Panceo filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Panceo agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Panceo is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned moviegoers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or patently offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or GPs. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Plitt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em (the public). Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuelle," a film currently popular in New York.

Artemenko to seek new schools term

Eugene Artemenko, a member of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education since 1971, said he will seek reelection in the April election.

Artemenko, 431 Millers Rd., Des Plaines, was appointed to the board in 1971. The following year he was elected to a three-year term which expires this April.

"I'd like to serve another term," Artemenko said. "My years on the board have been rewarding and personally satisfying to me."

Artemenko, 46, served for five years on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education before moving over to the Dist. 214 board.

TWO OTHER PERSONS are considering running for two vacant seats on the board.

Arthur Aronson, 2818 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Arlington Heights, said earlier he did not know whether he would have enough time to serve a fifth term on the Dist. 214 board.

A member since 1962 and a school board veteran of more than 20 years, Aronson is the senior member of the Dist. 214 board.

Eugene Artemenko

Another possible candidate for the board is Al Domanico, 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village.

Domanico has been a member of the Dist. 59 Board of Education for 4½ years. He said he plans to retire from that board when his current term expires in April, but has not made a decision yet on whether he will run for the Dist. 214 board.

The first day for candidates to file for the April 12 school board election is Feb. 26.

FREMD HIGH SCHOOL cheerleaders are exuberant as they cheer their team on to victory against arch-rival Palatine Friday 79-66. The victory broke a five-game losing streak for the Vikings. Top scorers for Fremd were Paul Gillette and Ken Hanks with 16 points each. Details in Sports.

Incinerator to generate city's heat?

The possibility of using the proposed city incinerator to generate electricity or steam for heating is being considered by Rolling Meadows officials.

The likelihood of using the heat, however, is considered remote by Commonwealth Edison Co. officials.

The possibility was raised last week in a city board of health meeting. Several aldermen have suggested using the incinerator as a power source.

However, Jack Stephens, district superintendent for Commonwealth Edison, cited several factors, primarily cost, that apparently would make it impossible for the city to construct an incinerator with a power supply on land the city has set aside for the incinerator.

The city owns a 6.7-acre site on Rohlfing Road at the city's northern boundary where it has been planning to build an incinerator.

Stephens said the city would have to build two structures, a solid-waste processing plant and a generator plant, to process the steam. The nearest generator outside Chicago is in Waukegan.

Stephens also pointed out that Commonwealth Edison is not obligated to buy processed waste from the city and the price it would pay is not fixed.

"The cost to construct a handling plant is enormous, and then all you have is a processing plant. A generator costs $300 per kilowatt hour, and our smallest generator is a half-million kilowatts," he said.

Stephens said a large supply of garbage would be needed, raising the possibility that other municipalities would have to use the city incinerator, at a fee, to obtain a sufficient amount.

He also noted other potential problems, including the city's ability to compete with Commonwealth Edison in selling energy or steam as cheaply as the utility company can. The city also would need the go-ahead from the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has authority over utility firms.

MUSCLES STRAIN as Fremd High School students work out on the U. S. Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness tests. Marine Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne and two other Marine sergeants conducted the tests last week.

Almost isn't good enough in Marine fitness tests

by DOROTHY OLIVER

He sucked in his breath, tightened his muscles and started the painful ascent of the chinning bar for the 13th time. He struggled, pulled up his legs, gasped and dropped to the mat after coming inches from his goal.

"Pretty good," said the unsmiling Marine in the navy blue sweatshirt as he marked the boy's score sheet and turned his eyes to another red-faced kid straining at the bar.

"Most of the high school kids we work with out here do pretty well," Marine Sgt. William Thompson said as he surveyed the scene and the lines of Fremd High School students waiting their turns.

Thompson, a recruiter from the Marine Corps Palatine office, Sgt. Dennis Roby and Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne of the Chicago recruitment office, have been putting high school students through their paces for weeks, scoring their achievement in U.S. Marine Corp. Youth Physical Fitness tests.

THE TESTS ARE tough and the Marines know it — they must prove their physical fitness four times a year in similar drills.

To achieve a perfect score a high school boy would have to do 30 pullups, 100 situps in two minutes, 60 pushups without resting, 41 squat thrusts in one minute, and jump 9 feet 10 inches in the standing long jump.

To achieve a certificate of excellence he would have to do 80 situps, 45 pushups, 23 pullups, 34 squat thrusts and jump 8 feet 7 inches, Thompson said.

About 53 to 60 per cent of the students around here are getting certificates," said Thompson, who has scored tests at Hershey and Palatine High Schools and will be at Wheeling High School this week.

The Marine testing is in its third year, the sergeant said. "Two years ago we gave it in about 65 schools in the Chicago area. Last year about 400 schools competed and this year we're hitting about every school in the state."

THE TEST RESULTS are compiled by the Marines and returned to the school. School officials choose the top six seniors to represent them in a Chicago-area competition. Winners of the Chicago tournament are entered in a national competition in Washington, D.C. where they vie for scholarships and school sports equipment.

The Marines also provide a test for high school girls but so far in this area only Hershey High School has had girls in competition.

"The Hershey girls did so well we had to rewrite the test," Thompson said.

The purpose of the testing goes beyond promoting physical fitness or the Marine Corps. Thompson said schools use the results to evaluate their programs and students.

As fresh classes of students enter the gym and head for the lines waiting to be tested, there are the typical salutes and the whistled strains of the Marine theme song.

Thompson takes it with a smile. "We hear that everywhere we go. These kids are no different," he said. "They're all really enthusiastic and they put out a lot of effort. By the third day of testing they're counting on their fingers and toes to see how many points they need to get their certificate."

School may close soon

Gregory site to be sought for program for disturbed

The Northwest Education Cooperative will seek to lease Gregory School in Mount Prospect for the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children if Mount Prospect Dist. 57 decides to close the building.

The NEC governing board agreed Saturday to begin negotiations with Dist. 57 for a three year lease on Gregory School. The school would house the children from the Dwyer elementary program which is now in Dwyer School in Arlington Heights and also the Dwyer junior high school program which is in Hoffman Estates High School.

Dist. 57 has been studying the possibility of closing the building because of declining enrollments and plans a public hearing on the question Tuesday at Gregory School. A citizen's committee has recommended closing the school and has estimated that renting the building would bring in about $861,000 in revenue to the district in the next five years.

NEC OFFICIALS did not disclose how much they plan to offer Dist. 57 for the use of Gregory. Several other agencies, including the Mount Prospect Park District, have expressed an interest in renting the building.

The Dwyer program has about 120 students. NEC officials say the elementary school program has outgrown the eight-classroom Dwyer School building and High School Dist. 211 has said the junior high school program will not be able to use Hoffman Estates High School next year.

In other action Saturday, the NEC board approved a policy on giving parents access to student records held by the cooperative on 24-hour notice. The police states that the student's official records will be kept in the district which sends the child to NEC and that NEC student records will be identical to the records held by the local district.

NEC Executive Director Gloria Kinney said that if parents want to challenge anything in their child's records under terms of a new federal law they will go through the procedures set up by their local districts, not directly through NEC.

"It's going to be our responsibility and the responsibility of the member districts to make sure parents know there are two sets of records on their children," she said. "I hope we can make it as easy as possible for parents to have access to their child's records."

Kretschmar development may lead to new debate

Rolling Meadows officials appear headed for another round of debates concerning the size of commercial developments.

The city council's public works, building and zoning committee will meet with John Kretschmar at 8 p.m. Monday meeting to consider development of Kretschmar's seven-acre commercial site at Golf and Algonquin roads.

Kretschmar recently lost a lawsuit against the city in which he sought a court order allowing him to develop the seven acres in small commercial sites. The city ruled that Kretschmar must file a total development plan, noting that small projects would require separate driveways onto Golf and Algonquin that would worsen traffic congestion.

Although Kretschmar had filed a notice with the courts that he would appeal the decision against him, City Atty. Donald Rose said Kretschmar recently withdrew his motion for an appeal. But he could refile his old plan, meeting technical paper work deficiencies cited by the city.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS also will receive a formal contract proposal from Wilton Battles, president of Planning Horizons Inc., Des Plaines, for preparation of a master plan, housing plan, community-development plan and land-use plan for the city.

Battles said earlier this month total cost for the four plans would be $23,500. The community development and housing plans are required if the city decides to apply for federal funding under the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act. Battles said the city should obtain the plans anyway to block potential applications by developers seeking federal aid for housing projects the city might find undesirable.

The city also should place priority on the master plan, he added.

These plans provide the city with a basis for arguing against developments which residents do not favor, and for dealing with governmental agencies in such areas as road, sewer or other improvements or funding, he said.

Plum Grove Bank gets OK for sign variation

Plum Grove Bank has received approval from the Rolling Meadows City Council for a variation allowing it to mount an oversized sign on the east wall of the bank building.

The variation was recommended for approval by the license, police, health and fire committee, which met as a special-use committee last week.

The bank is at 2701 Algonquin Rd.

The council also agreed to create another special-use committee to review a sign variance request for The Treasury Store. The committee appointment was not made Tuesday, but it is expected to be one of the council's standing committees, according to usual procedures.

Head-on crash kills woman, 22

A 22-year-old Palatine woman was killed, and a Wisconsin man injured Saturday in a two-car head-on crash on Dundee Road, about a mile west of Quentin Road in Palatine Township.

Kathy Davenport, 1201 Long Valley Dr., the driver of one car, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital.

Also injured was the driver of the other car, Ernest Andres, 33, Twin Lakes, Wis. He was released after treatment at the Arlington Heights hospital.

The mishap occurred at about 4:35 a.m. State police said the Davenport vehicle strayed into the opposite lane of traffic and collided with the Andres car.

The two were transported to the hospital by a Palatine Fire Dept. ambulance.

Suspect, 31, now linked to 5 murders

An Indianapolis man suspected in the Nov. 18 slaying of a Prospect Heights real estate salesman is now under investigation in five Chicago-area murders.

Gary Duane Rardon, 31, who has been held in Louisville, Ky., since his capture Thursday by FBI agents, is a suspect in the slaying of a South Suburban Posen gun store owner and a store employee during a robbery Dec. 16, Sheriff's police said.

Matt Counts, 52, owner of Suburban Arms Gun Shop, 2753 W. 147th St., and one of his part-time clerks, Mitchell Kosobucki, 19, of Posen, were found shot to death behind a counter in the store.

At least two shotguns and several pistols were stolen by the killer, police said.

Police said Rardon has made an "initial confession" to the Nov. 15 shotgun slaying of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights, at the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

Police said Thursday that Rardon also had confessed to the Nov. 18 slaying of Asher Gruenberg, 50, of Skokie, in Franklin Park, and the Nov. 17 murder of Herbert J. Noakes, 31, of Hammond, Ind. Noakes was killed in his taxi cab in Calumet City.

Franklin Park police, who issued the first warrant for Rardon's arrest, said they were able to trace Rardon because he was using the credit cards stolen from Gruenberg. The State's Attorneys office plans to extradite Rardon this week.

Homeowners oppose 6-story apartments

More than 50 residents of the Spinnaker Cove subdivision in Palatine are protesting the proposed construction of six-story apartment buildings and a shopping center on 94 acres north of their homes.

The residents voiced their opposition during a public hearing by the County Zoning Board of Appeals at the Slade Street Fire Station.

Michael Kroizere, developer of the Prairie Brook project, requested a zoning change that would allow him to construct a 20,000-square-foot commercial complex on Rand Road, the northern boundary of the development. Kroizere also requested the outward design of the apartment buildings be changed, and that he be allowed to relocate some buildings on different parts of the development.

Kroizere has proposed a two-phase development of the land on Baldwin Road just south of Rand Road. Three hundred apartment units would be constructed beginning in April. Almost 2,000 apartments would be built by 1976.

Spinnaker Cove residents said they oppose the developer's "vagueness" as to the height and density of the buildings planned for the second phase at the southern end of the development, which borders many of their homes.

KROIZERE RECEIVED approval from the County Board for the development of the initial 22 acres, and received zoning for the construction of apartments on the total 94 acres in 1970.

"We weren't even here when he got the zoning to do this, and this is the first time we've seen his plans which call for anywhere from two-to eight-story buildings to be towering in our backyards," said Mary Lynch, 905 N. Williams Dr.

John Jirgenson, president of the Spinnaker Cove Homeowners Assn., said residents are afraid the density of the development will create heavier traffic and increased vandalism in their area.

"We are also concerned about the privacy which the development may take from us. How would you like to have a six-story apartment building in your backyard?" he said.

KROIZERE IS ASKING the zoning board to allow him to build an undetermined amount of two-to six-story buildings while maintaining a maximum density of 2,196 apartments.

"He may decide to put up all six-story buildings along our side of the development," he said.

FREM'D HIGH SCHOOL cheerleaders are exuberant as they cheer their team on to victory against arch-rival Palatine Friday 79-66. The victory broke a five-game losing streak for the Vikings. Top scorers for Fremd were Paul Gillette and Ken Hanks with 16 points each. Details in Sports.

Position to be made appointive?

Referendum on clerk may face voters

Palatine residents may be asked in a referendum April 15 if the village clerk post should be an elected or appointed position.

Village Clerk Diane Greenlees and Deputy Clerk June Boston have endorsed making the village clerk an appointed full-time position. Currently the village clerk is elected to a four-year, part-time position with a $1,200 annual salary.

The administration, finance and legislation committee of the village board will discuss the matter at its 8 p.m. meeting today at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

A decision must be made this month whether to retain the present system of electing a clerk or change it. If the question is to be submitted to the voters in April, the April 15 date has been suggested because it is the same as the village elections.

IF A CHANGE is approved, it would not take effect until Mrs. Greenlees' term expires in 1977.

The village clerk is responsible for taking minutes at the weekly board meetings, signing ordinances and conducting village elections. The deputy clerk handles the day-to-day functions of the clerk's office.

Several area municipalities have full-time clerks, but Arlington Heights is the only one in which the clerk is appointed.

The appointment of a full-time clerk was approved by Arlington Heights voters two years ago. Arlington Heights officials endorsed the change to appointing a full-time clerk because the clerk's duties are mainly administrative and not policy making. Officials also said the clerk would be more available to the public, and elections could be handled more efficiently.

The question of changing the way the clerk is selected has been raised in Palatine presently, but it has never been taken to the voters for approval.

Yeats resigns beautification panel post

David Yeats has resigned as the beautification committee chairman of the Palatine Advisory Board because he is "disenchanted with the lack of village funds available for beautification projects."

Yeats, 542 Carpenter Dr., said he is "anxious" to get beautification projects started, but said "it's impossible to get village funding at this time for them."

"I know the village is having much greater financial problems than they are willing to admit. It is just bad timing to ask for village support for the kinds of projects we have in mind and that are long overdue in Palatine," Yeats said.

The Palatine Advisory Board recently formed the beautification committee to plan and carry out projects that would improve unattractive areas of the village. Yeats recommended that areas along Northwest Highway, near the old downtown railroad station, and in the central business district be cleaned and landscaped.

PLANS WERE TO begin the projects, with the support of community organizations, in the spring when the weather improved.

"But lately I have realized that the village will not be in a position to make funds available to us," Yeats said. "So it's not worth the time and effort to plan the projects if there is no way to pay for them."

Elk Grove vs. 'Flesh Gordon'—to show or not to show?

by JILL DETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Pancoe does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's super-heroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Pancoe said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Pancoe from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Pancoe contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCOE TRIED TO show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days while a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Pancoe filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Pancoe agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Pancoe is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned movie-goers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or patently offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or PGs. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Plitt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

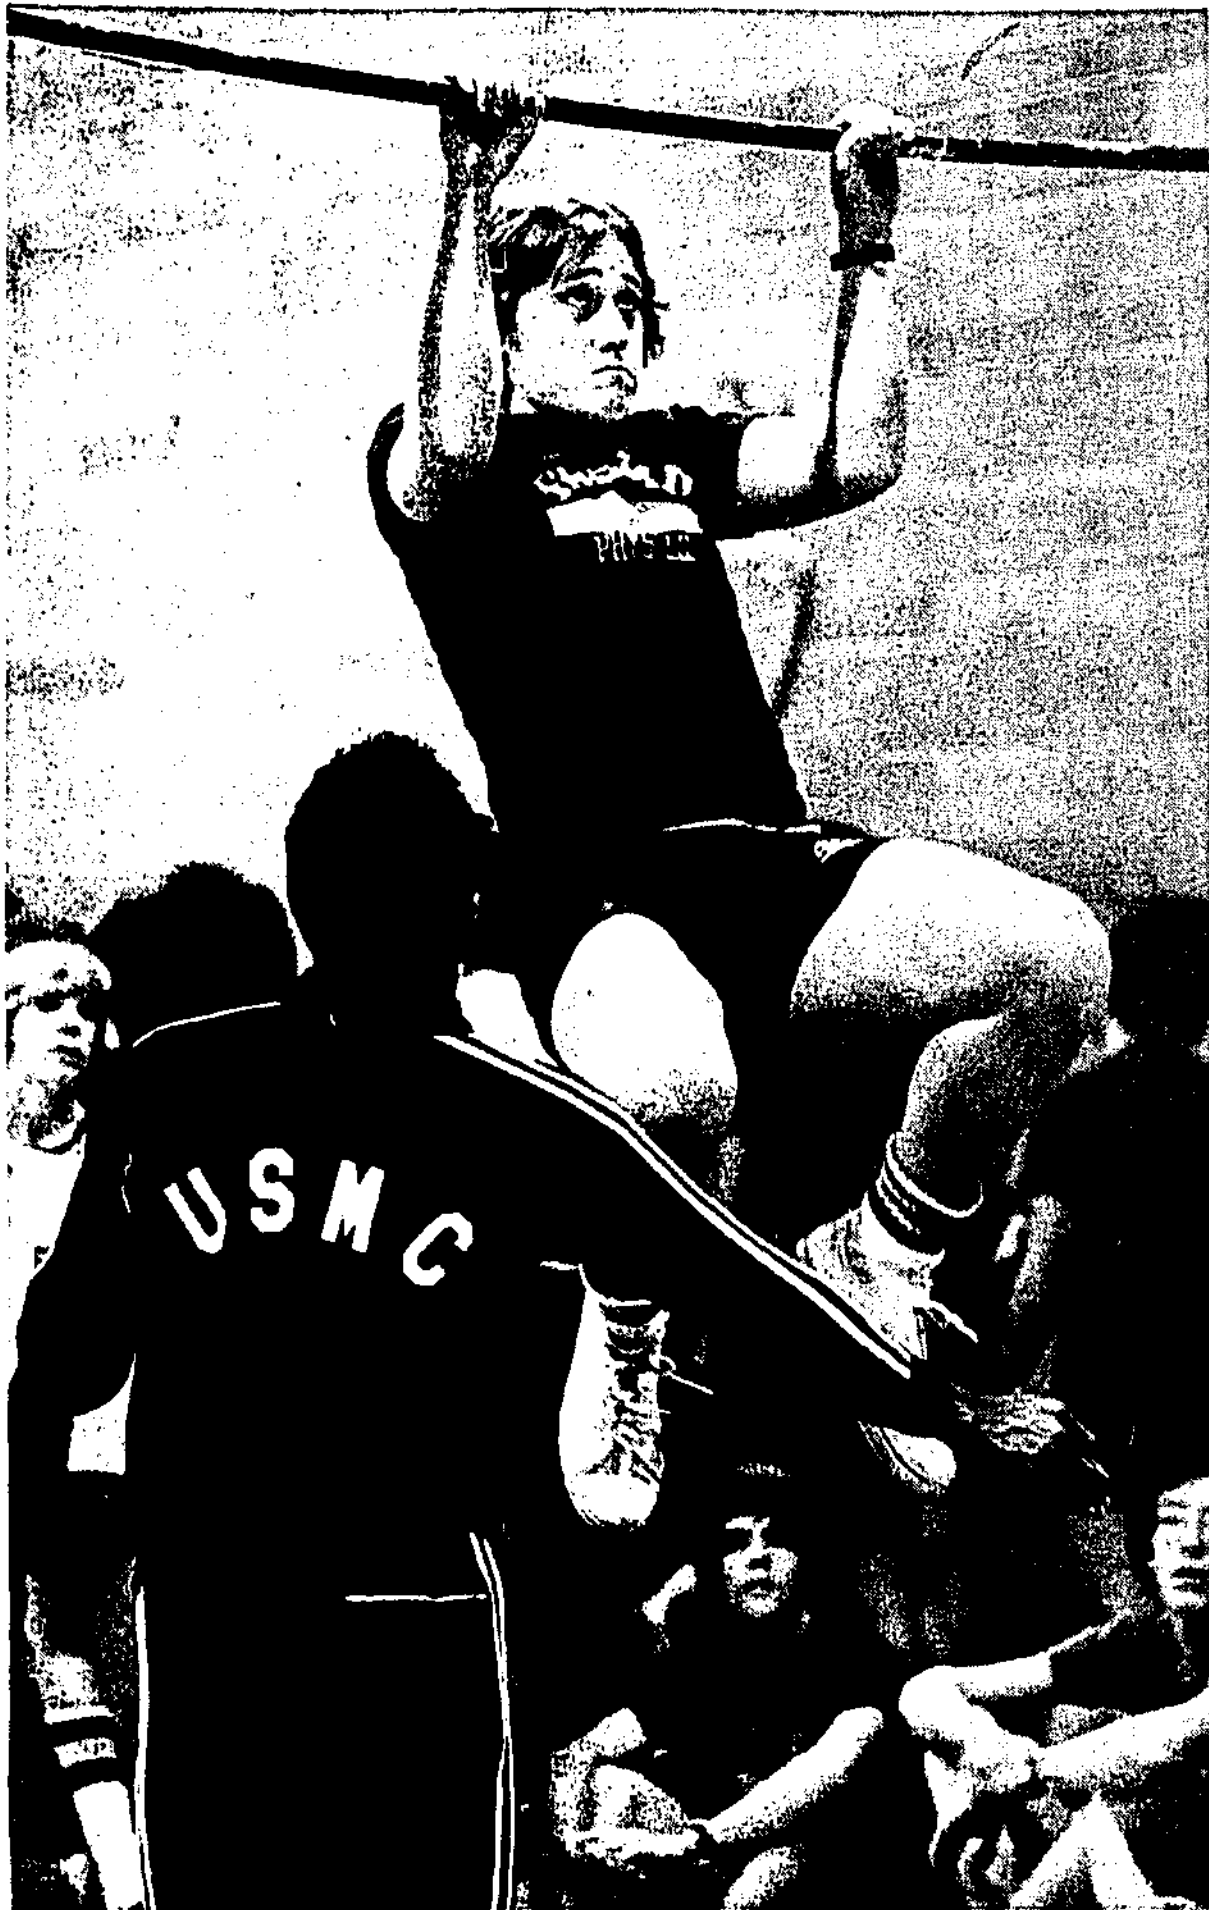

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em [the public]. Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuelle," a film currently popular in New York.

MUSCLES STRAIN as Fremd High School students work out on the U. S. Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness tests. Marine Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne and two other Marine sergeants conducted the tests last week.

Almost isn't good enough in Marine fitness tests

by DOROTHY OLIVER

He sucked in his breath, tightened his muscles and started the painful ascent of the chinning bar for the 13th time. He struggled, pulled up his legs, gasped and dropped to the mat after coming inches from his goal.

"Pretty good," said the unsmiling Marine in the navy blue sweatshirt as he marked the boy's score sheet and turned his eyes to another red-faced kid straining at the bar.

"Most of the high school kids we work with out here do pretty well," Marine Sgt. William Thompson said as he surveyed the scene and the lines of Fremd High School students waiting their turns.

Thompson, a recruiter from the Marine Corps Palatine office, Sgt. Dennis Roby and Staff Sgt. Lorenzo Payne of the Chicago recruitment office, have been putting high school students through their paces for weeks, scoring their achievement in U.S. Marine Corps Youth Physical Fitness tests.

THE TESTS ARE tough and the Marines know it — they must prove their physical fitness four times a year in similar drills.

To achieve a perfect score a high school boy would have to do 30 pullups, 100 situps in two minutes, 60 pushups without resting, 41 squat thrusts in one minute, and jump 9 feet 10 inches in the standing long jump.

To achieve a certificate of excellence he would have to do 80 situps, 45 pushups, 23 pullups, 24 squat thrusts and jump 8 feet 7 inches, Thompson said.

Apartments opposed

opment and we won't have any say about it," Jirgenson said.

Jirgenson said Spinnaker Cove residents will meet this week to discuss the matter, and will present another plea of opposition to the zoning board before it makes its recommendations to the County Board.

About 55 to 60 per cent of the students around here are getting certificates," said Thompson, who has scored tests at Hersey and Palatine High Schools and will be at Wheeling High School this week.

The Marine testing is in its third year, the sergeant said. "Two years ago we gave it in about 63 schools in the Chicago area. Last year about 400 schools competed and this year we're hitting about every school in the state."

THE TEST RESULTS are compiled by the Marines and returned to the school. School officials choose the top six seniors to represent them in a Chicago-area competition. Winners of the Chicago tournament are entered in a national competition in Washington, D.C. where they vie for scholarships and school sports equipment.

The Marines also provide a test for high school girls but so far in this area only Hersey High School has had girls in competition.

"The Hersey girls did so well we had to rewrite the test," Thompson said.

The purpose of the testing goes beyond promoting physical fitness or the Marine Corps. Thompson said schools use the results to evaluate their programs and students.

As fresh classes of students enter the gym and head for the lines waiting to be tested, there are the typical salutes and the whistled strains of the Marine theme song.

Thompson takes it with a smile. "We hear that everywhere we go. These kids are no different," he said. "They're all really enthusiastic and they put out a lot of effort. By the third day of testing they're counting on their fingers and toes to see how many points they need to get their certificate."

Detective nabs teen after store robbery

A 17-year-old Palatine youth was captured early Friday after a foot chase by a Palatine detective within minutes of a robbery of a food store.

Arrested was Keith J. Schinkowsky, 17, of 20 N. Halio St. He was charged with the robbery of the 7-Eleven market, 427 E. Palatine Rd.

Police said Det. Mark Kjellstrom was making a call from a telephone booth shortly after midnight when he saw a man run from the market. The man was reportedly wearing a towel wrapped around his face.

Kjellstrom chased and captured the suspect, later identified as Schinkowsky. A search by Kjellstrom reportedly found $132 missing from the store on Schinkowsky.

Details of the holdup were not available.

Schinkowsky was being held at the Arlington Heights lockup, pending a hearing at the Arlington Heights branch of the Circuit Court.

Controls lights, temperatures

'Big Brother' computer saves schools $500 a week

by BOB GALLAS

Shades of "1984." There is a "Big Brother" silently watching over several schools in High School Dist. 211 24 hours a day. The super spy, a computer operated from a control room 20 miles away, does not peer over the shoulders of the students, however.

Instead, it is content to turn lights on and off, control room temperatures, monitor ventilation, sound the alarm on malfunctioning equipment — and save the district more than $500 a week in energy costs.

The system, which controls heating and air conditioning along with some outside lighting, was installed in 1973 at Schaumburg High School.

THIS YEAR, similar systems have been installed in Conant and Hoffman Estates high schools. Cost-benefit studies will determine if the system will be expanded to the rest of the district's schools.

Remote control of building mechanical systems in schools is a new concept, said James Slater, Dist. 211 business manager.

The system cost about $14,000 its first year at Schaumburg plus a one-time installation fee for sensors and equipment tie-in of about $12,000.

The system was projected to pay for itself in three years, but in power and maintenance savings combined with longer equipment life because of less running time, the system saved the district about $20,000 its first year, Slater said.

"We thought it would take three years for us to break even," said Slater. "Instead it took 1 1/2."

FIGURES FOR Hoffman and Conant high schools are not available yet, but gas usage at Schaumburg went down almost 6.5 per cent the first year the system was in operation, Slater said. Electricity use was down almost 1 million kilowatts, or 8 per cent.

Sensors pass information on heat and equipment functions by telephone line to a computer in Lincolnwood. The computer keeps an eye on about 100 checkpoints.

If a heating unit fails to kick on, the temperature in a room gets too hot or too cold or a parking lot light fails to go on, the computer sounds an alarm and an operator notifies the school.

Changes in the schedule are also handled by the operator who can, by the touch of a button, ventilate a gym for a basketball game or heat the cafeteria for an evening play.

In addition to substantially reduced energy usage and lower utility bills, Slater said the system also has other advantages.

SINCE IT was installed at Schaumburg, equipment running time has been cut from 19 to eight hours a day, meaning two to three times longer operating life for machinery.

Manpower also is cut. Slater estimated the remote controls eliminates the need for the equivalent of 1 1/2 employees per building, a savings of $15,000 per building annually.

In addition to notifying school officials of trouble or breakdowns, the computer also prints out a log, listing the problems, so maintenance personnel can spot trends early, sometimes before a major breakdown occurs.

The computer has also done away with complaints that a room is too hot or too cold, as was the case in the past, Slater said.

them."

Yeats said he has "rallied" enough financial support from residents and civic organizations to initially fund some of the proposed beautification projects. However, he said he believes "continuous funding from the village is essential to maintain the projects once they are begun."

Glen Ann Jicha, president of the Palatine Advisory Board, said Yeats has recommended eight residents and civic leaders interested in developing the beautification projects to serve on the new committee.

"We will go ahead with plans for the beautification projects, hoping to get a lot of financial and legwork support from the village organizations. Without it, the project probably will not be possible," Mrs. Jicha said.

Suspect, 31, now linked to 5 murders

An Indianapolis man suspected in the Nov. 18 slaying of a Prospect Heights real estate salesman is now under investigation in five Chicago-area murders.

Gary Duane Rardon, 31, who has been held in Louisville, Ky., since his capture Thursday by FBI agents, is a suspect in the slaying of a South Suburban Posen gun store owner and a store employee during a robbery Dec. 16, Sheriff's police said.

Matt Counts, 52, owner of Suburban Arms Gun Shop, 2753 W. 147th St., and one of his part-time clerks, Mitchell Kosobucki, 19, of Posen, were found shot to death behind a counter in the store.

At least two shotguns and several pistols were stolen by the killer, police said.

Police said Rardon has made an "initial confession" to the Nov. 15 shotgun slaying of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights, at the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

Police said Thursday that Rardon also had confessed to the Nov. 18 slaying of Asher Gruenberg, 50, of Skokie, in Franklin Park, and the Nov. 17 murder of Herbert J. Noakes, 31, of Hammond, Ind. Noakes was killed in his taxi cab in Calumet City.

Franklin Park police, who issued the first warrant for Rardon's arrest, said they were able to trace Rardon because he was using the credit cards stolen from Gruenberg. The State's Attorneys office plans to extradite Rardon this week.

Head-on crash kills woman, 22

A 22-year-old Palatine woman was killed, and a Wisconsin man injured Saturday in a two-car head-on crash on Dundee Road, about a mile west of Quentin Road in Palatine Township.

Kathy Davenport, 1201 Long Valley Dr., the driver of one car, was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital.

Also injured was the driver of the other car, Ernest Andres, 33, Twin Lakes, Wis. He was released after treatment at the Arlington Heights hospital.

The mishap occurred at about 4:35 a.m. State police said the Davenport vehicle strayed into the opposite lane of traffic and collided with the Andres car.

The two were transported to the hospital by a Palatine Fire Dept. ambulance.

Minton readies campaign

'73 mayoral hopeful weighs trustee race

by TOM VON MALDER

Michael H. Minton, defeated 1973 mayoral candidate, is trying to reactivate his old campaign organization in preparation for a run in the April election for a seat on the Mount Prospect Village Board.

Minton said Sunday he is "considering running," and acknowledged that he has spent the last several days talking with his former campaign workers "to see how much time and effort they are willing to give this time." He said the meetings will continue this week.

Minton, 28, of 1207 W. Lonnquist Blvd., was defeated in his 1973 bid against Mayor Robert D. Telchert by 2,181 votes. Telchert received 6,098 votes, Minton 3,917 and a third candidate, Albert Motsch, polled 531 votes.

THE 1973 CAMPAIGN was often bitter, with numerous personality clashes and charges and counter charges of dirty campaign tactics. Minton filed two lawsuits during the campaign, getting the ballots reprinted in one and attempting to halt what he called a village board "truth squad" which was allegedly harassing his campaign workers in the other.

Minton based much of his campaign on an attack on approval of high-rise buildings and large apartment complexes.

A Minton candidacy for trustee could mean that Telchert, whose term ends in 1977, might take a more active role in the campaign.

Minton said his final decision will have to be made within the next 10 days, so that he can circulate nominating petitions before the Feb. 10 deadline. Minton said if he runs it would probably be for a four-year term.

MINTON SAID he considered trying to form a slate of independent candidates but "it is probably too late to consider it further." Of the independent candidates who have announced so far, Minton said, "I think their platforms are basically sound from what I have read."

Already announced as independent candidates for four-year village board terms are maverick Trustee Richard N. Hendricks and Theodore Wattenberg, a River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education member. Those seeking two-year terms as independents are Leo Flores and Edward B. Rhea Jr., both unsuccessful candidates, and Norma Murauskis.

Rhea, a frequent critic of the policies of Telchert's administration, supported Minton's 1973 mayoral bid.

Opposing the independents is the one announced slate for the April election, The United Citizens Party. It includes Trustees George B. Anderson, Marie L. Caylor and O. T. Gustus, zoning board chairman Carolyn H. Krause and newcomer Edward G. Wells, an attorney. Mrs. Caylor and Gustus are seeking two-year terms.

AT STAKE IN the election are three four-year terms and two two-year terms.

"I personally think," Minton said, "the (UCP) slate has the administration's backing and will probably use the same organization used by the mayor in the last election." Minton added that the mayor's organization is a strong one which is geared toward getting the vote out on election day and that he, Minton, will need an organization as efficient if he should run for the board.

"They definitely have a strong slate," Minton said.

THESE TWO students were among 10 Hersey High School students who think they leapt into the Guinness Book of World Records Saturday. It took 11 hours and 55 minutes for the group to go around the school gym 1,120 times or a distance of 56 miles. The former record is believed to have been 50 miles.

River Trails caucus seeking candidates

The River Trails Dist. 26 caucus is seeking candidates to run for vacancies on the school board in the April election.

Candidate interviews are scheduled for successive Monday nights beginning Jan. 27 and will continue until completed. Candidates will be vying for three three-year terms on the Dist. 26 school board.

The Dist. 26 caucus is composed of two delegates for each PTA and civic association in the district. For further information, contact Ben Baldwin, 259-4409, chairman; Joy Daskal, 296-1716, vice chairman, or John Wilcox, 259-3575, secretary treasurer.

Norma Murauskis to run for board

Norma Murauskis, 47, of 1826 Phasant Tr., announced Sunday she will run as an independent candidate for a two-year term on the Mount Prospect Village Board.

Mrs. Murauskis said she decided to run because "the people need more voice in local government, they need more questions on the village board and I promise to be the most outspoken voice of the people."

The fifth independent candidate, Mrs. Murauskis said she was disappointed that so few people were running for the village board as independents. "I'm not a professional, I'm not a politician, but I think I have proved my interest."

MRS. MURAUSKIS said she feels the village's home-rule powers are becoming dictatorial and are placing a burden on the taxpayers. She said the village board's recent decision to build a $3.2 million public library on the Central School site without first having a referendum on the issue was one example.

As the village "has grown by leaps and bounds," she said she will campaign for an expansion of the village board to nine instead of seven members, with the members to be elected by district rather than at-large.

Mrs. Murauskis said she would continue her opposition to high-rises and large-density housing projects, although she is not against apartments if the density is low enough. She also said she wants the village's planned-unit-development ordinance, under which large apartment complexes are built, changed so the allowable density is lowered and loopholes which give developers advantages are closed.

She cited the more than $200,000 the village has spent to bring water and sewer lines to The Colony project, Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street, as one such loophole. "They claim we will be getting this money back, but I haven't seen it yet in the budget," she said.

MRS. MURAUSKIS came under fire two years ago from Mayor Robert D. Telchert when she tried to present petitions against The Colony project to the village board. About this time, she helped form the Concerned Citizens group to monitor all village board and committee meetings and became a regular observer at the meetings.

When Concerned Citizens voted to permit defeated mayoral candidate Michael H. Minton to join the group, Mrs. Murauskis left the group, although she

Elk Grove vs. 'Flesh Gordon'—to show or not to show?

by JILL BETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Pancoe does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's superheroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Pancoe said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Pancoe from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Pancoe contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCOE TRIED to show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days while a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Pancoe filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Pancoe agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Pancoe is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned movie-goers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or patently offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or GP's. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Plitt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em (the public). Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuelle," a film currently popular in New York.

Rhythmettes slated at Bulls game

The Rhythmettes of Prospect High School will perform during half time at the Chicago Bulls basketball game in the Chicago Stadium Friday evening. The Bulls will play the Seattle Supersonics.

The Rhythmettes show has a patriotic theme. Four numbers will be done. They are: "Grand Old Flag" with a zippy flag routine; "Yankee Doodle Dandy" which includes a "kick line" for which the girls are well known; an Armed Forces medley with clever novelty actions by the girls and "What's More American," the finale.

About 100 relatives and friends will accompany the girls on the excursion. The same show will be repeated at a Prospect High basketball game Jan. 31.

The Rhythmettes are a 70-member girls' pom pom squad directed by Ruthann Normann. The group is one of the largest and most accomplished squads in the area. In addition to performing at other school sponsored events, the girls have also been in numerous local and Chicago area parades and have competed successfully in various contests.

Looking to the future, the Rhythmettes are making plans to go to Florida for spring break, March 27 to April 4. They expect to participate in the Festival of States parade at St. Petersburg and perform at Disneyworld.

THE KIDS IN band programs at private grade schools in the area merged last Wednesday evening for a giant concert in Niles. St. Paul and St. John Lutheran Schools in Mount Prospect joined with Immanuel and St. Zachary of Des Plaines; St. Andrew of Park Ridge; St. Mary, Mundelein; St. Andrew, St. Lambert and St. Joan of Arc, all of Skokie; and St. John Brebauf, Niles.

Michael Finley handles the band program in each of the schools and brought his students together for a combined group of about 120 junior band players and 90 senior.

The concert program included approximately 25 numbers with several solos. Amy Black from St. Paul, a clarinetist, played a solo.

On Thursday, Jan. 23, band students in our local area, from St. Paul, St. John, Immanuel and St. Andrew, will present a concert at St. John School, 12:15 to 1 p.m. The concert will be repeated at St. Paul 1:45 to 2:30.

THE ST. PAUL Lutheran Church congregation was saddened last week to learn that former vicar Rev. Nate Castens and his wife Nancy lost their seven-month-old baby just before Christmas. The boy died of congenital heart defects.

Rev. Castens is now serving First Lutheran Church, Glencoe, Minn.

School may close soon

'Disturbed' program to Gregory site?

The Northwest Education Cooperative will seek to lease Gregory School in Mount Prospect for the Dwyer School program for emotionally disturbed children if Mount Prospect Dist. 57 decides to close the building.

The NEC governing board agreed Saturday to begin negotiations with Dist. 57 for a three year lease on Gregory School. The school would house the children from the Dwyer elementary program which is now in Dwyer School in Arlington Heights and also the Dwyer junior high school program which is in Hoffman Estates High School.

Dist. 57 has been studying the possibility of closing the building because of declining enrollments and plans a public hearing on the question Tuesday at Gregory School. A citizen's committee has recommended closing the school and has estimated that renting the building would bring in about $60,000 in revenue to the district in the next five years.

NEC OFFICIALS did not disclose how much they plan to offer Dist. 57 for the use of Gregory. Several other agencies, including the Mount Prospect Park District, have expressed an interest in renting the building.

The Dwyer program has about 120 students. NEC officials say the elementary school program has outgrown the eight-classroom Dwyer School building and High School Dist. 211 has said the junior high school program will not be able to use Hoffman Estates High School next year.

In other action Saturday, the NEC board approved a policy on giving parents access to student records held by the cooperative on 24-hour notice. The police states that the student's official records will be kept in the district which sends the child to NEC and that NEC student records will be identical to the records held by the local district.

NEC Executive Director Gloria Kinney said that if parents want to challenge anything in their child's records under terms of a new federal law they will go through the procedures set up by their local districts, not directly through NEC.

"It's going to be our responsibility and the responsibility of the member districts to make sure parents know there are two sets of records on their children," she said. "I hope we can make it as easy as possible for parents to have access to their child's records."

Artemenko to seek new schools term

Eugene Artemenko, a member of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education since 1971, said he will seek reelection in the April election.

Artemenko, 431 Millers Rd., Des Plaines, was appointed to the board in 1971. The following year he was elected to a three-year term which expires this April.

"I'd like to serve another term," Artemenko said. "My years on the board have been rewarding and personally satisfying to me."

Artemenko, 46, served for five years on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education before moving over to the Dist. 214 board.

TWO OTHER PERSONS are considering running for two vacant seats on the board.

Arthur Aronson, 2818 N. Schoenbeck

Rd., Arlington Heights, said earlier he did not know whether he would have enough time to serve a fifth term on the Dist. 214 board.

A member since 1962 and a school board veteran of more than 20 years, Aronson is the senior member of the Dist. 214 board.

Another possible candidate for the board is Al Domanico, 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village.

Domanico has been a member of the Dist. 59 Board of Education for 4½ years. He said he plans to retire from that board when his current term expires in April, but has not made a decision yet on whether he will run for the Dist. 214 board.

The first day for candidates to file for the April 12 school board election is Feb. 26.

School bond sale decision tonight?

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education tonight is expected to consider a committee recommendation which calls for the sale of $3-million bonds to eliminate short-term borrowing and urge no tax-rate hike this year.

The committee estimates the sale of the long-term bonds would save the district $250,000 in interest costs on tax-anticipation warrants, which represent borrowing against next year's tax receipts.

Al Domanico, chairman of the board's long-range financial planning committee, said the sale of the bonds would not increase the district's tax rate of $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation.

Despite the recommendation against an immediate tax hike, Domanico said in September "it appears there will be a need for a tax-rate increase of between 9 and 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation."

Such a hike would cost the taxpayer with a house assessed at $10,000 an extra $9 to $47 more per year in property taxes. Tonight's meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the district administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

continued to attend village board meetings.

Subsequently, Concerned Citizens became the Active Citizens Assn. under the leadership of Edward B. Rhea Jr., who also is running for a two-year seat on the village board in the April election. Mrs. Murauskis, like Rhea, is a former president of the Mount Shire Homeowners Assn.

Mrs. Murauskis has served as the chairman of the Community Blood Program for the past year and is a member of the executive committee of the village's Community Action Program board. She is a seven-year resident of the village, is married and has two children.

"I will stress that people pick and choose five individuals and get to know the candidates rather than just vote for a slate," she said.

Heart-resuscitation classes offered

The Mount Prospect Fire Dept. is continuing to sponsor a twice-a-month series of heart-lung resuscitation classes.

The next class will meet Feb. 5 in the main cafeteria of the Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., 1800 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. Classes are at Multigraphs the first Wednesday of each month. On the third Wednesday of each month, the classes are held at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

The program, designed to teach techniques of heart-lung resuscitation, begins with a 15-minute film, "The Breath of Life." Paramedic personnel then will demonstrate techniques of resuscitation on two special dummies. Students also will have a chance to practice.

Advance registration is needed for large groups only. Further information is available by calling either 392-6000, ext. 40, or 253-3030.

Trustee Griffin wins over village president

Clarbour loses Caucus endorsement

by KURT BAER

The Arlington Heights Caucus elected Trustee David Griffin Sunday as the party's candidate for village president in the April 1 village election amid charges that the meeting was dominated by party politics.

Griffin was nominated on the second ballot, outpolling Village Pres. Ralph H. Clarbour 325-250 and providing Clarbour to make a statement indicating he may run an independent campaign for village president.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, who like Clarbour had been recommended for slating, was eliminated on the first ballot.

After Griffin's nomination was announced, Clarbour withdrew his name from consideration as a trustee candidate because he said he wanted to consider running an independent campaign for village president.

Political insiders said they do expect Clarbour to run for the village top spot.

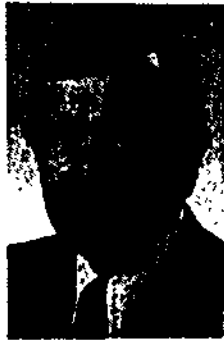

Griffin's nomination was won on a motion from the floor, and prompted immediate unofficial charges that the Caucus had been stacked in his favor by the Wheeling Township Democratic organization.

GRIFFIN SUPPORTERS and the township's Democratic committeeman, Donald Norman, denied the allegations that were rumored on the floor, but never officially presented to the Caucus executive committee.

The Caucus bylaws prohibit any caucus candidate from soliciting or allowing anyone else to solicit support for a caucus nomination.

In addition to the village president candidate, the Caucus elected four candidates for the office of village trustee.

Madeline Schroeder and Alfred Barbore Jr. were nominated on the first ballot. Norman Breyer was nominated on the second ballot, and Mary Schlott was elected Caucus candidate on the fourth ballot.

David Griffin

Ralph H. Clarbour

THE MAN WHO put Griffin's name in nomination, Donald Madison, said he did so because he has known Griffin as a past president of a homeowners association and as a member of the Arlington Festival Committee.

"I am a registered Republican, and an independent voter. Dave, as I understand it, is a Democrat. But I was not nominating a party candidate, I'm nominating the man," Madison said when asked about the charges of party politics. Madison said he decided to nominate Griffin after the names of the 10 persons recommended for slating by the candidate recommendation committee were announced Jan. 6.

Mood music sets pace for balloting

by JOE SWICKARD

This was local government in action, Sunday in the gymnasium of Arlington High School as the Arlington Heights Caucus met to select the slate for the April Municipal election.

To the strains of piped-in mood music, the ballots were counted and Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour found himself unsupported officially for the post and considering an independent run for it.

The man who acknowledged the job didn't take that much time, was put aside by the village machine in favor of a trustee who had been already passed over by the Caucus selection committee.

IT WAS VILLAGE government in action. A Caucus official said so while asking them for money.

Wearing a steel blue Western-cut suit, Clarbour announced that after savoring the position for some months, "I like the job of village president."

He stepped up to the presidency last July after former president Jack Walsh moved to Lake Geneva, Wis., giving up a political career that was stymied when Walsh was unable to get on the GOP county board slate.

Clarbour's stand was "correct" on most of the major issues: Arlington Heights doesn't need blazing street lights all over town; the sidewalk policy should be re-evaluated after public hearings and he promised to keep an eye on "ropes" attached to the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act which could mean $2.5 million to the village.

HIS HONEST appraisal of the job, however, may have cut his chances in the Caucus. He said being president of a village with a strong village manager does not take very much time.

"It is no more time consuming than being a trustee," he said, if you don't count the social obligations and keep the cocktail circuit curtailed.

Frank Palmatier, so closely identified with the losing flood referendum, told the nearly 600 residents he could handle the presidency by getting up with the birds.

Palmatier, a power in the Caucus for almost 20 years, said he would deal with village business by "allocating the early morning hours before I go to my law offices."

Palmatier, who has spent so many hours working with the village, and serving voluntarily on the park district rescue committee, was knocked out of the running on the first ballot, gathering only an even 100 votes.

David Griffin won the nomination on the second ballot with pledges of cooperation with homeowners' groups and vowing to halt sidewalks where they are unneeded and unwanted.

HE GATHERED IN the applause and grabbed a first ballot lead that all but assured his nomination on the second go-round. Swinging his foot in tight circles, he waited for the ballots to be counted and himself named to lead the ticket.

While the paper ballots were being tallied, James Hickey, Caucus treasurer, took the microphone and said it was time to start "making it happen." The attendees started passing around the buckets, and Hickey quipped he was going to "put the bite on you."

Asking them to dig deep, he said, "This is your local government in action. Or at least part of it."

Background music just like the supermarket's swelled from the public address system and Rand Burdette, Caucus chairman, announced, "There will be a short interlude of soft music while they count the ballots."

Clarbour sat still and erect and Griffin's foot circled in time with the music.

Griffin said he did not think there was organized support for his candidacy. "I had talked with him (Madison) as a supporter, and he encouraged me to go," Griffin said.

"I hope my support is as a candidate, not a political party. I don't believe in national political parties getting involved in a village election," he said.

AFTER ANNOUNCING that he would withdraw as a Caucus candidate for village trustee, Clarbour said he did not want to comment on whether there may have been a violation of the Caucus' prohibition on electioneering.

But he did say he was not surprised by Griffin's nomination. "I had heard it was a possibility," he said. Clarbour said it would be "at least a couple of days" before he would decide whether to be an independent candidate, and added that he had not considered whether he might head up a challenge slate of village board candidates.

The only person to publicly raise the electioneering issue was Anthony Tomaso, who asked the Caucus' executive committee to affirm that there had been no violation of the party bylaws. He also asked Caucus chairman Rand Burdette to ask each village president candidate to pledge that he had not broken the ban on campaigning.

After a short meeting of the executive committee, Burdette reported to the audience of nearly 600 registered voters that the committee had not received any evidence of illegal electioneering. He did not ask the candidates for a pledge.

IN HIS PREPARED speech to the Caucus, Griffin struck as his theme the "quality of life in Arlington Heights."

"There is no need to install sidewalks where they are unneeded, unwanted and where there is no safety hazard involved," he said.

At another point in the speech, he said he would not let past difference between village and park district officials stand in the way of future cooperation on cost savings.

"I don't believe we have to be the biggest village in the Northwest suburbs, but I do think we have to be the best," he said.

More than $65,000 available

Village to weigh U.S. grant to fund jobs for unemployed

The Arlington Heights Village Board will consider a resolution tonight to accept $65,633 in federal funds for emergency unemployment relief.

The money could be used to hire five or six unemployed persons, probably as clerks or public works employees, at a salary of not more than $10,000 each per year.

The jobs would be funded for one year, beginning Feb. 1. To be eligible, a person would have to be unemployed for at least 30 days. Priority would be given to veterans, persons whose unemployment insurance has run out and those who have been without work for more than 15 weeks.

Cook County is offering the funds to the village under the U.S. Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973. Nationally, the act will create 100,000 new public-service jobs.

DES PLAINES recently rejected a $79,158 grant under the employment program because city officials did not want to hire people with federal funds that will eventually be terminated.

The audit of the village's land dedication fund also is on tonight's village board agenda.

Trustee Alice Harms is expected to ask for more information to supplement the report issued last August by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson. The audit outlines income and expenditures from the land-dedication fund from 1957, when the fund was established, through 1974.

The audit was released after Arlington Heights Park District Comr. Katherine Muller charged Hanson with distorting the amount of land and money that has been donated to the park district.

The board of trustees will consider a request from the chairman of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission (DAMP) for $6,000 to meet anticipated expenses in connection with hearings next month on the diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Youth council to meet to consider disbanding

Members of the Arlington Heights Youth Council tonight will discuss an administrative plan to disband the council and replace it with another advisory group.

A proposal, which stems from a report by Frank Charlton, village health director, in October, recommends that the youth council and the Senior Citizens Commission be replaced by an Advisory Commission on Human Resources to prevent the duplication of services by governmental units.

"It's important that we discuss this proposal and make our recommendations to the village board before it makes a decision on the matter. This proposal, of course, affects what future plans the youth council may have," said Alfred Barbore, newly appointed chairman of the council.

Barbore said he had "my own thoughts on the proposal and the future of the council," but that he would not comment on them until the meeting today at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

THE EIGHT-MEMBER council has been unable to meet since the August resignation of its former chairman, Thomas Martin, principal of South Junior High School, who left to complete work toward a doctorate.

Barbore, who was appointed chairman of the youth council last week by Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour, said he plans to use tonight's meeting to get acquainted with the direction and projects of the council.

The village financial director has requested that the council complete a written budget request for the village board to consider by Jan. 31.

Barbore said he could give no indication whether the council will actively propose various social service programs for youth in its budget as it did last year. The council heavily opposed cuts in its 1974 budget programs that were proposed by the village board. The board later approved most of the budget requests.

THESE TWO students were among 10 Hershey High School students who think they leapfrogged into the Guinness Book of World Records Saturday. It took 11 hours and 55 minutes for the group to go around the school gym 1,120 times or a distance of 56 miles. The former record is believed to have been 50 miles.

Artemenko to seek new schools term

Eugene Artemenko, a member of the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education since 1971, said he will seek reelection in the April election.

Artemenko, 431 Millers Rd., Des Plaines, was appointed to the board in 1971. The following year he was elected to a three-year term which expires this April.

"I'd like to serve another term," Artemenko said. "My years on the board have been rewarding and personally satisfying to me."

Artemenko, 46, served for five years on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education before moving over to the Dist. 214 board.

TWO OTHER PERSONS are considering running for two vacant seats on the board. Rd., Arlington Heights, said earlier he did not know whether he would have enough time to serve a fifth term on the Dist. 214 board.

A member since 1962 and a school board veteran of more than 20 years, Aronson is the senior member of the Dist. 214 board.

Domanico has been a member of the Dist. 59 Board of Education for 4½ years. He said he plans to retire from that board when his current term expires in April, but has not made a decision yet on whether he will run for the Dist. 214 board.

The first day for candidates to file for the April 12 school board election is Feb. 26.

by JILL BETTNER

The Elk Grove Cinema is showing X-rated films again and village officials are trying to decide what to do about it. The current feature, "Flesh Gordon," may violate a local anti-obscenity ordinance.

Three Elk Grove Village policemen viewed the first screening of the movie Friday night and submitted their opinions to Police Chief Harry Jenkins. At least one patrolman is reported to have found the movie obscene, as defined by the ordinance passed last year.

Jenkins is to review the findings of the policemen sent as "official viewers" and is expected today to take action on the advice of the village attorney. If "Flesh Gordon" is deemed unlawful, the theater may be closed.

THEATER OWNER Walter Pancoe does not expect to be prevented from continuing to show the film billed as "An outrageous parody of yesterday's superheroes" whose adventures were depicted in the Flash Gordon serials of the 1930s and 1940s. The movie began its run Friday night and is supposed to show through Thursday.

"This movie has been very well-received at theaters all over," Pancoe said. "There have been no objections raised in other areas and we don't expect any battle here. We do not feel this picture violates the village ordinance."

The anti-obscenity ordinance was rushed through by the village board in an emergency Sunday night meeting last January to prevent Pancoe from showing the X-rated movie "The Devil in Miss Jones." Pancoe contended he was losing money at the Grove Shopping Center theater by showing "family-type" movies exclusively.

PANCOE TRIED to show the film again last February and was successful for 10 days while a legal battle between him and the village raged.

Contending that he was "coerced by village officials into not showing the film," Pancoe filed suit against the village, seeking $250,000 in damages while the village sought injunctions to close the theater.

All court action was dropped when Pancoe agreed to stop showing "The Devil in Miss Jones" and return to less controversial fare.

Pancoe is testing the village anti-obscenity law for the first time with "Flesh Gordon."

CROWDS ON HAND for the Friday and Saturday night screenings were described by theater manager Bob

McDermott as "better than average, but not record-breakers." A sign on the ticket window warned movie-goers to "Have proper identification ready" to prove they met the 18-or-older age requirement. McDermott said identification was checked Friday night, but those attending the second show Saturday evening were not questioned.

The village anti-obscenity ordinance does not specifically prohibit movies merely because of an "X" rating. "Official viewers" are required to determine if films are obscene according to the definition spelled out in the law.

The ordinance says a thing shall be deemed to be obscene if the average person would find the work, taken as a whole, appeals to a prurient interest. Also, if it depicts or describes patently offensive representations or descriptions of nude persons, sexual intercourse, normal or perverted sexual conduct or actual, simulated or potentially offensive representations or descriptions of masturbation. Other definitions of obscenity in the ordinance include offensive representations of, or descriptions of, excretory functions and lewd exhibitions of the human genitals.

The law states the work taken as a whole must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value to be illegal.

Theater officials say:

'Attitude toward obscenity more liberal now'

by BARRY SIGALE

The X-rated movies of yesterday may be the R-rated films of today as the public's attitude toward what was classified as obscene becomes more liberal.

This is the opinion of two theater chain officials whose job is to slate movies in several theaters in the Northwest suburbs.

"Four or five years ago they would have been Xs," said Jeff Kohlberg, assistant general manager of Kohlberg Theaters, of "Centerfold Girls" and "Candy Striped Nurses," both of which have been shown at the 53 Outdoor Theater in Palatine Township.

"People are a little more open-minded today," Kohlberg said. "Adult pictures do better than Gs or PGs. We are guaranteed an average week with an R or an X."

A SPOKESMAN for the Plitt Theaters owners and operators of Woodfield Theaters I and II in Schaumburg, said moviegoers are changing their minds about adult movies.

"They're more permissive," he said. "Their attitudes have changed. Even on television you see stuff that you never would have thought they'd show."

Whether rated X or R, the adult movies of the past ran into widespread opposition in this area. The films were either canceled or postponed until the furor died down.

Even today, an advisory committee to the Palatine Village Board is checking village ordinances in regard to the X-rated "The Sex Shop," which was shown last week at the Willow Creek Theater.

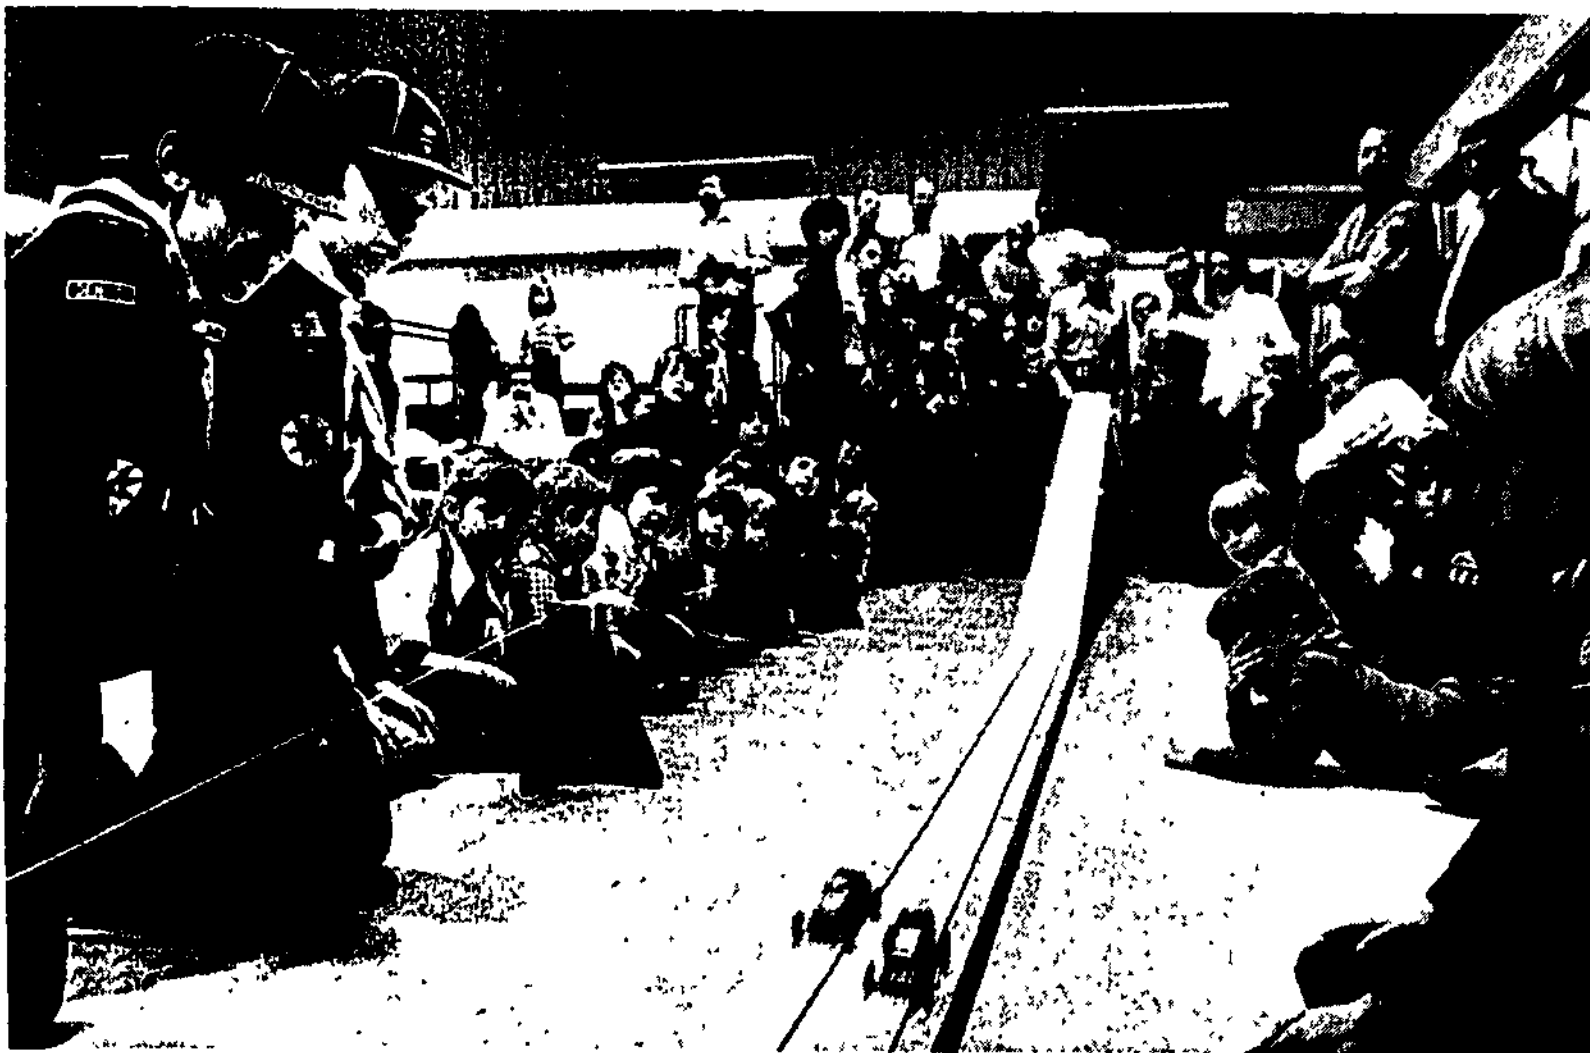

In 1967, at the Meadows Theater, also owned by Kohlberg, the X-rated movie, "I, A Woman," was canceled after a short run because of loud protests.

TODAY, THE Meadows Theatre shows mild R-rated movies like "The Longest Yard," playing there now. Kohlberg said the "sexier" films are saved for the 53 Drive-In.

"In the winter, 9 out of 10 of our films are for adults only," he said. Why in the winter? "We have to have something sexy for 'em (the public). Otherwise they won't come out. They won't sit in the cold."

The major movie theater chains have people who screen films before they are shown at any of their locally-owned theaters. The spokesman for Plitt Theaters said the X-rated film, "Flesh Gordon," now being shown at the Elk Grove Theater, was shown at the Plitt-owned Michael Todd Theater, but probably would not be shown at either of the two Woodfield cinemas.

But that doesn't mean the Schaumburg theater won't get an X-rated film. He said his company has shown an interest in "The Emmanuelle," a film currently popular in New York.

ROLLING DOWN the track at Berkley School were two entries in Cub Scout Pack 468's annual Pinewood Derby. Each year, fathers and sons make the model cars from blocks of wood and sets of wheels. Winners entering the fastest models were Mike Annino, 9; John Gleason, 8, and Ross Pearson, 9.

Elk Grove schools bond sale decision tonight?

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education tonight is expected to consider a committee recommendation which calls for the sale of $5-million bonds to eliminate short-term borrowing and urge no tax-rate hike this year.

The committee estimates the sale of the long-term bonds would save the district $250,000 in interest costs on tax-anticipation warrants, which represent borrowing against next year's tax receipts.

Al Domanico, chairman of the board's long-range financial planning committee, said the sale of the bonds would not increase the district's tax rate of $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation.

Despite the recommendation against an immediate tax hike, Domanico said in September "it appears there will be a need for a tax-rate increase of between 9 and 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation."

Such a hike would cost the taxpayer with a house assessed at $10,000 an extra $9 to $47 more per year in property taxes.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the district administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

In other action, the board is expected to officially name Jean Cashman to fill the vacant seat on the board, created by the resignation last month of Charles Knaup.

Board Pres. Gerald Smiley also is expected to name a committee, made up of board members and district residents, to draw up a list of district goals.

Shakespeare display at public library

Materials on loan from the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, D.C., are being featured at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library this month.

The display includes title pages from four Shakespearean plays published between 1590 and 1623, several original playbills and a 19th-century painting of Shakespeare's birthplace.

Two will seek election to school board

Lillian Stiller and Susan Rose have announced they will seek to retain their seats on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education in the April election.

Mrs. Stiller will be running for her fourth term on the board.

"I think it will be an extremely challenging year with the new Illinois Board of Education and an appointed (state) superintendent," she said. "This will affect all of us."

She said she would like to improve

Lillian Stiller

Susan Rose

Dist. 21's relations with other taxing bodies and continue the formation of citizens' committees for curriculum development.

"This is the first year the district is in the black," she said. "We're not worried about passing a referendum or paying the light bills." With the district's current funding, she said there are many education areas the district can move into.

Mrs. Rose was appointed to the board in August, filling the vacancy caused by Mary Jo Reid's resignation. Mrs. Reid resigned to take a full-time paid position with the district.

Mrs. Rose was not available for comment.
